IMMIGRATION THEORY

In September 1994, hundreds of Cuban refugees aboard the USS Ashland in the Florida Straits await transport to Guantánamo Bay, Cuba.

The INS forcibly takes Elian Gonzalez in 2000.

Appreciative Refugee!

... And they want to work here and qualify for citizenship? KOA!

New Contract with America

Remember when our last statesman, Newt Gingrich, came up with the Contract with America and filled both the House and Senate with Republicans? It's time they do it again and here is our take on it:

- Require all illegals to report to a border office to register and return to their country. Anyone who has failed to do so by January 1, 2007 will be guilty of a felony, lose all hopes of citizenship and no longer qualify for a worker's visas.
- Children born in the US to illegal parents are still illegal and must be sent to their homeland.
- Pull completely out of the UN and kick the UN out of the US.
- Prohibit taxing taxes, e.g., gas & cigarettes.
- Follow the Constitution and prohibit states from taxing US products.
- Follow the Constitution and require reconsideration votes on all vetoes.
- Prohibit any taxpayers' money to go to any entity except for a state or local government located within the US.
- Take crude oil off the stock market.
- Search patent records to see who holds patents on fuel efficient engines.
- Return to the gold and silver standard.
- Kick the World Bank out the United States and sever any ties.
- Require all environmental groups to register with one mega group. If one of them loses tax exemption; they all do.
- Ignore the Democrats; they're losers.
- Identify and separate from internationalists and other moderates.
- Abolish CAFTA, NAFTA, GATT, FTAA and all other treaties that jeopardize the sovereignty of the US.
- Prohibit environmental groups and corporate (non-family) farm subsidies.
- Release the Barrett Report; full and complete.
- Require a Grand Jury investigation of Able Danger obstruction, and Sandy Berger.
- Tie-up loose ends on other criminal acts.

Nowadays, Partisanship Equates to Patriotism

The political evolution which occurred during the 1990s has provided the American citizen with a clearer vision of what is left and what is right. The formerly obscure forks in the partisan road has become so wide spread, that even a child with no political interest can determine which road is which.

The clear divisions that are evident in the capitols all across America, including in DC, will eventually be a huge benefit to the citizens. Once the elected political representatives realize that their constituents have no interest in consensus or any negotiations with the other side, the system will work.

The Republicans need to tell the Democrats to sit down and shut-up. The Democrats are a product of the least productive and most costly segment of society. With no regard for those who work, save, believe in God. Democrats hate both independence and sovereignty, the Democrats have no place in a free society.

LGBT: Lesbians, Gays, Bisexuals and Transgenders

Granholt opens mansion, administration to LGBTs

By Jan Stevenson

LANSING - Governor Jennifer Granholt and her staff hosted an afternoon tea gathering of about 100 LGBT leaders and activists at the Governor's mansion on April 19. This was the first time a sitting Michigan governor invited a group of LGBT people to the mansion, and many in attendance felt the historical significance of the event.

"From our community standpoint it was a great thing for all of us to be together under the governor's roof. It was an exciting and energizing thing," said Jeffrey Montgomery, executive director of the Detroit-based Triangle Foundation. "We were invited into the house of a friend and I think that is very, very important."

Nearly 20 of the governor's staff joined her on the stage in the mansion's large, dramatic living room. Granholt introduced each one, and made a point of acknowledging that four of her full time staff are gay men, including her chief of staff John Burchett, and Jim Stokes, the director of her Detroit office.

"You know you have a friend in the Governor," said Granholt. "I campaigned on my vision of One Michigan, and the LGBT community is part of that. I want to talk about some important issues, for example I think we all want to amend the Elliott Larsen Civil Rights Act to include sexual orientation, but that would be very difficult with the current legislature."

Kenn Bing asked the governor to talk about her position on second parent adoption rights for same-sex couples. He and his partner are raising a little girl, but he explained that only his partner has parental rights because they were unable to adopt her together.

"It is my position that whatever is in the best interests of the child is what should be our priority," said Granholt. Just then, Bing's three-year-old daughter, Destiny, ran up to him and, while clinging to his leg, smiled up at the governor. "It is clear where this little one's bond is. It is always important to remember that this is about the children."

Johnny Jenkins, co-founder of the Black Pride Society, said that although he appreciated the historic significance of the event, he sees it as only a first step on a long road.

"I thought it was necessary on her part to mend some fences with us," said Jenkins, who said he still feels some skepticism because of the governor's hesitance to come out publicly in 2004 against Prop. 2, the anti-marriage constitutional amendment. "I think inviting the statewide leaders of our community into her home was great symbolism, but we come from a community that is ready for action and commitment from our allies. We don't need lukewarm allies - political or economic. I think she still has some work to do with us. I look forward to the next invite."

"I believe it was the first time I heard her say that the LGBT community is part of her One Michigan approach," said Leslie Thompson, executive director of Affirmations Lesbian and Gay Community Center in Ferndale. "I was also impressed that she appointed so many LGBT people on her staff."

Thompson also considered the gathering a beginning, and hopes that the governor will become a more active leader for LGBT rights. "I guess I am still looking for a more vocal stance on our issues outside of the comfort zone of the LGBT community. I would have liked to have seen her as passionate about Proposal 2 as she was about the Casino issue in Detroit," said Thompson, who mentioned that the governor will be attending the Affirmations Big Bash this weekend.

Although this was not a political event (the governor may not campaign from the official residence), it was hard to miss that Granholt is facing a tough challenge from Republican Dick DeVos this election year.

"I think everyone leaving that event realized that this upcoming election is a very significant one for our community," said Montgomery, who strongly supports Granholt for reelection. "Everyone is going to have to be very committed to maintain her in office."

"I think it was a great thing to do," said Barbara Murray, executive director of AIDS Partnership Michigan in Detroit. "It's pretty clear from the polls right now that she's in for a tough race. When you are in that kind of situation it makes sense to reach out to your natural constituency."

Murray said that she was surprised that Granholt had not mentioned HIV/AIDS in her remarks. "As an AIDS service provider, I wish she had said something about AIDS. In the last six months we have seen two AIDS agencies go under, and each time that happens our client load goes up. I look to the governor for support on HIV & AIDS."

Granholt will be the Grand Marshall at AIDS Walk Michigan this fall, said Murray.

What Is Wrong With Us

By Melanie K. Wooten

You will notice I didn't ask a question. I didn't ask a question because I believe I know what is wrong with us. That being said, I also believe I know how to correct it.

Our great Nation was founded on TRUST, pure and simple. Our national motto is "In God We Trust". The simplest example that is common to most Americans is we could TRUST the guy to our left to stop at a red signal. We have a green light; we see it; we proceed through it. No problem. There, we have saved roughly five minutes per intersection. No more.

We could TRUST those who are around us to be healthy and not bearing infectious or contagious diseases. We moved freely in our jobs and our social life because we could TRUST we would not be exposed to something that might delay or stop us from achieving our own objectives. And since those around us had pretty much the same objectives as we, the system worked. We saved incalculable down time because of diseases that ravaged those not fortunate enough to be born in America where we have a vaccine against or a cure for almost everything. No more.

We could TRUST our legislators to do what they took an oath to do. We could be confident that they would honor that oath, and that would leave us free to pursue the happiness referred to in our Declaration of Independence. And they could achieve the same happiness by doing what they like to do: preserve, protect, and defend our Constitution. No more.

This whole system of TRUST in one another, this reliance on each to honor that single commitment we all had in common, to cite the Hippocratic Oath: "First, do no harm", has evaporated. It has become lost to GREED, pure and simple. No longer do we TRUST one another. We cannot! We cannot even afford to TRUST our fellow Americans to stop at a traffic signal! And given what our legislators have done to Rule of Law, we certainly cannot afford the luxury of trusting our elected representatives and our judges to defend and protect us against all enemies, foreign and domestic, as they swore before God. No more.

All of these corrective and remedial actions for the simple erosion of TRUST consume vast amounts of time. All the time we used to spend on "life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness" must now be used to merely stay afloat in this sea of regulations supporting the GREED of a few. All the time we were able to spend making our life and the lives of those who depended on us simpler must now be spent on finding more time to pay the confiscatory taxes laid upon us by GREEDY legislators. No more.

The ultimate travesty about this situation is loss of the TRUST of our children. We carefully and with great foresight established public education, and we left it locally controlled because we could TRUST that we Americans could and would see to the care and education of our children. This worked because we could TRUST our educators to teach our children who we are and how we got to where we are, and what our children would need to achieve the same "life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness" we had. No more.

In our more innocent time, we could TRUST in and pray to a Supreme Being, God, Divine Providence, to lead us to a better life. We formed our entire government on the principle that our "inalienable rights" were God-given; that we did not receive them from a monarch, or from any rulers; that our government would derive its "just powers from the consent of the governed." And this left us with the time to achieve our objectives, and pursue that happiness our Founding Fathers referred to in that most wondrous of documents, our Declaration of Independence. Now, we are not allowed to acknowledge this divine guidance, much less pray to the Being who put us here. No more.

Until about the 1970s, there were more than enough American jobs for any American who wanted to work. And these were jobs requiring varying levels of education and experience, permitting those fortunate enough to go to college to be paid commensurate with their education as well as affording good employment for those of us who chose not to attend or could not afford to attend college. It was during the earlier decades of the 20th century that the access to benefits was provided by employers, at first just to union members, and then to those who did not work for businesses under collective bargaining agreements. It was called competition and the system worked. The standard of living in America was the envy of the world. No more.

*****

We have begun the turnaround. We have noticed that all is not right in our America. We have begun to look around at what has happened over, say, the past forty years that has taken us from having TRUST in our citizens and institutions to where we are now. And we don't like what we are seeing. We know we must restore the lost TRUST: TRUST in our fellow citizens to stop at those red signals; TRUST in ourselves to do what is best for America and Americans; TRUST in our education system to do just that: educate our children; TRUST in our government to operate within the parameters set by our Constitution.

We must restore TRUST to our market places, our shopping centers, our churches, our streets, and all other places where we have the right to assemble. Remember what I said: America worked because we could TRUST. And if we do not restore the TRUST, we are doomed to watch our slow slide into obscurity and, finally, to being a footnote in history. I cannot let that happen to my America; we should not let that happen to our America. We must unite, stand up and shout out to these individuals and institutions who would destroy our Nation and our way of life what I said many times here: "NO MORE!"

All of these corrective and remedial actions for the simple erosion of TRUST consume vast amounts of time.

Gas and oil fuel our economy and are direct links to the livelihood of American citizens. Oil companies say the demand remains steady. They fail to note that with high gas prices there is only nominal use for pleasure; what they need to do is use the current fuel usage as a baseline for need.

There is only one way we can resolve our gas crisis; the United States citizens must completely take over the oil industry. Remove oil from the stock market and hire contract employees to operate the drilling and refining operations. All the proceeds will be used for exploration and to maintain our roads.

<http://www.gaspricewatch.com/usgastaxes.asp>

The federal government collects $.18.4 per gallon tax. Additionally, Michigan, for example, charges $.19 per gallon tax on gasoline and $.15 per gallon diesel. Michigan also tacks on an additional $.00.875 per gallon for an environmental regulation fee. We're not done yet. Michigan than adds a 6% sales tax.

How can states help with the oil crisis? First off, it should be up to the oil companies to maintain any environmental standards and to provide clean-up. Next, eliminate all gas taxes until the per barrel price drops below $40.00 per barrel.

The government has bureaucrats all over the world that have no objective other than their own job security and serve no other purpose. FEMA anyone?

Growing Weary

At $10.00 per hour a person has to work 6 hours for 18 gallons of gas; at $6.00 per hour a person has to work 9 hours. This is before taxes.

The crap above showing oil prices in today's dollars is a virtual scam. What drives America is our mobility and face-to-face networking. What the oil companies call demand is, in reality, need.

Keeping our eye on the motivations that seem to permeate our way of life, it seems that those who live in rural areas are punished the most, including the farmer. There is an intentional movement to congregate people into metropolitan areas.

Think of all the restrictions that have been incrementally imposed upon the US citizen. There are plenty of long-term annihilations of our rights.

Here are only a few:

- Smoking
- Over-the-counter (OTC) drugs
- Land use
- Sporting activities
- Christian worship
- Who we are permitted to elect: $$
- Closed access for grievances against the government

Invasion of the Morality Snatchers

Is it really the place of public schools to teach sex while ignoring such small details such as balancing and reconciling a check book, investing, buying, negotiating, job-seeking, interviewing and maintaining a household?

What the liberals are really most interested in is indoctrinating your children and grandchildren. The liberals iterate to be accepting of alternative life-styles and to find one's own sexuality. The earth, Gaia, is one big living and breathing entity, and we all evolved from monkeys.

God Himself is not only irrelevant, but also outlawed in public schools.

Liberal organizations involved in the decimation of traditions and culture are given the largest chunk of the college and university activity fees. The liberals proclaim academic freedom as long as it doesn't go against their own ideas and indoctrination.

Without a doubt there are only two ways to tell if a person is worth electing in today's political climate; they must be both pro-Second Amendment and pro-life. Ectopic pregnancy aside, abortion is a stain on the moral fabric of the United States. Initially, abortion was directed toward the lower-income, least productive citizens, but now it focuses on middle and upper-income women.

It really doesn't matter whether you're pro-life or pro-abortion, those issues will be decided in the courts and by citizens, not by or within the legislative bodies. But, what that issue reflects, along with gun ownership by law-abiding citizens, is both the conscious and character of the person seeking office.

If a person is willing to disarm citizens from lawfully owning a firearm to protect themselves, their families and their nation from tyranny, they are the seekers trying to impose tyranny. An unbridled willingness to denounce the sanctity of life proves them to be both tyrannical and godless.

Politics Bites—Targeting by the Feds for Show

WASHINGTON — Immigration agents arrested seven executives and hundreds of employees of a manufacturer of crates and pallets Wednesday as part of a crackdown on employers of illegal workers.

Authorities raided offices and plants of IFCO Systems in at least nine states, the culmination of a yearlong criminal investigation, law enforcement officials said.

U.S. Immigration and Customs Enforcement agents arrested seven current and former IFCO Systems managers on charges they conspired to transport, harbor and encourage illegal workers to reside in the United States for commercial advantage and private financial gain, said Glenn T. Suddaby, the chief federal prosecutor in Albany, N.Y., where some arrests were made.

ICE spokeswoman Jamie Zuieback confirmed an unspecified number of raids and arrests, but declined to provide additional details because the investigation was continuing. One official, speaking on condition of anonymity because numbers were still being tallied, said the arrests were in the hundreds.

Wind-fall Profit Tax & Other Excellent Penalties

Senator Carl Levin (D—Michigan) has proposed imposing a wind-fall profit tax on oil companies. No one yet mentioned that the grotesque profits gleaned by big oil are taxed and the federal government alone received half of their profits. Now we ask you, who would put the profits to better use, big oil or the government?

Chances are, if you own a diverse stock portfolio, 401K or other type of investment account, you own some shares of big oil. The fact that people profit is not a reason to penalize them or you.

In the State of Michigan, gas stations are required to purchase gas with a 9.9% pre-paid sales tax.

When the suppliers of gas need to calculate the base price per gallon, they subtract the state and federal tax (.19 and .18.4 respectively) to come up with a base price. Once the base price is calculated, they then add back in the federal tax, which is then taxed at the 9.9% sales tax, or 16.8 cents per gallon Michigan sales, due on delivery to the stations.

Because the cost of gas is going up, the pre-paid tax is going from 9.9% to 12.7% on May 1. The pre-paid tax was imposed to prevent gas stations from not paying the required taxes - many were just skipping giving the state their portion.

The gas tax is just like the tobacco tax; add the price of the product, plus .19 cents state, plus .18.4 federal, plus 0.875 cents environmental fee AND then add a 6% sales tax to the whole kit and caboodle.

The actual cost of a gallon of gas is around $1.99 before taxes and other charges are imposed. There is also 7.5 cents per gallon transportation fee added to the cost (to Negaunee). The final cost per gallon to the gas station owner is $2.89 per gallon.

A final tidbit; the State of Michigan makes $30,000,000 (million) for every ten (10) cent increase in gas prices. On the other side, Congress wants to launch yet another investigation into price gouging allegations, but neglect investigating their own taxing of citizens into oblivion.

Assessing the Economy

It may be a difficult task for the average American to properly assess the economy. There is only one way to tell if you're doing well economically; your change bucket. If your change bucket has seen little growth, as far as your concerned the economy is failing. If the change bucket is filling up rather steadily, you're doing well.

In other areas of our lives, where products and services are becoming more expensive because of astronomically high fuel costs, we should only have a minor concern. In the long run the Big Oil people will suffer greater losses than we can dream.

The economy is a main consideration among voters and high gas prices gives the impression to most voters that the economy is not doing well.

During the upcoming mid-term elections there will be significant changes in the political makeup. Keeping gas prices in mind, there are also some other issues that will upset those who lay claim to the conservative-base.

Illegal immigration, over spending, unchecked arrogance, compromise and an overall failure to represent their conservative base...many Republicans will be defeated in 2006. Even though much of that will be forgiven if promises to do better are made, it will not offset the view of America's economic woes.

In their effort to punish the GOP for failing to pass a measure to drill in ANWR and to fund alternative fuels research, Big Oil better be aware that what they're doing may come back to bite them.

Here is how the election in November 2006 will turn out. The Republicans, who failed to properly represent their base and currently hold office, will not be challenged in the primary by real patriots. Conservatives seldom hold their nose and vote, so their base will not be there to support them. The Democrats will win several seats and may take over both the US House and Senate.

The Democrats, who are very strong supporters of the environmentalist groups, will pass legislation that will stop further gas and oil exploration within the US and its territories. Gas taxes will increase in all Democrat led states and nationally. They will have further restrictions on internal combustion engines, forcing the auto makers to provide higher GPM ratings as well.

U. P. Politics; All Politics are Local

When it comes to having an educated voting-base, the UP is way behind the curve. The UP media have not been overtly responsible and choose to read and print news off the AP wire or just simply regurgitate what the politicians in office send them. If we do it the same way, chances are the results will be exactly the same.

"If we do it the same way, chances are the results will be exactly the same."

Another truism, especially regarding UP politics, is that those who are the most qualified seldom desire to run for an office. Instead we end up with incompetent and often immoral people running and winning offices in the UP.

The same appears to be holding true in many of the state races in the UP, but as usual it is restricted to the Democrat side of the ticket. There will be several new faces entering the various races throughout the UP this year, on both sides. It is up to the voter to either keep voting the way they always have, or accept the awesome responsibility of actually knowing who or what they're voting for each time they enter a vote.

Waiting for the Anti-Christ; Mabus

<http://www.mabnet.org/home2.html>

Michel de Nostredame; Nostradamus is said to name the third Anti-Christ. Mabus. Several speculations have been made on who this third Anti-Christ is, but in Revelations, the Beast may be the predecessor to the arrival of Mabus.

There is a great deal of speculation, and often one or perhaps two people are associated with Mabus and the names may be combined.

The mark of the beast is 666. That could mean the 6th letter of the French alphabet, which is F, just like in English. The initials of FFF.

But the mark of the beast, 666, appears on the head of the beast and those marked with his, hers or its sign. The UN is thought to be an agent of the Anti-Christ, so maybe the Man and the Biosphere US is really Mabus.

The Elites vs. We The People

By Nancy Levant

Intellectualism has always been problematic because it creates classism. On the one hand, highly educated people are needed, but as the sheeple know, most collapse immediately into the same psychology as new money – a superiority-based arrogance.

Since 5 “supreme” people in our entire nation declared the demise of U.S. private property rights, and since this was not an issue upon which the nearly 290 million American citizens were permitted to vote, “appointed” power becomes dangerously problematic. Most people are now realizing that America is no longer operating Constitutionally, but rather according to the dictates and profits of elitist intellectuals. Historically speaking, freedom is, and always has been, based upon land and gun rights.

I have spent many years responding to irate Americans. And the question that is repeated is, “Why are they doing this to us?” And, of course, the short answer is globalism. The enhanced version includes the central banking system/cabal. Between the two are the United Nations and Agenda 21, the World Bank, the World Trade Organization, the Federal Reserve Corporation, the International Monetary Fund, national cleansing, monitoring, profiling, and databasing, and high-tech genocidal technologies.

The problem not only for American people, but also for people of all nations, is that we are not privy to truth. All humanity, in fact, lives in a perpetual state of propagandistic, high-tech, educational, and religious manipulation. Mass media is the greatest tool and weapon that the globalists have used, to date, to fuel the ignorance and apathy of human kind. The question of “why” is simply said – money and power. Sadly, it is, in fact, money and power that are accomplishing totalitarian and global domination.

Intellectualism is a quandary, for what has it given mankind? Mankind is sicker than it has ever been. Mankind is witnessing the demise of freedom and liberty on a global scale. Mankind is angrier than it has ever been, and on a global scale. Entire continents and nations suffer endlessly and to no avail. Poverty is widespread and greater in percentage than in any other time in human history due to debt – from national debt, orchestrated war debt, state debt, local debt, to personal debt. This is an important concept for Westernized people to understand. If you carry a mortgage, a car payment or two, and credit card debt, you are completely, functionally, totally, and this is key - permanently bankrupt.

Our government has been strategically bankrupted to meet very specific and global ends and means. Elites, their puppet politicians, their central banking systems, their bureaucracies, and their corporations created our national bankruptcy to disassemble our Constitutional government. The intellectual elite, the ones who now determine the fates of entire nations, and ours in particular, are the world’s wealthiest people. They are primarily white multi-millionaires and billionaires. These are the people who own the corporations and philanthropic organizations that select and elect politicians - globally. In America, an honest vote was corrupted decades ago and is now only a token tradition. The candidates of elite choosing are our only options. Either political party – the elite globalists win.

Intellectualism has degraded into elite commissions, councils, and groups who meet behind closed doors to implement illegalities that ensure the continuance and growth of their power and wealth. In truth, the world is encased in a class war between the educated super-rich and the rest of humanity. The aristocrats, who absolutely believe they are superior beings, are subjugating humanity and turning all into debt-ridden and relentlessly taxed and landless tenants.

It is fascinating to watch as these elites attempt to explain to the world their intellectual schemes for globalism. It is fascinating to watch C-SPAN as members of U.N. commissions, The Brookings Institute, and heads of state wince and squirm through televised appearances. Their lies and arrogance demonstrate not only their contempt for humanity, but also their fear. And this is why they have given so much of our tax dollars and corporate profits to genocidal research, new paramilitary groups, orchestrated wars, and weapons technology. They are very fearful, for they know exposure is forthcoming, as is pure hell on Earth, which they strategize to a tee.

Our juncture is upon us, and theirs upon them. Their greed and arrogance is dark and pathological, but their ultimate missions are also to be enacted upon every man, woman, child, and acre on Earth. What we are witnessing is the expression of an absolutely mad intellectualism that grew from the fears of the world’s richest people. It’s them and our stolen money against us.

It’s their globally funded ecology and post-normal, grant funded scientists against our rights to own private property, to reproduce and have children, and to co-exist with our planet. Many of these scientists anxiously await the media darling called “pandemic.” Many await the perfected and manufactured super viruses to help that dream come to fruition.

So, the question of the value of contemporary intellectualism and “expertise” stands directly before the world’s masses, especially as we are the thorns in the sides of the world’s elites. Perhaps there are simply too many of us to ensure their continuance as undisputed leaders. And we, too, have fallen victim to ourselves in our continued support of those we have also considered to be “superior.” Maybe it’s time for the intellectuals to stop waggin’ the dogs – meaning us. Maybe it’s way past time to pack up and bite back.

Seriously, folks, if they are crazy enough to believe they can micro-manage all of nature – meaning every living creature - plant and animal - then don’t you think we’re looking at severe and extreme mental illness, to coin another one of their global initiatives? Who, exactly, should be “screened” for pathological arrogance, for oppressive over-mastering including genocidal ideations? Every American school child and citizen, or pathological liars who smile at us on television while knowingly lying and planning to steal freedom and rape the planet of its natural resources for MORE profit?

As a fellow patriot so aptly stated, when someone delivers dollars unto you with the right hand, keep a close watch on the left. There are those amongst us who, while seemingly fighting for freedom, have also foolishly partnered themselves to radical environmentalism, deep ecology, Gaia, and the like. Many, many people have been caught up in the “Save Mother Nature” movement. The land that is being locked down for “nature’s sake” is going to be directly delivered into the hands of the world’s global mega-corporations – mining, lumbering, fresh water, gas and oil, etc.

If you’re taking grant money to “protect nature” from mankind, you’re fallen into the globalism trap of eliminating freedom. You’d better investigate your grantor partnerships. It’s pretty much guaranteed that they will lead you to Agenda 21’s one-world government and public-private dictatorship. Once you’ve succeeded in locking down all land, your “ecology” efforts won’t be needed, and your grant dollars, along with your gullibility, will dry up like the Klamath Basin. If you think for 5 seconds that your corporate and/or philanthropic money masters are interested in preserving “nature,” than you, too, need a mental health screening. And the same goes for the “Faith-Based (aka globalism) Initiatives. Watch the left hand.

Keep a very close eye on all your “local” elites, movers, and shakers – particularly your county commissioners. If you are experiencing “parks initiatives” in your towns and burghs, and if new land developers, land trusts, and land funds are buying up your local lands, AND if mineral rights are locally wheeling and dealing, WATCH THE LEFT HAND of your county commissioners. “Partnership-ing and stakeholding” pads local pockets and bank accounts. Keep your eyes wide open and attend all county commission/land use/planning meetings.

Demand to know who your commissioners are working with and with whom they partner, and disallow any “trading” or “selling” of local land. This is not the job of county commissioners. And remember; keep all findings very, very public. Scamming is the modus operandi for 95% of all governmental agents, elites, and land venturers. The reason we are losing our power as citizens is because we are losing our land rights. The landless, in all nations, and in all of human history, are the powerless and the victimized. As previously stated, freedom is directly tied to land ownership and gun rights. Dictatorships are historically and irrefutably tied to aristocrats, elites, their political puppets, and their governmental and bureaucratic sorcery. Partnerships and stakeholders ARE the left hand, and they are permanently taking your land from YOU.

Mandate

The United Nations Human Settlements Programme, UN-HABITAT, is the United Nations agency for human settlements. It is mandated by the UN General Assembly to promote socially and environmentally sustainable towns and cities with the goal of providing adequate shelter for all. The main documents outlining the mandate of the organization are the Vancouver Declaration on Human Settlements, Habitat Agenda, Istanbul Declaration on Human Settlements, the Declaration on Cities and Other Human Settlements in the New Millennium, and Resolution 56/206

The agency's 2002-2003 budget is US$300 million and comes from four main sources - 80 per cent in the form of contributions from multilateral and bilateral partners for technical cooperation, 10 percent in earmarked contributions from governments and other partners, including local authorities and foundations, with 5 per cent from the regular UN budget and 5 per cent in the form of voluntary contributions from governments.

The flag of Aztlan. The seven stars represent the states of California, Arizona, Colorado, New Mexico, Texas, Oklahoma, and Utah, while the triumvirate of faces represents dual mestizaje, both racial (the union of European and Indigenous blood in the mestizo) and cultural (the union of the Mexican and American cultures into Chicano culture).

THE FALLACY OF AZTLAN

By Melanie K. Wooten, Iowa

There is much consternation and confusion over those portions of the united States claimed by the "Reconquistas", but one area is never mentioned in the confusion and consternation.

First, on February 2, 1848, under the Treaty of Guadalupe-Hidalgo, <http://www.loc.gov/exhibits/ghtreaty/>, the united States PAID Mexico $15,000,000 to compensate her citizens for damages to private property during the war, which Mexico lost. Mexicans who lived within the post-treaty border (the ceded 55% lands!) who did not wish to abide by the treaty signed by Mexico at the conclusion of this war could return to Mexico. Those who elected to stay were offered citizenship in the united States but they had to disavow allegiance to Mexico.

Second, on December 30, 1853, the united States PAID Mexico $10,000,000 for the lands commonly referred to as "The Gadsden Purchase," <http://www.progress.org/gads.htm>. As any American schoolchild should know, the Gadsden Purchase was a real estate deal (just like the Louisiana Purchase and the Alaska Purchase) regarding a disputed strip of land across the bottom of Arizona and New Mexico where the border now lies. This purchase became necessary because there was an oversight in the Treaty of Guadalupe-Hidalgo regarding access to El Paso, Texas, by citizens in the ceded lands to those areas west of that city. The united States PAID $10,000,000 for this 29,000-acre strip of land rather than get into another war and made the payment to the other country involved in the oversight: Mexico.

Money changed hands here, folks -- a fact that is conveniently forgotten by the "Reconquistas". For those who can't understand what I just wrote, I repeat: in 1848, the united States PAID then-President of Mexico Santa Ana $15,000,000 for damaged Mexican private property as part of the treaty that also ceded to the US 55% of Mexican territories; in 1853, the united States PAID then-President of Mexico Santa Ana $10,000,000 in exchange for the lands commonly referred to as the Gadsden Purchase. This is the same Santa Ana of Alamo and Battle of San Jacinto infamy. If the $10,000,000 did not make its way into the coffers of Mexico for the benefit of the people of Mexico or if the government of Mexico did not pay the $15,000,000 to citizens of Mexico who sustained damage to their property during the fifty-year war between Mexico and the united States, that is not a problem that the united States needs to concern herself with. That is Mexico's business and her problem, if one exists. The united States owns these lands the "Reconquistas" claim.

Considering that no move has been made to honor the terms of previous loans to Mexico, I think it would be safe to assume that the "Reconquistas" have no intention of paying that money back or seeing that Mexico does so. The sole argument of the "Reconquistas" is they want back land that was lost in a fifty-year war and/or purchased outright by the winner of the war, the united States.

If Mexico wants to pay back ALL loans to Mexico by the united States, whether as a good neighbor or a group member --- $1.6 billion in 2002 alone --- with interest from the date EACH loan was made to the date each is repaid, plus the aforesaid $25,000,000, with interest from the dates of each payment to the present, AND pay the current owners of private property in the lands the "Reconquistas" claim for themselves the value of their property before vandalizing and destruction by the influx of illegals, with interest and cost of all improvements and repairs of vandalism since purchase, from the date of each such improvement and/or repair, then MAYBE we have something to talk about. Until then, the purported "Reconquistas" are bound by the terms of the Treaty of Guadalupe Hidalgo and the Gadsden Purchase to either put up or shut up: stay as citizens of the united States (if that is indeed what they are) or return to Mexico! In either case, if the "Reconquistas" don't like what either country did, they have the right as well as obligation under the treaties to leave the united States instead of undermining the united States and destroying property --- and encouraging others to do so.

Put bluntly, they should renounce their American citizenship and return to the country they owe true allegiance or they should shut up! No one will stop them from doing either.
