THE ENEMY WITHIN: DECIPHERING DEMOCRATS' EXCREMENT

"We don't know the course our own struggle will take, or the sacrifices that might lie ahead. We do know, however, that the defense of freedom is worth our sacrifice, we do know the love of freedom is the mightiest force of history, and we do know the cause of freedom will once again prevail." GWB—November 11, 2005.

We must take a step back and assess the reasons for the Democrats to deliberately reduce the respect of a United States President during a major offensive against terrorism. In numerous sound bites and news conferences, the Democrats have been airing our laundry on a global scale. Their fictional rhetoric has been embraced and rebroadcast all across the world, including into the theater of operations to al Qaeda.

Why would the Democrats be so Hell-bent on destroying the personal character of a President and at the same time undermine the men and women fighting in an honorable war in a foreign land? The selfish intent of the Democrats must be called in to muster by the citizens of the United States; there is never a good reason to speak fictitiously about anyone who is willing to surrender their personal life to serve their fellow man.

Quite frankly, the Democrats know their ship has sailed and they're stuck on a island with no hope of regaining a civilization to take and control. They had successfully campaigned for decades on the same platform, but failed to enact any of their promises. As they slid further to the left, only the crazy and stupid would be inclined to support their efforts.

We have survived wars, but those that we have failed to win were directly influenced and interfered with by the liberals. Despite the late 60s protests at the Democrat Convention in Chicago, the liberals were already forming the new Democrat party and influencing the character of the leftwing nation.

In desperation, by the 1990s, the liberals had pointed their fingers at conservatives and argued they had moved too far right, while failing to admit that they hadn't been able to see the middle-of-the-road since 1964. The elitist took over the party, created a dependent class out of the minorities and vilified the concept of progress and corrupted the meaning of capitalism.

During his speech at the Tobyhanna Army Depot, Tobyhanna, Pennsylvania on Veterans' Day, President Bush, still being very respectful and dignified, began his new presidency. Not only did he give an excellent presentation of our commitment to those we are sending into harms way, but he also crystalized a clear message to those our troops are liberating and to those our troops are fighting.

Only those struggles at home with the liberals cause indigestion among our fighting men and women. It is the lack of will displayed by the left and the very willingness to retreat, vacate and hang-out to dry an entire nation. Their idealisms have had a major impact on both those with guts enough to serve and those with guts enough to consider enlisting to serve a higher calling.

President Bush receives the respectful salute due him by American Veterans. Tobyhanna Army Depot Tobyhanna, Pennsylvania 11-11-05

All that is left is the GOP controlled Congress. While the President was being beat up and tossed out before the international media and European trash, the GOP silently sat on their hands. Like Christ carrying His cross to Calgary, few were willing to step-in and help our President bear the burden of his cross and the relentless flogging by the liberal Democrats; who hold onto hopes they'll witness his crucifixion.

The knocking-kneed GOP suits in DC compromised Iraq by overreacting to every liberal allegation. Rather than calling the general that fired his gun next to the head of an enemy a hero, he too gets flogged by Congress. Only God knows where this American hero is today.

We still have five USSC justices that need to be called upon to answer for their failure to properly uphold the Constitution; they must be impeached. Then we have Gorelick, Berger and both Clintons who need to be investigated for their part in 9-11. We are becoming impatient.

Three school girls beheaded in Indonesia By ALI KOTARUMALOS

JAKARTA, Indonesia -- Unidentified assailants attacked a group of high school girls on Saturday in Indonesia's tense province of Central Sulawesi, beheading three and seriously wounding another, police said.

The students from a private Christian high school were ambushed while walking through a cocoa plantation in Poso Kota subdistrict on their way to class, police Maj. Riky Naldo said. The area is close to the provincial capital of Palu, about 1,000 miles northeast of Jakarta.

Naldo said the heads of three victims were found several miles from their bodies. Two were left near a police station and another in front of a newly built Christian church.

In Jakarta, President Susilo Bambang Yudhoyono ordered police to track down the killers.

"I condemn this barbarous killing, whoever the perpetrators are and whatever their motives," he said.

National police spokesman Brig. Gen.

Arjanto Boedihardjo said the wounded student told police that there were six masked attackers who were wearing black shirts.

Indonesia is the world's most populous Muslim nation, but Central Sulawesi has a roughly equal number of Muslims and Christians. The province was the scene of a bloody sectarian war in 2001-2002 that killed around 1,000 people from both communities.

At the time, beheadings, burnings and other atrocities were common.

A government-mediated truce succeeded in ending the conflict in early 2002, but there have since been a series of bomb attacks and assassinations of Christians. These included a blast at a market in Poso, a predominantly Christian town, that killed 22 people in May.

Christian leaders have repeatedly accused authorities in Jakarta of not doing enough to find the perpetrators and bring them to justice.

The Christian-Muslim conflict in Sulawesi was an extension of a wider sectarian war in the nearby Maluku archipelago in which up to 9,000 perished between 1999 and 2002.

WHICH RIGHTS WOULD YOU SURRENDER? BY JIM HAFEMAN

During my 2002 campaign bid for the 109th District State Representative seat in Lansing, I received a telephone call from a woman who had identified herself as a supporter. That may have been short-lived. The conversation soon turned to rights and responsibilities since this was a period just post-9-11.

The woman, God Bless her good intentions, stated that she would be willing to give up some of her rights if it would make our nation safer. Like connecting two opposite cables to a car battery, I was unable to contain myself. As a former Marine and law enforcement veteran, it was probably detrimental to my campaign since I was unable, or perhaps unwilling, to come across as a meek, passive individual. Simply stated, I had stressed to her to never, ever surrender any right for whatever purpose. The loss of one leads to another until all the pieces of the domino set are lying flat and useless.

There are some in society that have made it appear as if the Constitution was a living document; living, breathing and adapting. The sense that this great document is a living document is like saying the Ten Commandments is also a living document. In truth, there is no room in either of these very important writings to provide any interpretation except for the exact words as they are written. Neither allows for flexibility simply based on social or political movements.

The weaknesses demonstrated by the various attempts to rewrite the words or make modifications to the original, pre-Amendment structure of the national government, provides the catalysis for an unrecognizable form of government in our future. As with the Bill of Rights, there are also exact words with exact meanings; no one may change them, not even the USSC; unless of course there is a majority of liberals on the court, then it is evident that anything goes.

The very narrow flexibility of the Constitution is provided in amendments. Like God's Ten Commandments, we may only add what we think is right and proper, but we must stay true to the original words and its original intent. We may expand our historic values by writing new amendments or writing laws to prohibit abuse, neglect and specific criminal activity. Like church dogma, we may define the leadership and direction, but not by weakening the foundational principles. God knew exactly what He meant when He gave us His Commandments. So too with the Constitution; it offers no room for change. Until the Constitution is replaced, like the Ten Commandments, the Constitution shall remain carved in stone.

Surrendering any right to a government is an act of condoning the empowerment of the governmental authority over the people. Through the created dependence of the poor and chipping away at the rights and livelihood of the middle class through taxes, the government is controlling the citizens' lives.

There is only one acceptable method to tear down our beloved nation and rewrite the our Constitution; that would be through the deliberative actions by the people to take up the cause of redefining the government and rewriting the constitutional document. In light of the political deviance and the non-stop growth and controls of the government, we may indeed want to call for a new Continental Congress and take a newly rewritten and wisely worded Constitution to the people for a fair, just and proper ratification.

In any instance that the people decide that they need to reign-in the government, the role of the people in the ruling of their country should be at the forefront. The United States should be a nation that is truly for and by the people that requires their vigilance. The single most important change would be moving the role of the people and their rights to Article I.

FRENCH FRIES OR FRENCH TOAST? YOUR PLEASURE

PARIS — France declared a state of emergency Tuesday to quell the country's worst unrest since the student uprisings of 1968 that toppled a government, and the prime minister said the nation faced a "moment of truth" over its failure to integrate Arab and African immigrants and their children. <http://www.foxnews.com/story/0,2933,174868,00.html>

~Is the United States on the fringe of having the same type of mass uprising as they're experiencing in France? Probably. Our least brightest and those with very low self-esteem are easily recruited into gangs; today's gangs may well include the radical Muslims. Our prisoners, especially the minorities, are recruited by Muslims. Farrakhan and the Democrats have assured the oppression of minorities and frequently point out the differences between Americans and other Americans. Our saving grace is that most minorities are Christians, but the movement from the oppressed areas created by the Great Society to the welcoming arms of Muslims could lead us into a society that has no base in God, but coinciding with the liberals secular union base that is fully entrenched with dictates of human leaders.

It is quite obvious that Muslims are not heard by their god otherwise they would pray for our conversion and simply hold onto to hopes we would see the light; like the Christians do. Christians leave others alone to decide for themselves and their evangelization is designed only to help others hear the Word of God.

We have one of two things to look forward to in our life time; a world decimated with hate, murder and vulgarity or a world based in respect and peace. Peace comes with freedom and freedom comes from strength and a faith in God. The challenge now becomes which decision we will make and how will we get there?

A hint: We will never become a powerful, self-reliant society again as long as we spend our time in front of the television watching Oprah and CNN. The truth lies within the values and culture of society. The failed social societies of Europe and our northern brother, Canada, should be hint enough for us to avoid such ignorance. Keep in mind; God will save America only if Americans choose to save God. ~JP

IT TAKES A VILLAGE TO DESTROY A CHILD By Tom DeWeese

In the old days, children were warned not to smoke because it would stunt their growth. Apparently the same warning can now be issued on Ritalin. Researchers at the University of Sydney have analyzed 29 separate studies on the subject and have concluded that there is indication that some Ritalin users may experience slow or even stunted growth.

"Parents should expect their children to lose some weight and grow more slowly for a time after starting on stimulant medication, and this should be monitored," says pediatrician Sally Poulton of the University.

Two of the studies reviewed by Poulton and colleagues suggest that children who experience nausea and vomiting as an early side effect of Ritalin may be uniquely vulnerable to slow growth. University of Iowa psychologist John R. Kramer, PhD, who led one of the research teams, said that this small sub group of Ritalin users ended up more than 2 inches shorter than other Ritalin users.

Ritalin, of course, is the drug of choice give to children diagnosed with Attention Deficit Hyperactivity Disorder (ADHD). The drug is now administered to over 10 million American children, beginning as early as four years old. Promoted by federal education policies, use of the drug increased more than 500% in the 1990s.

Yet, as usage continues to rise, Dr. Fred Baughman, a leading critic of ADHD theory, warns that there still is no valid research to prove that ADHD even exists! To date, according to Baughman, there has never been a single bit of physical evidence to confirm the disease exists. So-called experts on the subject have refused to answer the simple question, "is ADD /ADHD a real disease?" Medical researchers charge that ADHD does not meet the definition of a disease or syndrome or anything organic or biologic. Instead, Baughman charges, ADHD was literally invented by the American Psychiatric Association (APA).

The explosion of new ADHD cases in the 1990s, which continues today, can be traced directly to a 1991 change in eligibility for federal education grants allowing schools to be paid $400 in annual grants for each child diagnosed with ADHD, after classifying it as a handicap.

Ritalin is known to cause cardiac arrhythmia, tachycardia and hypertension. Research has proven that Ritalin can interfere with body phospholipid chemistry (body fat), causing the accumulation of abnormal membranes visible with an electronic microscope.

Ritalin is early training to introduce children to drug abuse. Today, a black market for obtaining Ritalin without a prescription has developed on some college campuses, where some students actually crush the pills and snort them like cocaine. In fact, research has shown that children on Ritalin are three times more likely to develop a taste for cocaine.

Yet, with the money pouring into school coffers, education officials, acting like local street pushers, keep forcing it on unsuspecting, worried parents and their innocent children. Ritalin: it will stunt your child's growth; shrink their brains; cause violent mood swings and cause addiction, just to treat a disease that doesn't exist. And Americans wonder what's wrong with public education.

AL QAEDA OPERATIONS CENTER—BOSNIA

A French authority was called on the carpet for referring to the hoodlums burning down France as “scum”. In fact, he should have been reprimanded for not being honest enough to call them “Muslim scum”.

In the spirit of Ramadan, the Muslims in Europe are burning things they don't own; things others had worked to pay for. In one instance, a 61 year old man went out to extinguish his burning car and the Muslims beat him to death.

Contrasting the Muslims' Ramadan with Christians' Christmas, we can easily see that Muslims are not devoted to any god, but to themselves. The “disenfranchised” first generation of Muslims learned that the French hand-outs were not enough and like their ancestors, it was very important for others to do the work while they reap the benefits.

So far 274 cities are burning in France and is moving into Germany and possibly Italy.

According to Greg Copley of the International Strategic Studies Association, al Qaeda had set their roots in Bosnia.

Headquartered in Bosnia, the al Qaeda Operations Center leaders have given instructions to their followers to unleash destruction by any means.

Does Bosnia sound familiar? The UN and Clinton did several preemptive strikes against Christians in eastern Europe during the 1990s.

Finally, the Christians had had enough and were fighting back against the murderous Muslims. This fight-back was called “ethnic-cleansing” by the UN and Clintons.

The UN and United States helped facilitate the growth and achievement by crushing the attempts of the Christians to fight against generations of oppression by the Muslims. We see the results of the blind liberals and Muslim movements; Viva La France!

MIDDLE CLASS FILLING UP MILITARY, STUDY SAYS BY ROWAN SCARBOROUGH

Middle-class youths, not the poor, are providing the bulk of wartime recruits to the armed forces, according to a new study by a conservative think tank.

The Heritage Foundation research paper found that a higher percentage of middle-class and upper-middle-class families have been providing enlistees for the war on Islamic militants since the September 11 attacks on the United States.

Researchers matched the ZIP codes of recruits over the past five years with federal government estimates of household incomes in those neighborhoods. Contrary to complaints from some liberal lawmakers and pundits, the data show that the poor are not shouldering the bulk of the military's need for new soldiers, airmen, sailors and Marines.

The poorest neighborhoods provided 18 percent of recruits in prewar 1999 and 14.6 percent in 2003. By contrast, areas where household incomes ranged from $30,000 to $200,000 provided more than 85 percent.

“We found that recruits tend to come from middle-class areas, with disproportionately fewer from low-income areas,” said the report, prepared by Tim Kane, an Air Force Academy graduate and economics scholar. “Overall, the income distribution of military enlistees is more similar to than different from the income distribution of the general population.”

The debate was begun in 2002 by Rep. Charles B. Rangel, New York Democrat, as U.S. troops were fighting in Afghanistan and preparing for war in Iraq.

“A disproportionate number of the poor and members of minority groups make up the enlisted ranks of the military, while most privileged Americans are underrepresented or absent,” Mr. Rangel wrote in the New York Times. The lawmaker called on the Bush administration to reinstate compulsory service.

Mr. Rangel's Washington office did not respond yesterday to the Heritage report.

The draft was discontinued in 1973, and the all-volunteer force eventually grew into what many national security officials see as the best-trained military force in history.

The Heritage report states that median household income for all enlisted recruits in 1999 was $41,141, compared with the national median of $41,994. By 2003, the recruit household income reached $42,822, when adjusted for inflation.

“In other words, on average, recruits in 2003 were from wealthier neighborhoods than were recruits in 1999,” said the report, titled, “Who Bears the Burden? Demographic Characteristics of U.S.

Military Recruits Before and After 9/11.”

Mr. Kane said overall evidence “is at odds with the image, painted by some supporters of the draft, that the military exploits poor, ignorant young Americans by using slick advertising that promises technical careers in the military to dupe them into trading their feeble opportunities in the private sector for a meager role as cannon fodder.”

About 98 percent of all enlistees from 1999 to 2003 had a high school diploma, compared with 75 percent of non-recruits nationwide.

“In an education context, rather than attracting underprivileged young Americans, the military seems to be attracting above-average Americans,” Mr. Kane wrote.

TIRED OF YOUR LEGISLATORS' FAILURES? HIT THEM WHERE IT HURTS!

No matter which political party you prefer, some of our legislators at the state and federal levels are failing to carry through on promises and have elected to ignore their base. It's time to hit them where it hurts the most; in their little campaign pocket books.

Supporters receive telephone calls thanking them for their support and then they begin requesting “urgent” funds or some other money to help the candidate or the cause. It's time to hold-back any of our contributions.

It may be important to explain to the individual calling that you are very disappointed and won't be interested in giving any further support until your party gets off their butts and gets their job done. Although it doesn't matter with Democrats since most of their funds come from out-of-state. The GOP on-the-other-hand may influence legislators; they will certainly feel the crunch and the wrath of their constituency in a hurry. Don't write that check until you see results!

WHAT THE GOP CONGRESS MUST DO—A NEW CONTRACT WITH AMERICA

With all the brilliant minds and diversity that prevails within the 109th Congress, that fact alone provides Americans with an air of optimism that the GOP will rule as winners and step on the liberals' toes as they move a positive agenda for the United States forward. There are some must-do issues that cannot wait for another round of elections and unfiltered and empty campaign promises by the Democrats.

The GOP must gut all the failed liberal policies, reassess our global status and define our future. The GOP were elected to make significant changes while they have a President to work with, heretofore these:

- Revamp or eliminate Social Security—require that all contribute or no one. Give SS checks based on other retirement incomes.
- Eliminate the EPA—Turn environmental issues over to the states.
- Eliminate the Department of Education—Turn all education, hot lunch and tuition funding over to the states. Curriculum must be a State-based development.
- FBI and DOJ must be strictly law enforcement.
- Turn all intelligence issues over to a joint operation consisting of the NSA, CIA and Pentagon which fall directly under Homeland Security.
- FEMA must go under regional operations and the regionally affected states will be the sole governing authority. All disaster-specific contributions will be sent to the regional operations center and disbursed according to operational needs to the participating non-profit help organizations.
- No agency shall have authorization to enact any rule or regulation that provides for fines or other costs—Only the legislative body has the power to write law.
- No grants or other federal funds shall be disbursed to any non-government entity.
- Incomes above $150K shall not be provided any deductions; a flat 15% tax shall be levied.
- The federal budget shall pay for the health, safety and welfare first and foremost. The remaining monies shall be distributed as follows: 25% will be saved for emergencies and the remaining portion shall be divided equally between Houses and then equally divided among the representatives to use back home.
- Congress and Courts shall abide by the Constitution, which shall include an overriding veto vote.
- No irrelevant riders are permitted on any bill. All proposals may go to a committee for adjustments, but shall go to the floor for a vote.
- Congress shall establish a catastrophic fund for long-term illnesses based on a percentage contribution by all insurance companies. All contributors, including both Medicare and Medicaid shall have access once a predetermined level of a lifetime health care costs has been reached, e.g., $250,000.
- All law suits lost by a person bringing the suit shall require an automatic reimbursement by the individual bringing suit or their representative attorney.

LAND USE AND PRIVATE PROPERTY RIGHTS; A MAJOR ISSUE

The recent USSC decision in Kelo v. New London where five justices, that should be impeached, changed the words "public use" to "public purpose" is only one indication that our property rights are in jeopardy.

Locally, the Yellow Dog Plains in north Marquette County has been enjoyed by hunters, hikers, fisherman, cross-country skiers, ORV and snowmobile enthusiasts for many years. A sizeable portion of the land enjoyed is privately owned by some companies, including Kennecott Minerals Company, KMC. The Triple-A road dissects the KMC property and even with the plausibility of frivolous law suits by the users. KMC has been very generous in allowing people to freely trespass and use their property for recreation and pleasure.

However, when it came time for KMC to utilize their investment and take advantage of their mineral rights and mine for ore, the same people that had benefited from the use of the property for all these years turned on the company and demanded KMC halt any activity that would yield the company a profit. The taxes paid and the road improvements done by KMC after a washout is expected, but not rewarded. This local mindset is indicative of the State mentality as well.

The State of Michigan has a history of taking all they can and returning nothing to law-abiding property owners. The State retains a significant portion of the mineral rights on private property and confiscates land simply because of tax delinquency.

Recently, Granholm provided The Nature Conservancy with property, buffer zones and pacts that allow easements, which clearly infringe on the rights of the private property owners adjacent to the TNC lands. In Montana it is reported that TNC property is off-limits and it's illegal to hunt, fish or trespass on the property owned or controlled by TNC. This has set the precedent for all non-profits and we will witness this in the Keweenaw as well; any public enjoyment will be prohibited.

With the State sales tax at 6%, tobacco tax, income tax, death tax and destructive business taxes, there is no reason why any private properties consisting of fewer than 41 acres is taxed. This is especially true for any active farm properties.

It is alright for the State to negotiate property sales to non-profits and for the State to own large chunks land, which is somehow exempt from payment during the lean years, but God help the private property owner if they should become delinquent on their property taxes. Even the property that is already bought and paid for and worth a lot more than the taxes will be sold to pay for the taxes.

Farmers are particularly susceptible to the whims of the State. Generations may farm land, but a death tax that is astronomical will destroy the homestead and turn the land into a development. Or, TNC will get the land and then prohibit the next-door farmer from using non-eco friendly fertilizers.

CONTRASTING THE POLITICAL IDEOLOGIES

Bill O'Reilly recently opined in his editorial commentary that the two governor seats won by Democrats was the result of the nation's non-support of President Bush. When the failed Granholm Administration is replaced by a Republican Governor, will O'Reilly and other leftwing icons freely admit that the election was a mandate on behalf of President Bush?

Any suggestion that a state elects their governor solely on the propensity of the guy in the White House is as obscene as O'Reilly stating boldly that the "Spin Stops here!" Even those who are products of the public education system are generally intelligent enough not to align one political anomaly with another, but in this case, it was merely the status quo governorships.

Dismissing O'Reilly's profound ignorance, the citizens are also quite aware of one major fact of the Bush Presidency; they knew he was naïve' to think he could go to Washington and work with Democrats. He should have learned a valuable lesson from Jimmy Carter who was chewed-up and spit-out by his own party. In both instances, an idealist with convictions and honorable intents went to Washington to make the country better by were DNC'd.

The Democrats have no intentions of ever making the country better or providing an atmosphere for success; that is opposite of their agendas. Howard Dean, in a very humorous declaration, stated on Meet the Press that his party wants to change the image seen after Katrina.

The Democrats, represented well by the jackass, are crossing that proverbial New Hampshire covered bridge with blinders on and like the life-saving skills of Teddy Kennedy, they fail to see the life that needs to be saved from the dark, cold water.

Truly, methodology is the most important and key principle utilized to define either political party. The GOP shrinks the need for an expansive government and advocates self-reliance while the Democrats see a need to expand the government because the improvised citizens need handouts, not empowerment. The cloud that settled over New Orleans after the flood was very visible to the rest of the nation; the poor gathered and waited for someone to take care of them. Some died while waiting.

This is not what red-blooded Americans would consider a nationally progressive ideology. The extreme opposite is the case. The generational expansion that had dictated the mindset of the people between the Great Depression and today's dependent class can't go without significant scrutiny.

During the poorest episode of American history we are able to view photographs of city people standing in soup-lines waiting to be fed and standing on street corners waiting for someone to come by and hire them, even if it was only for an afternoon. In stark contrast, today's poor demand rent, utilities and cable TV be paid for by the taxpayer while they wait for their check before evacuating.

Education At Risk By C. J. Williams

Through her 1996 book, 'It Takes A Village', Hillary Clinton popularized the old proverb "It takes a village to raise a child". Though this concept may conjure up warm and fuzzy feelings of neighbors looking out for the health, education, and welfare of neighborhood children, don't be fooled. The village that Comrade Clinton was referencing is the UN's global neighborhood, which she and her philandering mate so badly want Americans to embrace, as the two of them continue clawing their way to the top of the UN political food chain.

As well as interfering with all other aspects of our lives, the UN has developed a program for educating America's children, but the program isn't based on academics. Instead, it's a social engineering program for educators, which enables them to brainwash children into adopting values other than those upon which our nation was formed. And, just for good measure, it integrates environmental awareness as an integral part of curriculum to ensure that Christianity will be replaced with Pantheism, which holds Mother Nature as the only god to be worshipped.

Their program denigrates Christian family values, and trains young minds to think in terms of peer group values and the extreme necessity of fitting the peer group's mold so as not to be socially ostracized as an aberrational misfit, locally, regionally, or globally.

In the global neighborhood, it's not about "I", it's all about collectivizing into "We" through more social engineering programs that lead to the casting off of bigotry and even a smidgeon of intolerance for people of different color, creed, culture, and sexual preferences. It's the death of autonomy; kiss individualism and uniqueness good-bye and say hello to the melding of value systems based on a conceptualized and all encompassing cultural system that glorifies social equity for all of mankind.

Because traditional Americans wouldn't willingly climb into a pot of Social Equity Soup or allow their children to do so either, the players in America's sinister shadow government of elitist Communitarians have a game plan that's been in play for years.

Their team players are none other than our "in-service" trained educators and the various other "cooperative educational services" stakeholders, including appointed business and industry personnel, now taking over our community schools as third-party managers. These socialistic suck-ups, with fists full of grants and World Bank money dangling like carrots before braying jackasses, are bringing America into compliance with the UN's mandate for "regionalizing" local community schools so that globalists can better take the helm in turning our youth into a compliant workforce for the future. Michigan, along with Wisconsin, are members of multi-state Region 5, headquartered in Chicago, so don't be lulled into a false sense of security that regionalizing relates only to a few nearby counties.

In fact, report cards in many Wisconsin school districts are already becoming regionalized on the state level, and students are being graded not just on fitting the globaloney mold academically, but also on their willingness to achieve "Lifelong Learning Skills" as compassionate Nurturers, compliant Workers, and good little world Citizens. Traditional letter grades have been replaced with "E, M, B, and U", which denote that a student exceeds, meets, or is below grade level expectations. "U" stands for an "urgent need" to meet expectations.

The UN-driven education program for our nation's schools is not only messing with our kid's heads, but is also destructively malignant to our traditional American way of life. Regardless, those who should know better are allowing themselves to be trained, through social engineering, to accept a perverted utopian concept that falsely promises light at the end of future generations' economic tunnel once everyone can learn to get along in the UN's global sandbox. And it's educators who are in that sandbox with our children right now, teaching them to build castles without Christian foundations.

It's taken years for these goose-steppers to lay the groundwork, but state "Cooperative Educational Service Associations" are gradually becoming more visible to the moms and pops who have been too immersed in financial survival to take notice of the direction their children's school systems are taking. Like homosexuals and other aberrations of society, the shadow government socialists are feeling empowered to come out of the closet because the apathetic American public poses no threat.

People like the Clintons, along with other paragons of platitudes such as Ted Kennedy and John Kerry, tell us that parents can't raise children on their own and that government, through our various educational institutions should take charge of child rearing. And, like dummies, we let them get away with it. Coupled now with that is the fact that even some courts are taking the stand that parental rights end at the school house door. Yet, we do not snarl like the wolves they've put among us; we baa like dutiful Sheeple instead.

Do yourself and your offspring a favor and educate yourself by reading the information found at the below links. Search the web for key words and phrases on your own and assimilate what you learn. Then get up on your hind legs and start pounding your chest in your little village before it becomes far too late to save your village children. ~ CJ

WHAT IS THE ROLE OF THE MILITARY WITHIN THE UNITED STATES?

Do you favor using the military to enforce a quarantine in the event of an Avian flu pandemic?

<http://www.wcbm.com/results.asp?pollID=676>

In the ruins of Louisiana we were given a glimpse of what may happen when the military is turned into a civil authority. The modern military stayed true to their mission and were very effective humanitarians. They provided sky and ground-level rescues and setup medical triage areas. They provided support when it was most needed and answered the call when civilian authorities failed.

However, the role of the military is very narrow and must remain so. The required flexibility for which they must adapt may have a weakening and devastating effect on the military component and their ability to fight a war.

We can be thankful for those dedicated to protecting us and the innocent around the world while they destroy and capture the enemy.

Often our military men and women must protect both the unable and the unwilling and our Constitution.

The poll to the left has an intriguing component to it; people are willing to let their military step-in and control the citizenry. In effect, the authority over civilians will go to those who are sworn to protect the Constitution.

The military has been known to fight and die for the Constitution during our history and it would not sit well with active military members or veterans.

The suggestion of using the military to intervene and control citizens, for whatever reason, leaves a bitter taste in the mouths of all patriots, current and former members of the military and should be an insult to any citizen.

The use of the military to force segregation within a community would be a sign of totalitarian desperation. The Model Emergency Health Powers Act mentioned in several issues of the YS, should not only give us pause, but sound alarms. The Act has clauses that effectively suspend all constitutional rights and citizen movement.

There are some saving graces that may help protect us. First, no weak-kneed liberal will serve in a military position unless there's a battalion made just for homosexuals and tree-huggers. Second, by the time the pandemic comes around, those promoted by Clinton the First will be on the federal retirement doles instead of having any power and authority over our troops. Those in the military will remain smart enough to reject the trampling on citizens' rights. But, Clinton II or some clone is waiting in the wings to assume office with sizeable comrade base of communists Democrats. We certainly can't rely on the USSC to override the deployment of troops—they're untouchable since the 109th Congress has failed to impeach the five that had changed the Constitution. If and when the liberals regain any power base, we then need to worry! Always remember: "Keep your powder dry!"
