The Republicans are useless and the Democrats are down right scary. Socialism is the transitional phase between freedom and Communism. The first group ignores the symptoms and the second group advocates the phase-in. Conservatives never hold their nose and vote; liberals never think (intelligently anyway).

In a recent California election where a Republican was elected to replace a congressman-turned-felon, the Democrats felt they would have a victory to propel them into the fall elections. The liberals have become curiously quiet after their defeat. Evidently, people realize a conservative with American values always supersedes self-serving liberal ideologies, even if it was necessary to replace someone who had failed them. The clear difference is that most conservatives wash their hands of problem children.

So, You Want Communism for the United States?

As mentioned above, the ideologies of socialism are the transitional phase to communism. There are several communist ideas that have been adopted and actually worked out quite well for us; a fair wage for a fair days labor, a forty-hour work week and collective bargaining. Some others have been more harmful.

A government mandated minimum wage prevents hard-working individuals from aspiring to higher levels.

The Democrats do just the opposite and carry the stench of poor decisions, character and behavior. Even flaws in honesty are revered by the left as the right detests all faults that go beyond an occasional indiscretion.

We need only recall what had happened to the Republicans in the House Post Office scandal, Trent Lott and Newt Gingrich. Then we can recall the cluster of idiots standing behind a president who had bold-face lied to the American people and lied under oath in a federal court.

Ok, we're all imperfect. The last guy who was perfect was crucified; evidently because God knew we weren't perfect and we needed not only some form of salvation, but a role model to help us strive to be better human beings. Then again, we are only capable of thinking in worldly terms; not in a heavenly sense.

Co-op farming may be good for buying, but not necessarily for selling. With subsidizes and government controls in-place we have indeed benefited with good food for low costs. However, farming is teetering.

As you visit any town you will find restaurants and grocery stores. Food and beverages are abundant not because of government controls, but it is so because of farmers working hard to produce what we consume, providing us our bounty.

So where does that leave us? We're caught between voting for a spineless Republican or a lying Democrat, allegedly. Generally speaking of course, most of those in Congress need to be replaced. What is unfortunate is that even though a huge majority of those in Congress have failed their constituents miserably, few incumbents are being challenged in their own primary elections. If we had more Curt Weldons and fewer Bart Stupaks, this country may have had a chance to correct its wrongs and move forward.

Instead, every positive step we take forward, those in Congress, especially the Murthatypes, drag us back a dozen. You would almost swear that Hillary Clinton, Sheila Jackson and Nancy Pelosi have a far less case of penis envy than the men in the GOP. Maybe we need to elect conservative women and liberal guys. ~JP

So, you want communism for the US of A? Ponder on some foreign countries with strong communists leanings. While the top government officials are fat little dictators, like in South Korea, the people are starving. The military is taken care of in communists nations, but the citizen is nothing more than a worker to serve the government machine.

The communists don't care if you want food, clean water or air. You just don't matter.

GOD, FREEDOM, LIBERTY AND PROSPERITY PROMOTE PEACE

God, freedom, liberty and prosperity promote peace; take away any one of the four and we're on the road to perdition. Socialism is the flood plain we must cross to get to Communism. The liberal socialists have been working on eliminating God, interfering with our freedom, dismantling our liberties and systematically reducing our prosperity one tax and debt at a time.

It is really good to see a division among the American citizens over the war against terrorism and in particular, the war in Iraq. That is an indicator that there are still very strong and spirited Americans out there who are not easily persuaded by the peace Nazis. In fact, it is so crucial that politicians face the reality that Americans take their wars so seriously, that even Hillary Clinton, the one who ordered a Lt. General never to wear a uniform on her end of the White House, has curiously come out in support of both the troops and the actions President Bush is taking on our behalf.

Among Americans, war is an action used to defend our way of life; not a method of promoting or forcing our way of life upon the unwilling. As a free nation however, it is our obligation to support and assist those who desire freedom because we know that only God, freedom, liberty and prosperity promotes peace. Freedom is never a negotiable commodity; based upon the will of the people, either freedom stands or it falls.

Unlike our liberal brothers and sisters, the various Muslim sects in Iraq and around the Middle East, are learning that no one has the right to dictate religious values to another. Like Christianity, the Muslims have several religious denominations that have a variety of beliefs, yet share the same God. Many remember the conflict between the Protestants and Catholics in Ireland over a decade ago. Not everyone agrees on what the truth is when it comes to worship, but intelligent people agree that truth remains a very personal and sacred concept.

During these trying times of forced inclusiveness and acceptance, only the strongest will have the perseverance to avoid being worn down by the constant indoctrinations. That is why it is so important for the liberals to preach their causes in the classrooms. The young who are left alone and unchecked by their responsible parents and respected adults are destined to absorb the tantalizing idolatries.

Think about the ease in which you could subjugate someone with delusions of fairness, free expression and speech and the perceived need by those who have little to be taken care of by those who have plenty. The icing on the cake is that there is no longer such a thing as responsibility; a free spirit never has puppet strings attached to it. What is most important is that those who know will handle the hard tasks of oversight and ensuring they are taken care of, so relax.

Promoting the idea that the people are best left to their own self-determination is a very conservative principle. By juxtaposing the concept of self-determination, the liberals have perverted the principles associated with a responsible and accountable assertion of the self-determination idea. The liberals have inverted the principles of God, country, family and self. The liberal idea of self-determination begins by putting self first and essentially ignoring the rest.

While the liberals have no value to the country in the way of their "service", they expect the government and wealthy to hand-out money to help them promote environmental issues, put a crucifix in a glass of urine and provide condoms, abortion and day-care for their irresponsible sexual acts. It would be interesting to watch what would happen if every American relied on hand-outs.

GOVERNMENT SHOULD NOT BE YOUR NEO-GOD

- Social dictates
- Immorality
- Suppression of religion
- Issuance of condoms
- Childhood indoctrination
- Degradation of authority
- Re-alignment of assistance
- Immunity from responsibility
- Decay of culture and tradition

Perhaps the reason for the long periods of distrust for any of the politicians around the world is the fact that they never really want to complete an objective or work tirelessly on a promise. What they do is so piece-meal that it requires constant attending and provides job-security. We were warned back in the very early 1900s to avoid electing career politicians. We were also warned in the 1920s that the United States would manifest itself into a Lawyerocracy if we weren't careful. Our ancestors, and now us, ignored those warnings.

What is provided for us in the Constitution is constantly earned. The government has no authority to take away any of our rights, that is not until recently. Both the judicial and legislative branches of our government have failed the citizenry. The judicial branch has overruled the will of the people and taken away private property for public "purpose". The legislative branch has not kept to its duties of ensuring the judicial branch protects our constitutional rights.

When we start to add up all the attacks there are on our freedom and individual sovereignty, it becomes clearer that all of the people around the world are on the road to being the servants of the elitists. We were told in the 1990s that we were experiencing the best economy in years, yet our personal debt was at an all time high and our savings were at an all time low. Those who had saved over a life-time of hard work and finally earned their Social Security checks were taxed on the Social Security income—retroactively!

The worst scenario would be creating an illusion that the economy was robust, and entice people to buy homes or refinance their existing mortgages at low interest rates, but at levels higher than the value of their homes.

When you receive your next pay stub, sit down and physically write out checks to pay your federal, state and FICA taxes. We have become so used to taking it up the ass over the years we don't even look to see how much we sent to the IRS and state treasury until we start calculating our tax refunds.

The dollar bill is no more than a piece of paper; it has no precious metal backing. Its uselessness is compounded by the fact that the money and interest is unconstitutionally controlled by a private entity called the Federal Reserve Bank.

Here is our advice for those beginning their lives and not totally indebted for the next thirty years. Save 25% of what you earn; 10% in a cash savings account and the remaining 15% in split foreign and domestic investment accounts. Never buy anything you can't pay cash for, including a home. Never use a credit card. Never borrow money. Unfortunately, taxes already pay for teachers and facilities at public colleges and universities; students should not have to pick up an additional tab, but students must be able to concentrate on their studies and not worry about juggling shifts around to pay the bills. Save smart and spend wisely.

The Patriot Act Does Matter!

By Max Adams

After the second attack on the Twin Towers, congress passed anti-terrorism legislation, which was born twins (amendment SA1562 and HR2975). Without reading all 342 pages or even entering into much debate as to its merits, "The Patriot Act" was signed by the President within a mere five weeks! To put this in perspective, consider how long congress has been haggling over the open border with Mexico issue.

The Patriot Act was described as "a bill to combat terrorism and for other purposes". Following the attack on our country, we were all made aware that our government needed extra-ordinary measures to combat this new threat. We were scared and eager to allow whatever steps were needed to ensure our safety. We worried about losing some of our rights, but reassured ourselves that a good share of the Patriot Act, which would expire in December of 2005, had Sunset Provisions limiting loss of certain individual freedoms and privacy. However, the Act was made permanent before the December deadline, and we didn't even whimper. Shame on us all!

The true Patriot Act that is worth keeping is the Constitution of the United States of America. We Patriots do have to Act to ensure our freedom from political tyranny at the hands of our elected, which is just another form of terrorism.

We Patriots have to Act when it's time for us to elect our spokesmen. It is our duty to know whom we're voting for and why before we enter the voting booth. It's a very important responsibility that helps keep our land free of tyrannical terrorism. Hail to the Patriot who takes the time to question the candidates and learn all that can be learned about them before voting!

We Patriots have to Act by standing up proudly, removing our hats and covering our hearts when our National Anthem is played or when our National Flag passes us in a parade. Hail to that one Patriot who took off his hat and proudly stood as the flag went by in the Bruce Crossing Parade even when his friends didn't this past July 4th weekend!

We Patriots must Act to show respect for our country if we wish others to respect it. We Patriots need to remember that we celebrate our country's independence not just on the 4th of July, but every day of the year. Hail to the Patriot who stands up at their local government meeting and argues against Smart Growth or any other tool of Agenda 21!

We Patriots need to Act when our country is in trouble, and these are certainly troubled times. We have a massive trade deficit with China, which we can't afford to resolve. China ships everything under their red star to us. We buy the goods, but send nothing back except our manufacturing jobs and our technology, continuing the trade imbalance. Our government, don't forget, is us and it is us who are putting us deeper and deeper into the debt of foreign nations. Hail to the Patriots who thumb their nose at foreign made goods and buy products MADE IN THE USA!

We Patriots need to Act by refusing to be told what we are "allowed" to believe. Our country was formed on the premise of Freedom of Religion – not freedom from religion. When our courts rule that we can no longer display the Cross or a Nativity Scene, they are infringing on our rights. Hail to the People of Alabama who made sure the Ten Commandments were displayed in just about every Alabama business after their Court ruled that the Ten Commandments couldn't be displayed in their courthouse!

We Patriots need to Act when every border and port we have is under the control of other countries by letting our representatives know that we want Americans in control, not foreigners. Hail to the Minutemen Patriots who did Act, peacefully and thoughtfully!

We Patriots need to Act to gain control of our Local, State and Federal Governments, our ports and our borders, and our Constitutional Rights. Patriots it's time to Act! "We will remember in November" should be our battle cry! Hail to every Patriot who, remembering which congressman supports American values and which doesn't, votes accordingly!

We Patriots need to Act when our public school systems teach our children things that are contrary to our beliefs and contrary to our Constitution. Hail to the parents who care enough to take a stand and to the little boy in Massachusetts who took a beating behind the school yard because his pro-family father, David Parker, stood up for his beliefs, as well as for his son!

We Patriots need to Act when a New York restaurant owner, who asked that his customers order in English (and offered to help them learn if they didn't know how) is being forced by a court to learn Spanish if he wants to keep his doors open. We need to Act when a firefighter, who risked his life fighting a fire in Oregon, lost his job because he couldn't speak Spanish and refused to learn it. These decisions set a dangerous precedent that must be brought to the attention of the Governors of New York and Oregon, and we really need to express our disgust for their actions whether we live in those states or not!

We Patriots need to Act to stop the implementation of the United Nation's "Agenda for the Twenty-First Century". Patriots take the time to Google "United Nations" and click on "Agenda 21". Read the whole thing. Compare what is happening in this country right now to what you're reading. It is a very real threat! Hail to the mainstream newsmen who aren't afraid to throw off their chains of silence and actually report truthfully about what's happening to us!

We Patriots need to Act on the implementation of the United Nation's Agenda for the Twenty-First Century". Patriot, take the time to Google "United Nations" and click on "Agenda 21". Read the whole thing. Compare what is happening in this country right now to what you are reading. It is a very real threat! Hail to the mainstream newsmen who aren't afraid to throw off their chains and actually report what's happening to us! "Where are these mainstream newsmen?" you ask. I don't know, but maybe they'll grow backbones before it's too late to worry about whether or not they offend someone. They offend me when they lie to me by omitting threats to my life and liberty from their broadcasts!

The "hails" to them are few, for sure, but don't back up, don't back down, don't make excuses, and don't go blindly into that voting booth. Patriot, I'm asking you, and so are your children and grandchildren, to Act before we lose this country completely. We Patriots need to Act together, quietly, firmly and with respectful dignity because supporting the sovereignty of our Republic and our Constitution, complete with its declaratory and restrictive clauses that ward off governmental tyranny and form our Bill of Rights, is truly the only Patriot Act that really matters. ~ MA

Dispelling the Notion of Controlling Any Invasive Species

The environmentalists have this preconceived notion that they can stop the advancement of invasive species. Teaching children that they can hold-back the wind may make them feel good, but in reality it's even tough enough just to hold back wind from one's own hiney.

To educate those with admirable intentions who have taken ecology or environmental classes, as opposed to conservation courses, we will begin with what the wind carries: spores, seeds, dust and millions of micro particles. Unless you put up a giant filter; they plant themselves all over the world.

Wild mushrooms, moss, trees, bushes, to name only a few, are the result of wind dropping the necessary seeds and spores. Some insects like spiders even ride wind currents.

Birds, deer, rabbits and hundreds of other mammals and reptiles eat plants that contain seeds. Seeds thrive in the natural fertilizer dropped by these roaming creatures and, as a result, seeds have relocated.

You can pull all the invasive weeds you want until your fingers drop-off, but you will not stop the natural transfer of so-called invasive species.

Moving up the food chain, waterfowl eat fish. Fish eggs cling to the pads of the webbed fowl and are transported to other bodies of water.

Frogs and turtles can just hop or crawl to another breeding area.

The next step up are the wolves, coyotes, bear and other carnivorous creatures, including owls, eagles, crows and hawks. Fully consuming an herbivore means carnivores also eat the contents of a stomach. That means, boys and girls, when a wolf craps, it, too, can plant a tree on Arbor Day.

If the truth be known, Johnny Appleseed is really nothing more than good old-fashioned manure.

Crossing the Fictional Borders

Did anyone raise an eyebrow after the 9–11 attack when no one pushed to have those on expired visas thrown out of the country? Now we are faced with a new dilemma, which was not a problem until GWB took office; illegal immigrants.

The citizens have had to take the illegals immigration problem into their own hands.

Congress has been warned, many have made promises in the past, yet we now have a pandemic on our hands.

Even though we clearly have a major problem along our borders, Congress passed NAFTA and now CAFTA. We have ties with the European Union, which is a conglomeration of elitists who are neither elected nor accountable. The EU is nothing more than a facsimile of the UN.

The primary objectives of these organizations is to disarm the citizens. The objective of the agreements are to eliminate trade barriers and effectually eliminate borders.

Our problem is not really little Juan wanting a job in one of America's meat packing plants, it's the criminals and social-maggots that run across with the people of good intent.

In all honesty, America would be a much better place if the liberals fled to Mexico and hard-working Christians from Mexico fled to America. Regardless of how you cut the bait, there is one common action we need to take; vote out all the anti-Americans.

OREGON: Home of the American Communists Movement

In the 1920s and 30s, the communists met in the State of Oregon to discuss their political strategy. What they came up with was the realization that they would never win by running as Communists. They chose instead to run as Democrats and infiltrate the Democrat Party. FDR ended up with several Commies in his administration.

The KKK emerged from the bowels of the Communist Party and disenfranchised millions of Americans. The KKK despised blacks, Jews and Catholics.

Parochial schools were fast becoming a new way to receive an education, but because the Catholics were the leaders in the movement away from public education, Oregon became a key state.

In 1922, Oregon passed the Compulsory School Law which required kids between the ages of 8 to 18 to attend "public" schools. There was a deliberate attempt to have no alternative educational systems in the State.

The Communists well knew the harm that a god could cause in their ultimate goal of de-godding America and the rest of the world.

What is most hurtful to any movement that wants to both control and undermine society is tradition, values and even private property ownership. It is also hurtful to have people think their lives are worth more than providing a level of economic stability for the state.

Oregon remains the apex of the communists ideology since approving euthanasia.

Imposing an Imposition

The truth about UP politics is that if you're a dyed-in-the-wool liberal Democrat who supports gays, abortion-on-demand, increasing taxes and are hell-bent on controlling business, industry, citizens, guns, outdoor sports or anything that people enjoy, you'll probably be tossed off the Carp River bridge. In reality, a Democrat is nothing more than a Democrat; if you support your local Democrat, you also support the liberalization of the entire nation.

Citizens in the UP are primarily very conservative... God, Family, Country and a right to enjoy life without someone scrutinizing their simple pleasures; that's probably why so many urban Yoopers own camps.

But, people from Southeast Michigan are now coming up in droves and buying up property, camps and even homes at prices most of us living in the UP can't afford. Their previous bastions of peace and quiet were the rural areas of Traverse City, Petoskey and Charlevoix.

But growth in those areas ceased the quiet.

Along with growth of an area come liberals who try to squeeze every dime possible out of anyone they can force to bend over. Our universities are excellent examples of what happens when the world goes amuck.

A majority of the young students at Northern Michigan University are still immature liberals that are easily molded by the professors. Some of the neo-liberals spent a few nights in cardboard boxes to demonstrate on behalf of the homeless.

We used to call the homeless bums and hobos, who would travel place-to-place and work when they needed money. Since urbanization of the bum has been developed through the programs of the liberals, they pretty much don't work anymore because they don't have to; they're taken care of and they can just steal their expensive packs of cigarettes.

Michigan Technological University had been THEE mining school. In the last few years they've virtually eliminated their mining programs in favor of environmental, tree-hugging programs.

At the lowest level, we have our union representatives who have far more interest in pouring money into the union coffers than they do in workers who fund their bank accounts and pay their wages.

In a surprise move, the staunchly Democrat union reps came out in favor of Kennecott Minerals mining in the Yellow Dog Plains. The stark contrast between unions and environmentalists has to give one pause when we realize that Democrats are embraced by both extremes.

Another mantra that has been sold to the voters is that the GOP candidates belong to the party of big money while the Democrats belong to the party of the working stiff. We suggest you merely do a Google search on campaign contributions to help you set that record straight.

In conclusion, if we were to do an honest assessment of what has caused the woes in America, we would quickly learn it was caused by the liberals and "do-nothing except enable" moderates.

Expectations of Privacy

Our system of government was setup with three distinct, separate, but equal branches. We own a system of check and balances to prevent one branch from overstepping its authority and bounds. As an example, the five Supreme Court justices who rewrote the Constitution should be impeached by the Senate by now.

The recent confiscation of evidence from the congressional office of William Jefferson by the FBI has the "Legislative Branch" up in arms. Their claim is that there is a distinct separation of powers.

In other words, the legislators should be exempt from public accountability and scrutiny by either the judicial or executive branch.

The only question that really needs to be answered is: "Do those who are elected by the public to serve in a public office have an expectation of privacy?"

The answer is "Outside the domain of their own home, absolutely not!"

The legal issues regarding data on computers is very similar to individuals who work for a private company. The company owns the computers and while you are on the clock, the company owns and controls what you do while working for them. You can't share the company data with outside people, nor should you. Coca-Cola had been a victim of formula theft and Pepsi alerted them of their Benedict Arnold.

While we wait for the Barrett Report to be released before the Statute of Limitations expires, we can't help but think that the citizens of the United States have absolutely no oversight authority nor any need to concern our precious little heads about unchecked government corruption.

While we are engaged in the war on terrorism, we must not be compelled to give up our rights of privacy, due process, being secure in our papers and effects without the due process of law and valid search and seizure warrants.

The bottom-line is that we should be willing to understand a need to keep additional attacks from occurring, but surrendering our rights is not an option. Admittedly we have already surrendered some of our liberties because we have reduced the areas where we have an expectation of privacy.

NAIS: Bully In Your Backyard

By C. J. Williams

The National Animal Identification System (NAIS) is a program that's being crammed down America's throat by the USDA and the National Institute for Animal Agriculture (NIAA).

The NIAA is comprised of two primary groups: (1) large corporate meat production players and (2) makers of radio frequency identification chips (RFID). It's yet another non-government organization that's found a cash-cow that can be funded at taxpayer's expense, specifically electronic surveillance of all farm animals whether they're housed on a farm or not.

And, of course, our congressmen are allowing this dictatorial invasion of our privacy to go forward as a government program without congressional debate or legislation. In fact, the Bioterrorism Act of 2002 funded the Animal ID program with a grant for the development of a written plan although the global program was hatched over a decade ago. To brainwash us into accepting the plan on the heels of the World Trade Center attack, along came Mad Cow Disease, a fear factor of sorts that was extremely minimal in scope and likely contrived.

The NAIS is purportedly intended to "protect" our food chain through a series of incremental maneuvers that will record places where animals are housed, the animals themselves, and their movements or death. However, it will protect nothing other than corporate profits and a corporate monopoly on food production.

In truth, the NAIS tramples the rights of little farm operations and drums out competition, including your neighbor who makes a little pin money by selling a few dozen eggs each week. It also tramples the rights of youngsters who want a pet rabbit or pony to call their own.

If you're thinking NAIS won't affect you since you've no critters or land to keep them on, think again; it's only one small step from accepting this invasion of privacy to finding yourself "chipped" so your movements can be monitored, too. Silence is, after all, the voice of consent!

The NAIS requires two mandatory registrations. The first commands everyone who owns even one horse, cow, pig, chicken, turkey, duck, sheep, goat, rabbit, fish, or virtually any animal that could conceivably be considered livestock to pay to register a critter's home base by 2007, including its owner's name, address and telephone number. This will be matched to Global Positioning System (GPS) coordinates in a federal database under a 7-digit "premises ID number". The GPS coordinates are used for Big Brother's satellite-assisted, "eye-in-the-sky", method of locating homes and farms.

The second mandatory registration forces owners to pay for a 15-digit ID number for each individual animal by 2008. These will also be kept in a federal database, but, while it's claimed the database will be monitored by a government agency, program management and database monitoring could be turned over to a private entity.

Regardless, even when raising animals as pets, you'll need an individual ID for each animal in order to buy, sell or otherwise acquire or dispose of them, and even to transport one across the road to Farmer Jones' stud-muffin ranchero.

However, large-scale producers can ID groups of animals raised and processed together by a single group number. This will help large corporations squeeze out even more little people who raise small numbers of animals since the cost and hassle of Big Brother's program simply won't be worth it.

In the case of non-food animals such as horses, individual IDs will be required for trips to the vet, horse shows, rodeos, fairs, or even trail rides through neighboring property.

And this, mind you, is to help keep us safe from terrorists lurking around a one-stable horse barn or ten-bird chicken coop. What malarkey!

For animals subject to individual ID numbers, the owner will be required to attach an RFID chip implanted tag to each animal and report: The animal's birth date, when its ID tag was applied, each time an animal loses its tag, each time a tag is replaced, each time an animal leaves or enters its registered premises, and an animal's slaughter, death, or "gone missing" status. These "events" must be reported within 24 hours and the USDA has plans for enforcement through costly fines, which could be levied daily, to ensure that animal owners comply even though our congressmen have enacted no law to force this upon the American people.

Not only will this asinine program wipe out farmers, it will also wipe out the rodeo circuit in rural America and devastate county fairs and 4H and Future Farmers of America projects designed to help children learn how to care for and show their animals.

NAIS will wipe them out because this totally unnecessary program that's now being forced to the American public will simply not be worth the effort or cost to comply with Big Brother's manipulative premises registration, RFID tagging, and subsequent reporting of every animal that moves to a show, county fair, rodeo, or into a stewpot on your stove.

If you're one of those who likes to buy farm-fresh eggs, a gallon of fresh milk, home-smoked hams, or half a steer directly from someone who can call every chicken, pig or cow by name, then you best step to the plate and voice your displeasure to your congressmen over this intrusion into your right or anyone's right to do so.

We're losing the right to provide for ourselves at every turn, folks, and those we elect to represent us are aiding and abetting the taking away of those rights. They're deaf to their constituency, but all ears to lobbyists working for corporations that want the upper hand in controlling our land, our water, and our ability to survive without becoming totally dependent on federal government hand-outs or, God forbid, a global government that can and will dictate how much we'll take home from the company store.

At the rate we're going, there'll come a time when future generations will have lost the knowledge of how to plant a non-bio-engineered seed and make it grow in real soil, how to till a field, shear sheep, milk a cow, or smoke bacon, and, most importantly, how to survive without total dependence on Big Brother.

We have to start taking back America...our land and our water and our right to use both as we, not the federal and state buzzards and their Gang Green cronies and smoozing corporations, see fit.

Every scumbag sitting in a chair that could conceivably have "government" pasted across its back and who is even remotely supporting the UN's Agenda 21 must be unseated as soon as legally possible. If not, it's going to be more of the same with programs and mandates even worse than this Animal ID balderdash yet to come.

In fact, as of June 6th, Big Brother forced any hay-growing operation with more than 11 full-time employees to record the field each load of hay comes from; the truck that hauls the hay; the driver's name and contact information and the same for those who help load and unload it; the name and address of the hay purchaser; and the date the hay arrives at a destination. Hay growers with fewer than 11 employees must comply by December 9, 2006.

It's all part of the "Bioterrorism Act", folks, but it's also most assuredly part of the UN's Agenda 21, a plan that will destroy our nation's spirit and the individual rights of every citizen who calls America their homeland.

The buzzards can't have it both ways!!

By Melanie K. Wooten, Iowa

Columbia Encyclopedia, Sixth Edition, 2001, states, "American vultures have no syrinx and are thus voiceless, emitting weak hisses. They feed voraciously and indiscriminately, chiefly on carrion; because they have weak beaks and lack the strength of other birds of prey, they rarely attack other than helpless animals. . . They are normally solitary but will gather in crowds to feed."

Judging by what is going on these days, from Dubai to the giveaway of our airlines to the North American Union and NASCO, this 'polite' description of our elected representatives is a more accurate description of them than the usual word that comes to mind, don't you think?

In March 2005, the President of the United States, the President of Mexico and the premier of Canada issued a joint statement setting up the Security and Prosperity Partnership of North America (SPP) and establishing the North American Competitiveness Council to increase "private sector engagement in the SPP by adding high-level business input that will assist governments in enhancing North America's competitive position and engage the private sector as partners in finding solutions."

Then these three national leaders met in Cancun, Mexico in June 2006 to firm up the North American Union and NASCO and FTAA, which makes this a TREATY!!! And, when you consider that there was a period of fifteen months between the joint statement setting up yet another quasi-government agency, you have to wonder who is authorizing payment of salaries, procurement of the websites, paper, ink — you name it!

Last time I looked, the joint statement made by the three national leaders, NASCO, NAU, FTAA, are all directly fall under the purview and responsibility of the United States Senate. Where were they? Where are they now? At no point in this whole process did anyone in Congress open their yap to complain about the usurpation of their authority under our Constitution or explain to any constituents that all of this tolls the knell on our national sovereignty! You would think they would be jumping up and down, but there is only silence.

Bottom line, folks: either our buzzards know exactly what has been going on, which is in clear violation of their oath of office, and they should not be allowed to serve as our elected representatives OR they never inquired as what has been going on, which is also in clear violation of their oath of office, and they should not be allowed to serve as our elected representatives. Pick one, folks. They can't have it both ways!!!

There have been a total of twenty PRESS RELEASES from Security and Prosperity Partnership of North America (SPP), as set out on:

http://www.spp.gov/press_releases.asp.

Do you believe that not one of those 535 congress critters, including the 100 U. S. Senators whose direct responsibility these items were and are, ever saw even one of these twenty press releases?

Do you believe that not one member of the press ever saw even one of these twenty press releases and didn't bring it to the attention of their editors and ultimately the American public?

Do these buzzards expect us to believe that? And if we do believe that, or if they were not kept apprised of the progress of this sellout of America, why are we paying them? Frankly, it is my firm belief that they are accessories after the fact and should be charged as such. If you don't believe me, read the below definition of "Accessory After the Fact":

§3. Accessory after the fact: Whoever, knowing that an offense against the United States has been committed, re- ceives, relieves, comforts or assists the offender in order to hinder or prevent his apprehension, trial or punishment, is an accessory after the fact.

Except as otherwise expressly provided by any Act of Congress, an accessory after the fact shall be imprisoned not more than one-half the maximum term of imprisonment or (notwithstanding section 3571) fined not more than one-half the maximum fine prescribed for the punishment of the principal, or both; or if the principal is punishable by life imprisonment or death, the accessory shall be imprisoned not more than 15 years. — U.S. Code, Title 18, Part I, Chapter 1, §3

Article II, Section 2 of the Constitution of the United States in part that "He [the president] shall have power, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, to make treaties, provided two thirds of the Senators present concur; ...".

The United States Senate is required under Article II, Section 2 of the Constitution to exercise ITS jurisdiction over any and all treaties, and in case anyone missed it, an agreement among three sovereign nations, one of which is the United States, falls under the definition: "Treaty, n. A formal agreement between two or more states, as in reference to terms of peace or trade."

Using the power of the presidency to bypass the deliberative process laid out by the Constitution is only permitted in times of war. Only the US Senate has the power to declare war and it has not done so; therefore, this unilateral action by the president is in reality a treaty between two sovereign nations. Only the United States Senate has the power to approve this treaty or not, as provided by our Constitution. Nothing else is acceptable or permitted under our Constitution. ~ MW

Pull plug on ACLU

JOSEPH FARAH
BETWEEN THE LINES

WORLDNETDAILY EXCLUSIVE COMMENTARY

http://worldnetdaily.com/news/article.asp?ARTICLE_ID=41691

That was the excuse the ACLU used when it targeted the Boy Scouts use of military bases in a case in which the Pentagon caved into the neo-Talibanists of secular humanism.

But the dirty little secret the ACLU doesn't want you to know is that it, too, received significant funding of its jihad against Judaism, Christianity and the monotheistic roots of Western Civilization from the federal, state and local governments.

And now that we know how easily government capitulates to the threat of lawsuits, it's time for someone to start suing over taxpayer support of this degenerate group of God-hating perverts.

It would be that easy to shut off a major funding source to the ACLU - your hard-earned tax dollars.

There are several ways Congress could do this very easily, with minor changes in the law. Since so many members of Congress - nearly all of them are on record in opposing the Defense Department's appeasement of the ACLU, maybe one of these brave souls should move to change the civil-rights statute that permits the ACLU from collecting attorney fees from governments the organization takes to court.

<http://courtzero.org/>, a website dedicated to stemming judicial activism, is petitioning Congress to change 42 U.S.C., Section 1988, of the United States Code that permits judges to award attorney fees to plaintiffs in civil-rights cases brought against local governments, thereby putting the taxpayers on the hook and oftentimes funneling public money to the ACLU. Simply changing the law so the Establishment Clause of the First Amendment would not apply could deprive the ACLU of millions of taxpayer dollars.

For instance, when the ACLU takes a city to court claiming a Christmas display violates the Establishment Clause, if the municipality loses, the city's taxpayers are often forced to pay ACLU attorneys. This law now creates an incentive for the ACLU to file ever more challenges of this kind. Do you want to know why the ACLU lawyers file these ridiculous lawsuits by the dozens? Because they get paid to do it - by you.

Another way to take the financial incentive out of these suits legislatively is by passing a law that cuts back the standing of the ability to bring Establishment Clause claims. Currently, anyone who is offended by what they see, a Ten Commandments display, a manger scene, a Christmas tree or a menorah, can bring suit.

Nowhere else in litigation is it so easy to make a claim. In most other areas of the law, you need to have a personal, direct injury.

The American Legion is calling on Congress to eliminate the financial incentives for the ACLU in Establishment Clause cases. It's about time we get behind this effort.

It's time to shut off the money supply to the ACLU. This is the first step to destroying the evil organization - putting a stake through its heart.

Why should the people of the United States, through their Congress, be giving away millions of dollars to the ACLU so that the twisted legal minds of that organization can subvert our laws and impose their agenda on the rest of us?

We can give this dangerously seditious group no quarter any longer. The ACLU can not be tolerated. It is a hate group that supports the North American Man-Boy Love Association, an organized band of pedophiles and child rapists, while attacking the Boy Scouts.

It's time to demand every member of Congress choose sides - the ACLU or the Boy Scouts.
