United Paper Workers International Union (UPIU) Vote Democrat; Democrats use recycled paper and they prohibit or restrict logging in national and state forests.

United Steelworkers of America (USWA) vote Democrat; Democrats provide incentives to use recycled steel.

United Auto Workers (UAW) vote Democrat; Democrats prefer to drive imports—check out the vehicles with the Kerry stickers.

National Education Association (NEA) vote Democrat; Democrats protect incompetent teachers, not education.

Association of Trial Lawyers of America vote Democrat; Democrats clog up the court system and waste time and money fighting for people who are guilty, drive up costs with frivolous law suits & ACLU crap.

International Brotherhood of Teamsters (IBT) vote Democrat; Democrats impose taxes, restrictions, environmental controls and support legislative initiatives that essentially slows down or halts high quality-level commerce and evidently IBT doesn't support women.

Movement Afoot to Fire All National Incumbent Representatives

For years states have been spending billions on illegal immigrants, but your representatives in DC have no idea what to do. They handed down the monster Medicare Plan that is different for each state and income level; it serves no one, but does screw those who don't sign-up or those who could have once afforded their medicine.

Bart Stupak referred to the UN as a humanitarian organization and Carl Levin is blocking the Barrett Report from being released because innocent names appear in there. Though blacking them out would be simple, it's way too complex for career politicians in DC and especially too complex for those with law degrees.

While the war on terrorism is going on, illegals are coming across the border in droves, people can't afford to drive to work or pay for medicine, liberals are eating up private property, and those who represent you find it more important to legislate more morality by prohibiting on-line gambling.

There is still the Secret Squirrel stuff going on in Congress, and no one except Curt Weldon is concerned about Able Danger and the theft of our documents by Sandy Berger. More links back to the Clintons, but they are liberal icons and highly protected by the political insiders.

The movement to fire all the national incumbents has been gaining strength and may have some merit.

When was the last time you voted for a guy that has a fire in his or her belly to support the Constitution and gain control on the big government, but had no money in their campaign coffers? When it comes to national office, probably never. No one wants to vote for a person they don't know, or at least had a chance to see on television and hear on the radio.

A significant portion of the media is perhaps the biggest contributor to the longevity of politicians. They regurgitate what ever the elected official sends them and are in awe when they stop by or call into their talk shows. What is truly unfortunate is that liberals and unions don't care who represents them, as long as they're Democrats

Right-to-Work

Don't make the mistake of thinking that unions are unnecessary or have been the direct results of lost revenue among Michigan automakers and suppliers; to the contrary—it is the result of greed and poor management. The worker seems to pay the price for the overpaid incompetents.

Collective bargaining is an idea carried over from the 20th Century. Keeping a law firm on retainer to review contracts and both defend an employee and enforce the letter of the contract makes more sense today. Unions may have become archaic and cost Americans many jobs.

One significant problem is class-envy; managers who actually know what they're doing receive huge rewards for doing good jobs while the union worker just gets paid by the hour. Imagine what the world would be like if we were all paid based on what we think we're worth.

NAIS: Bully In Your Backyard

By C. J. Williams

The National Animal Identification System (NAIS) is a program that's being crammed down America's throat by the USDA and the National Institute for Animal Agriculture (NIAA).

The NIAA is comprised of two primary groups: (1) large corporate meat production players and (2) makers of radio frequency identification chips (RFID). It's yet another non-government organization that's found a cash-cow that can be funded at taxpayer's expense, specifically electronic surveillance of all farm animals whether they're housed on a farm or not.

And, of course, our congressmen are allowing this dictatorial invasion of our privacy to go forward as a government program without congressional debate or legislation. In fact, the Bioterrorism Act of 2002 funded the Animal ID program with a grant for the development of a written plan although the global program was hatched over a decade ago. To brain-wash us into accepting the plan on the heels of the World Trade Center attack, along came Mad Cow Disease, a fear factor of sorts that was extremely minimal in scope and likely contrived.

The NAIS is purportedly intended to "protect" our food chain through a series of incremental maneuvers that will record places where animals are housed, the animals themselves, and their movements or death. However, it will protect nothing other than corporate profits and a corporate monopoly on food production.

In truth, the NAIS tramples the rights of little farm operations and drums out competition, including your neighbor who makes a little pin money by selling a few dozen eggs each week. It also tramples the rights of youngsters who want a pet rabbit or pony to call their own.

If you're thinking NAIS won't affect you since you've no critters or land to keep them on, think again; it's only one small step from accepting this invasion of privacy to finding yourself "chipped" so your movements can be monitored, too. Silence is, after all, the voice of consent!

The NAIS requires two mandatory registrations. The first commands everyone who owns even one horse, cow, pig, chicken, turkey, duck, sheep, goat, rabbit, fish, or virtually any animal that could conceivably be considered livestock to pay to register a critter's home base by 2007, including its owner's name, address and telephone number. This will be matched to Global Positioning System (GPS) coordinates in a federal database under a 7-digit "premises ID number". The GPS coordinates are used for Big Brother's satellite-assisted, "eye-in-the-sky", method of locating homes and farms.

The second mandatory registration forces owners to pay for a 15-digit ID number for each individual animal by 2008. These will also be kept in a federal database, but, while it's claimed the database will be monitored by a government agency, program management and database monitoring could be turned over to a private entity.

Regardless, even when raising animals as pets, you'll need an individual ID for each animal in order to buy, sell or otherwise acquire or dispose of them, and even to transport one across the road to Farmer Jones' stud-muffin ranchero.

However, large-scale producers can ID groups of animals raised and processed together by a single group number. This will help large corporations squeeze out even more little people who raise small numbers of animals since the cost and hassle of Big Brother's program simply won't be worth it.

In the case of non-food animals such as horses, individual IDs will be required for trips to the vet, horse shows, rodeos, fairs, or even trail rides through neighboring property.

And this, mind you, is to help keep us safe from terrorists lurking around a one-stable horse barn or ten-bird chicken coop. What malarkey!

For animals subject to individual ID numbers, the owner will be required to attach an RFID chip implanted tag to each animal and report: The animal's birth date, when its ID tag was applied, each time an animal loses its tag, each time a tag is replaced, each time an animal leaves or enters its registered premises, and an animal's slaughter, death, or "gone missing" status. These "events" must be reported within 24 hours and the USDA has plans for enforcement through costly fines, which could be levied daily, to ensure that animal owners comply even though our congressmen have enacted no law to force this upon the American people.

Not only will this asinine program wipe out farmers, it will also wipe out the rodeo circuit in rural America and devastate county fairs and 4H and Future Farmers of America projects designed to help children learn how to care for and show their animals.

NAIS will wipe them out because this totally unnecessary program that's now being force-fed to the American public will simply not be worth the effort or cost to comply with Big Brother's manipulative premises registration, RFID tagging, and subsequent reporting of every animal that moves to a show, county fair, rodeo, or into a stewpot on your stove.

If you're one of those who likes to buy farm-fresh eggs, a gallon of fresh milk, home-smoked hams, or half a steer directly from someone who can call every chicken, pig or cow by name, then you best step to the plate and voice your displeasure to your congressmen over this intrusion into your right or anyone's right to do so.

We're losing the right to provide for ourselves at every turn, folks, and those we elect to represent us are aiding and abetting the taking away of those rights. They're deaf to their constituency, but all ears to lobbyists working for corporations that want the upper hand in controlling our land, our water, and our ability to survive without becoming totally dependent on federal government hand-outs or, God forbid, a global government that can and will dictate how much we'll take home from the company store.

At the rate we're going, there'll come a time when future generations will have lost the knowledge of how to plant a non-bio-engineered seed and make it grow in real soil, how to till a field, shear sheep, milk a cow, or smoke bacon, and, most importantly, how to survive without total dependence on Big Brother.

We have to start taking back America...our land and our water and our right to use both as we, not the federal and state buzzards and their Gang Green cronies and smoozing corporations, see fit.

Every scumbag sitting in a chair that could conceivably have "government" pasted across its back and who is even remotely supporting the UN's Agenda 21 must be unseated as soon as legally possible. If not, it's going to be more of the same with programs and mandates even worse than this Animal ID balderdash yet to come.

In fact, as of June 6th, Big Brother forced any hay-growing operation with more than 11 full-time employees to record the field each load of hay comes from; the truck that hauls the hay; the driver's name and contact information and the same for those who help load and unload it; the name and address of the hay purchaser; and the date the hay arrives at a destination. Hay growers with fewer than 11 employees must comply by December 9, 2006.

It's all part of the "Bioterrorism Act", folks, but it's also most assuredly part of the UN's Agenda 21, a plan that will destroy our nation's spirit and the individual rights of every citizen who calls America their homeland. ~ CJ

What's Mine is Mine and What's Yours is Mine, Too

By Max Adams

We all know that here in the U.P. of Michigan, various entities have gobbled up all but about 15% of our land already and some of that remaining 15% is controlled with conservation easements. Now those whom you have elected to represent your best interests want to throw the States a small bone wrapped in federal dollars, to encourage you to open up your private property to recreational users.

It seems the recreational users are running out of places to “do their thing” now that more and more of our National and State Forests are being blocked off for “preservation for future generations” and to “protect” the very long and ever growing list of endangered species.

I also have to wonder how this legislation happens to be a potential amendment to the Food Security Act of 1985. It doesn't seem to have much to do with protecting our food supply, does it?

If you haven't read US Senate Bill 548 sponsored by Senator Kent Conrad of North Dakota and proposed during the 2005 109th Congress First Session or its companion bill, HR 1351 in the US House of Representatives, please take the time to do so.

As of May 22, 2006, this pending legislation, the Voluntary Public Access and Wildlife Habitat Incentive Program Act of 2005, also became known as the Open Fields Act. As far as I can determine, it's still sitting in committees in both the house and the senate and I think that's a great place to let it rot. This bill's purpose is to get you to open up your private land under an unspecified program to be administered by your state or tribal government. Just what we need – more regulations!

What's actually happening is that the federal government is figuring out that by eliminating your recreational access to the land that belongs to We The People- not “The Government”- they and the states are losing a ton of money that used to be spent by recreational users who have less and less land to hunt, fish, watch birds or otherwise engage in any wildlife activities on. Congress came up with a great way to fix this problem – they'll just use your land as a place for others to have a grand old time, and continue bringing in millions of dollars into the state and federal coffers while strangers swarm all over your property. They seem mystified that landowners aren't leaping to stand in line yelling, “Me first, me first! I want to let everyone use my land!”

It should seem strange to you that after tying up tens of thousands of acres of public land, adding more and more restrictions on recreational use, and closing down access to OUR Public Land, they now want to throw you a peanut and use YOUR PRIVATE LAND for public recreation. Kind of reminds me of a couple of kids playing: “You can't play with my toys because you might break them – let's invite everyone over to play with your toys”.

It is absolutely mind-boggling that hunters and fishermen are actually supporting this one! They think they're being gifted with new places to hunt and fish when in reality they are being used to open the door for more regulation of private land.

Guys and gals, think very hard about this one. If you buy into this nonsense, what you are really saying is that it's all right to be forced out of the public lands that WE THE People already own in common and have traditionally enjoyed for generations, and encourage more government control of private property.

I'm a hunter, too, but I'd rather fight to maintain the use of the Public Land that We The People already own to hunt on and protect the rights of my own land. We've got to quit backing up now!

Of course good ole Debbie Stabem-now is co-sponsoring this legislation. Several others who have sworn to represent your best interests in Michigan support it, including Republican Joe “Anti-Gun” Schwarz who is hoping to hold his District 7 seat in the Michigan House of Representatives. Now why would someone who is opposed to guns support federal legislation that would open up private property to hunters?

I will remember this one in November! Will you? ~ MA

“Me first, me first! I want to let everyone use my land!”

Agenda 21's Assault on America

By C. J. Williams

Last spring, an unidentified employee of the Houghton Daily Mining Gazette who penned an editorial rebutting my op-ed piece regarding proposed anti-bullying in schools legislation lambasted me for being "badly off the mark".

Actually, the proposed Michigan legislation is a global gay right's initiative and also an offshoot of countless other initiatives emanating from the United Nation's Agenda 21, a plan for the 21st Century that a vast majority of John and Jane Doe citizens know extremely little or nothing about.

However, as Agenda 21 continues to be implemented in our nation, we're going to see all sorts of attempts at societal changes that will affect virtually every facet of our lives, destroying freedoms of choice and constitutional rights along the way. It's designed to undermine traditional family values, Christian values, and all individual rights. Quite a task you may be thinking, but the blueprint was designed in such a way decades ago that Agenda 21 could be slowly and strategically implemented and then kicked into high gear at the turn of the 21st Century without our being any the wiser.

Agenda 21 is a forty-chapter document containing policy recommendations regarding how you, your family, and all who make up a global society are to be socially engineered and reorganized around the principles of environmental protection, social equity (evenhandedness), and what is referred to as "sustainable" economic development. Agenda 21 is, in fact, synonymous with Sustainable Development.

In order to ensure compliance with the principles of Agenda 21, we are to be managed by government rather than us managing government, as Americans have had a Constitutional right to do since our nation was founded. Regardless, government's power over the American people is growing stronger each day, and we are being socially engineered to accept it. In reality, we are becoming like a flock of sheep that's easily herded where the "act locally/think globally" herders want us to go both mentally and physically; a nation of Sheeple herded by traitorous wolves in sheep's clothing.

Perhaps knowing this will help you better understand why it seems that conservatives are constantly being drawn into a debate with the liberal far left regarding the value of Christian principles and constitutional rights that have sustained our country for over 200 years.

While campaigning for the presidency, John Kerry made a comment about our country needing to get a good mark on the "global report card". He was referring to an incremental five-year judgmental review of progress being made toward implementing Agenda 21 in America.

We're now into the second marking period since Agenda 21 was kicked into high gear at the turn of the century, and with every year that passes more and more of our individual rights and freedoms, as well as our national sovereignty, will be dissolved. In fact, it seems lately that the facilitators, including some state governors and congressmen, can't move fast enough. But, as Agenda 21 is becoming more transparent, haste is imperative before citizens catch on to what Sustainable Development fully entails.

This is happening on a global basis in every country, large and small, yet mass media will not break the bond of silence and expose the truth of the matter. However, money is a great motivator when it comes to buying silence.

Some who've been tracking Agenda 21 for years believe that extremely wealthy members of the Bilderberg Group and Trilateral Commission are behind it, but to date no one has been able to penetrate the secrecy surrounding the group or its meetings. Agenda 21 does, though, seem to be fueled by great power and tremendous wealth, and no doubt a lust for even more power and wealth is the driving force of those who want to gain control of all the world's resources, including the workforce. And, of course, our nation's tremendous resource wealth will be the last fruit plucked because American's still have Constitutional rights.

Many of those rights were compromised through the attack on the New York Trade Center and Pentagon, which successfully created a fear factor that reverberates to this day. A growing number of American people now doubt this was solely a terrorist attack, partly because a declassified government document, dubbed the Northwoods Document, indicates that faking terrorist attacks was thought of to create support for a war against Cuba in the early 1960's.

Regardless, the events of 9-11 have played a large part in the American public's willingness to have their rights and freedoms compromised in the name of homeland security. But it is these rights and freedoms that stand in the way of fully implementing Agenda 21 in our nation, including dictates governing every single facet of our life.

In effect, America is being "re-developed" through a contrived scheme based on utopian ideology, computer modeling, and a notion that human nature can be manipulated to form a perfect society where all live in peace and harmony...a two class system comprised of a socially lobotomized proletariat satisfied to live out their lives on barely sustainable crumbs that can be spared by wealthy and powerful elitists. And it's being orchestrated globally, nationally, regionally, and locally without citizens' knowledge or consent because no freedom loving American in their right mind would ever consent to anything like this.

One of the most visible signs of government's power over people is the assault on private property rights. The slow and deliberate transition to land use policies that dictate how we can use our public and private land and all its resources has been quietly and skillfully guided by US government agencies and non-government organizations (NGOs) that are supportive of Agenda 21. They are bringing us the Wildlands Project, which will make as much as 50% of America off limits to all but a very limited few.

Less visible are the social engineering initiatives that are undermining our nation's moral fiber and substituting it with a great deal of tolerance for what many Americans find repulsive. In good part, this is easily being done because communists and their sympathizers have been successful in achieving goals that became of part of the Congressional Record in 1963.

Among the 45 goals read into the Record are these: Infiltrate the churches and replace revealed religion with "social" religion. Discredit the Bible and emphasize the need for intellectual maturity, which does not need a "religious crutch"; Eliminate prayer or any phase of religious expression in schools on the grounds that it violates the principle of "separation of church and state"; Get control of the schools. Use them as transmission belts for socialism and current communist propaganda. Soften the curriculum. Get control of teachers' associations. Put the party line in textbooks; Eliminate all laws governing obscenity by calling them "censorship" and a violation of free speech and free press; Break down cultural standards of morality by promoting pornography and obscenity in books, magazines, motion pictures, radio, and TV; Present homosexuality, degeneracy and promiscuity as "normal, natural, healthy"; Discredit the family as an institution. Encourage Promiscuity and easy divorce; Emphasize the need to raise children away from the negative influence of parents. Attribute prejudices, mental blocks and retarding of children to suppressive influence of parents.

Overt and covert supporters and/or facilitators of the Agenda 21 plan, who may or may not have knowledge of its true intent, belong to and are active in both political parties that dominate America. Other willing supporters, who deceptively entice others along, are entrenched in certain government agencies and non-governmental environmental organizations that are partnered with the IUCN (World Conservation Union).

And, whether you choose to believe it or not, Agenda 21, all chapters and verse, are being implemented in our nation by some very far left-leaning American leaders at all levels. And that is truth, not fictionalized guesswork gibberish that's badly off the mark. ~ CJ

What's Politically UP? By J. C. Powers

The primary elections are over and in many circles the Democrat incumbents have won their spot on the November ballot. What is most disturbing is that in the 110th State Representative District, the people have chosen a Democrat in what could be regarded as the single most intriguing display of political ignorance in the history of the 110th District. Please stand-by as our sleuth reporterette, CJ, uncovers some intriguing information on the Dem's 110th District Chosen One.

In the same area, a letter from a retired Air Force security NCO to the Mining Gazette lambasted Bart Stupak for his anti-American stance on the floor of the U. S. Congress. Mr. Stupak was compelled to write a response in defense of his partisan anti-American posturing. Like Joe Biden and Hillary Clinton who are serving on the US Senate Armed Services Committee, Bart Stupak is also militarily ignorant.. We here at the YS are confident that most of those veterans who warmly receive Stupak at their posts also understand why it has become necessary to recall 2,500 Marines because recruitment numbers are down. Aside from their effective removal of the testicles from America's young men and ovaries from the young women of military age, the hostile Democrats are also quite proficient at undermining our efforts against terrorism. Stupak is a shinning example of what happens when an incompetent person is given more information than they can possibly handle. Stupak may indeed be an idiot; but he's your idiot.

Shall we just reelect Stupak to show-off our overwhelming tendency to comply with the famous line from Forest Gump --- "Stupid is as stupid does"?

Elsewhere around the UP there's definitely a lack of good, qualified candidates to serve the Yoopers in Lansing. In the 109th District, the Democrat candidate, mentored by his drunken cohort, may, unfortunately, turn out to be the most desirable candidate. The GOP candidate arrived from LA, CA about ten years ago and has been very successful at riding his family's shirttails in the business world. In these uncertain times, we don't need an uncertain person representing us. The Democrat candidate for the 109th is a retired public school teacher; not a disqualifier by any stretch; but over the last six years he's been the handler of the out-going state representative who now has a personal-injury accident that coincides with one of two drunk driving arrests under his belt since taking office. This merely indicates a lack of adult supervision.
