Merry Birth of Yeshua Ha'Mashiach

The Son of YHVH, Yeshua Ha'Mashiach, was probably born on September 14 or 15 (5 Tishrei) in 5 or 6 BCE, but we celebrate His birth on December 25th of each year; which many scholars believe is actually the date of His conception. So, in light of the conception, literally and figuratively, December 25th is still a good day to honor the Son of God.

The birth of Jesus (English), is the first of three key events in Christianity; the other two are the crucifixion and, more importantly, the resurrection. Along with the ministry of the Good Rabbi, Jesus' impact on the world also had a major influence on the birth of America.

The Pilgrims brought the Geneva Bible to the shores of America. The Bible was a key in influencing the principles of a republic built on the shoulder's of God. Through Divine Providence, the United States of America became a nation built on the understanding of charity, free will, self-determination, and that no other should rise above the authority of the King of World. These key principles of good human nature, along with the six key principles of the Constitution, (Popular Sovereignty, Limited Government, Separation of Powers, Checks and Balances, Judicial Review, and Federalism), provided for the birth and stability of the United States of America.

The hatred and selfish presumptions manifesting around the world and here in America, is an unfortunate reality. As we enter this season of Christian celebration, and noting that Jesus was Jewish, not a Christian, we look for an era in which citizens around the world embrace the ideologies of Christianity.

Christians, ignoring those important doctrines established through the life and times of Jesus, have surrendered their faith in favor of a benevolence by their government. Charity has become a forced governmental coercion; it is no less a theft of the citizens assets to give to those unwilling to engage in any level of righteous self-determination.

Just as secularism has facilitated the dismemberment of God in the nation, revering government instead of family and God has successfully eviscerated the notion of charity and the church. The grasping of dollar bills and time spent with self-interests has left many charitable organizations with elderly converts to do the bidding on behalf of the truly charitable and the needy.

Ponder for a moment that you finally cross over to the other side and you're standing before Jesus. You've retained the memory of every sin you've ever committed and each of your faults. He says, "You're forgiven—welcome." With that statement your memory is all of a sudden cleared; your sins and faults disappear from your personal vault.

In our frail existence as human beings we have tendencies to judge others while remaining oblivious to our own incredible fallings and sins. It is the lukewarm that will be spewed out; not the hot or the cold. Atheists and the devout, although sinful, are welcomed.

<http://voices.yahoo.com/the-six-basic-principles-united-states-constitution-5533075.html>

The Blessings of Yahweh, or Yod Heh Vav Heh (YHVH), provided through His Son, at times gives a compulsion for the faithful to embrace the ideologies of the Christian faith. Although reverence and spiritual inclinations are often too brief, its during those moments of devotion that we feel quenched.

By design, some are devout for longer periods, while others have their conscious advocacy and affection for God only on occasion, although they long for a permanent relationship with the Divine. This subscribes to the notion that the ills of the world are recognized as being nothing more than an earthly inconvenience, which is temporary.

The basic foundation of Christianity is to exercise forgiveness; a challenge far more daunting than charity, humility and virtue. Forgiving those who have wronged us isn't easy. When we see the residuals of ignorance and the lofty implementation of self-interest over the best interest of others and even the nation, it becomes far more difficult to forgive. But, here-in, lies another facet of Christianity; it is not our place to judge others.

So, as the birth of Christ celebrations are shared by secularists and devout alike, it would be a nice gesture to go on bent knee, or lie in bed before you go to sleep, and ask for guidance and the power to forgive as you reject the compulsion to judge others. We each serve a purpose; it can only be our hope that we try not to direct our own lives outside those purposes. Perhaps we also have the hope that we can fulfill those purposes in such a manner that it truly pleases God. Let love supersede our discontentment.

The Reconstructed image of Jesus the Christ based on the likeness encapsulated upon the Shroud of Turin.

For if you forgive men their trespasses, your heavenly Father also will forgive you; but if you do not forgive men their trespasses neither will your father forgive your trespasses. (Matthew 6:14-15)

For everyone who exalts himself will be humbled, and he who humbles himself will be exalted. (Luke 14:11)

You shall love the Lord your God with all your heart, and with all your soul, and with all your mind. The second is like it, You shall love your neighbor as yourself. On these two commandments depend all the law and the prophets. (Matthew 22:37-40)

I can find neither solace or comfort in government. I cannot find hope nor light among those pretending to take my best interest to heart. I cannot worship or revere another human being because there are none alive that can instill my faith.

Give me the One God; the One Who had created the heavens and earth and had purposefully breathed life into me. The One Who dwells in the secret place and watches over me and always keeps me company when all others abandoned me. But for Him I would have no purpose in this life; thank you Dear God.

Shifting the Post-Revolution Paradigm

There were a few mistakes made by most of the GOP insiders during the Mitt Romney Presidential campaign.

The first was not giving Dr. Ron Paul an honorary role in the GOP Convention. During the 2008 Presidential Election, those who supported Dr. Ron Paul felt they were an insignificant component of the Republican Party. An inadvertent comment suggesting that Dr. Paul be ousted from further Republican Presidential debates disenfranchised hundreds-of-thousands Dr. Ron Paul supporters.

Although commentaries were not directly uttered in 2012 about supporters being crazy, or otherwise "different" from Republicans, the exclusion of Dr. Paul from the GOP Convention was noticed, big time. The GOP insiders rejected Ron Paul Delegates, the demeaning resulted in walk-outs by the Dr. Paul supporters.¹

The second was the proclamation by Mr. Romney that he worked with the Democrats and knew how to get the job done—do we know of any Democrat out there who votes for their favorite Democrat because their commie candidate had publicly declared that he/she knows how to get along and will work with conservatives?

A significant Republican base consisted of TEA Party Patriots and the Paulites, but just as the Paulites were disenfranchised, the admission that Romney would be willing to get along with the communists was more than the TEA Party Patriots were willing to embrace. Although the Patriots were less willing to stay-home on election day, their motivations to elect individuals with less-than-ideal conservative convictions left them with a bitter taste in their mouth.

The third mistake was that someone had given Mr. Romney the idea that in order to win the votes of women he needed to be kind and gentle during the final Presidential debates—Mr. Romney was the only man, and actually the only adult, on the stage, but decided instead to ape the Obama persona; a wimpy metro-sexual who had been neutered by the media and his own handlers to be politically-correct among the "independent" communist liberals.

The ultimate conclusion to be drawn by the passive presentment of Mr. Romney was that he had smaller testicles than Sarah Palin. American Patriots needed a strong and determined leader, not another wimp.

There is only one lesson to be taken away from the 2012 Election; Democrats are the know-nothing Party consisting of a lying den of thieves who are directed by secularists that will do all that is necessary to win an election and the Republicans are only clueless advocates of do-nothings hell-bent on getting along.

An analysis of the post-Revolution Era suggests that a metamorphosis of political parties led to the ultimate disenfranchisement of American Patriots. The former libertarian Democrat Party flipped to collectivism and the relatively new-comer Republican Party left the intentions of constitutionalism and a republican form of government in favor of appeasement. The ideology of both parties that restricted national governmental involvement in the lives of citizens and the states has disappeared from the political landscape. Both major parties have become a disappointment and need to be bled-out by the peripheral members.

Personal and petty party interests have superseded the very notion that the United States of America is only organized out of necessity, not out of benevolent convenience. The need for a political paradigm shift has now also risen out of necessity. Our only hope to survival is as an independent nation with a sovereign identity consisting of rugged, no-nonsense citizens.

Patriots, Paulites, and anti-communist independents must rally together to formulate battle strategies. We are flanked only on the left; our right side is a very defensible position.

We have three fundamental proclamations to make: 1) cut spending, 2) protect investments, including Social Security, by not spending contributions, and 3) restoring God as a significant influence in maintaining our constitutional republic. The rest will follow.

Michigan Legislators Grow Some; finally

The Michigan House and Senate have passed the Freedom-to-Work legislation and Governor Rick Snyder signed it into law. Initially it was suggested that they would allow the same clueless people that reelected Obama to vote on a right-to-work ballot proposal. It's nice to see that the Michigan legislators have finally grown a pair!

The noisy protests by union insiders mimics the boisterous rallies by union allies in the Wisconsin Capitol, but fortunately our State Police Troopers and other law enforcement professionals know how to use tasers and pepper spray; that helped keep some of the structural damages caused by malcontents to the publicly-owned Capitol to a minimum.

But, union thugs tore down tents rented by Americans for Prosperity, which had women and children in them. They also destroyed Clinton Tarver's hot dog cart, the apolitical vendor just out trying to make a buck, and blanketed him with racial insults. So much for representing the workers.

Of course, the protest was to primarily help protect the strength and unity of unions, not necessarily the jobs and rights of workers. It is an unfortunate fact that unions have indeed outlived their usefulness. Unions elected to be replaced through their elected officials by government agencies like the Department of Labor, OSHA, MIOSHA, MSHA, and numerous other departments.

These agencies are dedicated to protecting worker's rights, and they ensure safe work conditions; even in regards to disciplinary actions, the government has regulations.

But then again, those members of the UAW who were caught on camera, drinking and smoking dope during their breaks have been reinstated. The break parties were held in the parking lot of the union hall; the union facilitated the high risk behaviors that would set-up workers for serious or fatal on-the-job injuries.

The bottom-line is that there are thousands, if not millions of workers who want to do their best in their careers. They appreciate the fact they have a good-paying job, which includes benefits and a good retirement package, yet the company they work for are susceptible to costly litigation for liability issues arising from other workers enjoying their breaks too much.

Also, as if unions hadn't learned anything from the Enron scandal, and only by the actions of a vote-buying President, did the workers at GM avoid a complete disintegration of their retirement accounts because of an inept union. The need for legislation to allow individual workers to decide whether to invest in a private retirement account or a union account is perhaps more important.

Concerns for the future of America's manufacturing and production industries are being reassessed. The most likely conclusion to be drawn from the reassessment will include the need for representatives entrusted to legislate and to collectively bargain to actually work on enhancing America's stance in the world economy through a powerful and highly influential industry-based economy, not one that is service-based.

The good old days for automaker workers doesn't have to be in the past. Dedicated workers shouldn't even have to give up a good wage, benefits, and retirement deal; it's all about the cost-to-benefit relationship between the productivity of workers and profit of companies employing them.

Even those outstanding teachers, along with those who may not be outstanding, but are conscientiously motivated to give their students the best education they can, should be invigorated with the premise that the weak links causing drop-outs, and reduced completive skills among their students are now less influential.

OBAMACARE: AMERICA'S LIABILITY FOR IDIOTS AND TEAT SUCKERS

United States Supreme Court Chief Justice John Roberts declared Obamacare as a tax; yet voters were convinced that there would be no taxes on anyone except the upper 1% of the nation's wealthy if Obama was reelected—idiots.

Those who don't bother working are fine; those with a job and a hint of self-esteem are screwed. While unions are bailing from the impositions of Obamacare and numerous other employers, including the state governments, are trying to fight the financial liabilities for the unprecedented unfunded federal mandate, the workers and the consumers in America are about to find themselves wondering where all their discretionary household cash has gone.

The very stupid in America were also unable to link expensive gasoline costs with a loss, on average, $5,000 per household in additional financial liabilities; just for fuel in their vehicles, which doesn't include production and transportation costs added to goods and services.

The financial independence, once in place throughout the middle class, had disappeared because of policies implemented by the Democrats and their RINO counterparts—yet these people are still holding onto their congressional and Presidential seats. This can be nothing less than a truly disturbing reflection on America's education system.

The oblivious, who have no clue when it comes to determining who should be entrusted to represent them, have become a large percentage of voters. Their visceral mentality and believes in global warming, fair-share taxation at higher tax rates, and the redistribution of other peoples' money demonstrates the impoverished intellectual prowess of American voters.

It's completely baffling that those who enjoy the right to vote don't have any level of understanding regarding the awesome responsibility voting carries. Even the idea of having 290 million people carry the financial burdens of illegal aliens, young adults, and those who are financially independent by imposing a national health care mandate should have given them pause.

The List of the Obamacare Taxes

Description of Tax	Year Effective	Revenue Raised (2010-2019)
Increase Hospital Insurance (HI) portion of the payroll tax from 2.9 percent to 3.8 percent for couples earning more than $250,000 a year ($200,000 for single filers).	2013	$210 billion
Apply the 3.8 percent HI tax to investment income for couples earning more than $250,000 a year ($200,000 for single filers) for the first time.	2013	*
Mandate for individuals to buy health insurance and employers to offer it to their workers.	2014	$65 billion
Annual fee on health insurance providers based on each individual company's share of the total market.	2014	$60 billion
40 percent excise tax on "Cadillac" health insurance for plans costing more than $10,200 for individuals and $27,500 for families.	2018	$32 billion
Impose an annual fee on manufacturers and importers of branded drugs based on each individual company's share of the total market.	2011	$27 billion
Exclusion of unprocessed fuels from the existing cellulosic biofuel producer credit.	2010	$24 billion
2.3 percent excise tax on manufacturers and importers of certain medical devices.	2013	$20 billion
Higher corporate taxes through stricter enforcement by requiring them to report more information on their business activities.	2012	$17 billion
Raise the 7.5 percent AGI floor on medical expenses deduction to 10 percent.	2013	$15 billion
Limit the amount taxpayers can deposit in flexible spending accounts (FSAs) to $2,500 a year.	2014	$13 billion
Reduce the number of medical products taxpayers can purchase using funds they put aside in health savings accounts (HSAs) and FSAs.	2011	$5 billion
Eliminate the corporate deduction for prescription expenses for retirees.	2013	$4.5 billion
Increase corporate taxes by making it more difficult for businesses to engage in business activities that reduce their tax liability.	2010	$4.5 billion
10 percent excise tax on indoor tanning services.	2010	$2.7 billion
Increased penalty for purchasing disallowed products with HSAs to 20 percent.	2011	$1.4 billion
Increase taxes on health insurance companies by limiting the amount of compensation paid to certain employees they can deduct from their taxes.	2013	$0.6 billion
Repeal special deduction for Blue Cross/Blue Shield organizations.	2010	$0.4 billion
TOTAL REVENUE RAISED		$503 billion

* Revenue raised from the application of the Hospital Insurance tax to investment income is included in the $210 billion figure shown above.

Obamacare: Impact on Taxpayers

The Rollout of Taxes for Obamacare

As part of the recently passed health care legislation, a slew of new taxes begin taking effect this year, increasing rapidly through 2019. By the end of 2019, the total tax burden on the economy is projected to be nearly $102 billion higher for that year alone because of Obamacare. The steepest year-to-year increase occurs in 2013, when total Obamacare taxes triple from $12 billion to $36 billion because of higher payroll taxes.

TOTAL OBAMACARE TAXES, BY YEAR

Payroll tax (Hospital Insurance portion)
Total: $210 billion (2010–2019)

Higher payroll taxes will soon hit middle-income taxpayers because the $250,000 threshold is not indexed for inflation. Applying payroll taxes to investment income for the first time will slow economic growth, cost jobs, and lower wages. These tax hikes will open the door for Congress to raise them even further in the future whenever it wants more revenue.

Health insurance mandates for individuals and employers
$65 billion

Annual fee on health insurance providers
$60 billion

40% excise tax on "Cadillac" health insurance plans
$32 billion

This new tax will grow beyond 2019 and hit more and more middle- and low-income families in the process.

Annual fees on manufacturers, importers of branded drugs
$27 billion

Exclusion of unprocessed fuels
$24 billion

2.3% excise tax on certain medical devices
$20 billion

Raise floor for adjusted gross income on medical expenses to 10%
$15 billion

New corporate taxes
$17 billion

Eight other taxes, restrictions, and penalties
$32 billion

Like Breaking a Dog

The Liggers, (to do nothing habitually, often abusing the generosity of others; i.e., ignorant liberals), across America are an embarrassment to those Americans who understand and appreciate the basic wonderfulness that had defined this great republic. Like the teat-suckers in Greece, the American Liggers have grown and established their selfish values while indoctrinating the weak-minded.

The lawyerocracy-administrated social engineering practices have generational impacts on America's fabric. Both those who are appointed to the judiciary and those lawyers elected by the people to provide government management, have demonstrated what happens when we hire an attorney to fix our toilet; things back-up, overflow, and there's no way to get the stink out.

Training a dog not to crap on your carpet simply requires a big box or a portable kennel; unlike politicians, dogs won't defecate in their own beds. After a few trips outside to void their bladder and defecate, the dog will generally grasp the understanding that outdoors is the place for those types of tasks. But housebreaking a pet is only one step in keeping it loyal and compliant.

At one time, simply reading the paper would have been enough to inform and compel people to be responsible voters.

Today, social agendas drive the media so the only useful purpose a newspaper serves is lining the bird cage or for use to whack Liggers on their ass. So keep in mind, that at times people have to take action. Like training dogs, when you find a potentially intelligent person who is professing they support liberals, you have to rollup the newspaper and whack them with it.

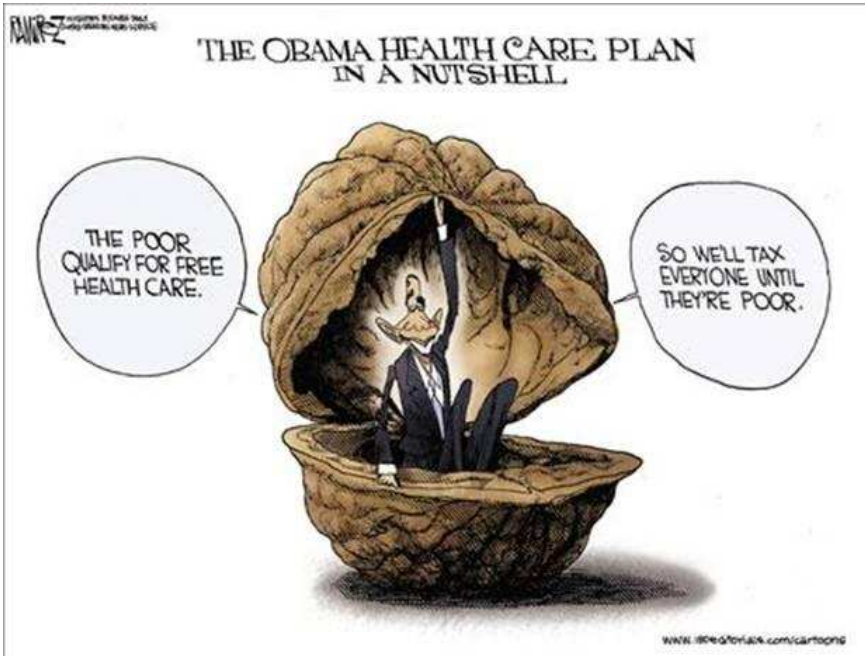

We have three major problems when it comes to elections. First, homosexual minorities and their white butt-masters had shown-up in droves to reelect Obama. Second, we have those oblivious voters that don't pay attention until a day or so before an election and are so stupid that they think "Truth-in-Advertising" somehow applies to campaign propaganda. Finally, we have the selfish teat-suckers permeating society that fear losing their welfare checks and food stamps.

The quandary is how to convince those people, particularly union members, to vote for candidates who are far more compelled to ensure their jobs will not only continue to exist, but thrive, by eliminating over-burdensome rules and laws affecting job producers. Like a dog running around in an oblivious state, not recognizing dangers or being able to think-through behaviors, it's up to the adults to train the dog after breaking the dog's delusion of independence.

If a dog likes to run out to the street to visit with passers-by, the owner must firmly reprimand the dog and with a hand-full of scruff, pick the dog's front paws off the pavement and walk it back into the yard. Breaking a dog is one of the most heartbreaking experiences in raising a pet because owners appreciate the fun-filled escapades of a free pet.

Remember, Liggers are protected from disciplinary actions by the ASPCA, ACLU, and Hate Crime laws. So, as you enjoy your Christmas and have to put up with the freaks of nature wishing you a happy holiday, we ask you to refrain from grabbing them by the scruff of the neck or whacking them.

Michigan Taxpayers Spend $928,677,050 Per Year on Illegal Aliens

Elizabeth Harrington | October 31, 2012—<http://cnsnews.com/source/elizabeth-harrington>

(CNSNews.com) – Michigan is spending nearly $1 billion a year on illegal immigrants, according to state lawmaker Dave Agema, which amounts to about $8,075 for each taxpayer in that state.

Agema cited the Federation for American Immigration Reform (FAIR) 2010 study, "The Fiscal Burden of Illegal Immigration on U.S. Taxpayers," which found that an estimated 115,000 illegal aliens cost the state and local governments of Michigan $928,677,050.

Nationwide, the impact of illegal immigration costs $113 billion, in combined federal and state spending, according to FAIR. In Michigan, FAIR found that K-12 education takes the largest share for spending on illegal immigrants, with $314.1 million. Other spending (state and local) includes: General ($225.3 million); Welfare ($142.6 million); Justice ($66 million); Limited English Proficiency (LEP) education ($63.2 million); Medicaid ($62.4 million); and SCHIP ($25.2 million).

"I have witnessed through my business experience as a consultant for a tool and die business the effect illegal immigration has on the cost of doing business at a state level," Agema writes to describe his position on illegal immigration on his website.

Michigan Rep. Agema, who represents the 74th district, Grandville, wrote a letter to the editor of Michigan Live explaining that the added costs of providing health care, education, welfare, jails, and human services for illegal immigrants is nearly $1 billion per year.

The study uses estimates for illegal immigrant populations against government data on expenditures for various programs, state by state.

"This burden reduces profitability, lowers pay, and decreases benefits for existing employees who are either American citizens or documented workers," he said.

According to FAIR's estimates, the cost for each illegal immigrant to the Michigan taxpayer amounts to $8,075.

John Adams in a speech to the military in 1798 warned his fellow countrymen stating, "We have no government armed with power capable of contending with human passions unbridled by morality and religion . . . Our Constitution was made only for a moral and religious people. It is wholly inadequate to the government of any other." John Adams is a signer of the Declaration of Independence, the Bill of Rights and our second President.

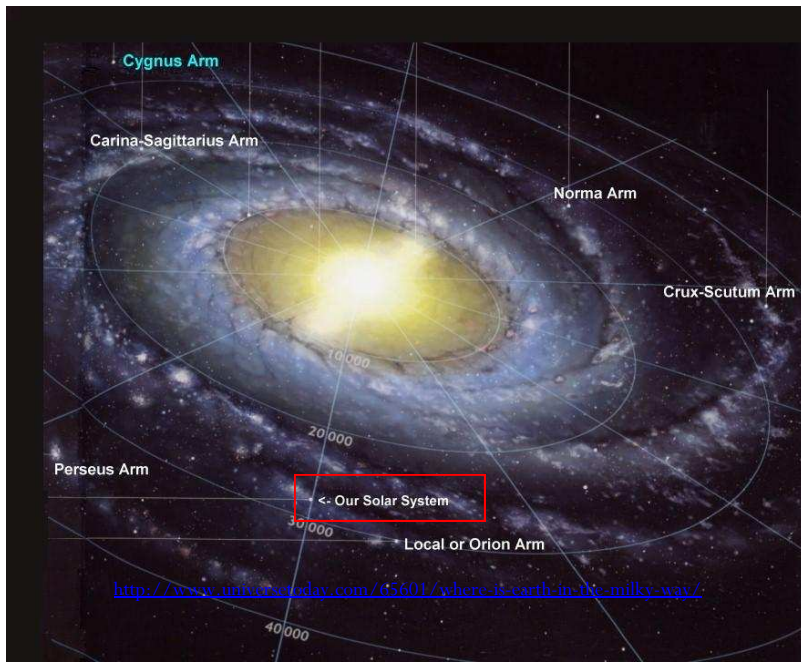

12-21-2012: An Astronomical Anomaly

December 21, 2012; the proclaimed transition period and the end of the Mayan Calendar lurks around the corner. While there are predictions of world-wide events and catastrophes, the simple winter solstice will have a peculiarity not seen in our lifetimes.

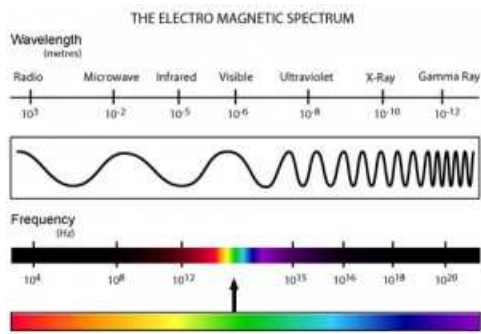

Our solar system, consisting of the sun, earth, and the other planets, will near the center of our universe; the sun is suppose to rise on that day in the universal center.

The universe is a somewhat flat spiral. If you've peered into the night sky, you may have seen the somewhat dim ban of stars known as the Milky Way; millions of suns burning in the far-off distances.

The rise of our sun, and thusly our solar system, in the universal center will be an interesting phenomenon. We will be essentially passing through the waves of a collective group of electro-magnetic waves that are emitting from all those suns. Those electro-magnetic waves will include X-rays and gamma rays.

The resulting affects on the earth will mimic those of an Electro-Magnetic Pulse bomb, or EMP. Our digital systems will be annihilated; it'll be back to the days of yore.

The magnetic fields generated by a relatively thin layer of many living and dying stars and quasars, which have been emitting E-M waves since they were created by God, may, by design, be in-place so that our solar system would pass through the thin E-M field.

Also taking into account that the universe is an expanding layer of billions of stars, launched from the center, casting its spirals of stars, planets, and other heavenly features in an outward motion, may actually nudge our own solar system into a newly defined planetary layout and push us a bit further away from the universal center.

The magnetic forces will also pull on our moon, oceans, and polar ice caps. This will make the earth lay it sideways.

Essentially, the decline of the polar ice cap in the Arctic over the last few centuries and with the build up of the ice cap in Antarctica, will give a larger concentration of the magnetic pulls to Antarctica. Over the next few weeks we may see the rotation of the earth go topsy-turvy and actually see Antarctica and the Arctic lie on the equator.

What this means is that instead of seeing the sun rise in the east, or more recently, the northeast, we'll see the sun rise more in the north and set in the south.

During this cycle, our moon will be pulled away from the earth a bit as it passes between earth and the universal center. Until it regains its orbit, its influences on the tides will be somewhat diminished, which is a good thing since the ice caps will be melting along the equator as new ice caps build-up on the new east and west poles.

There's nothing we can do about it; we'll just have to survive the ride. Gamma rays may be concentrated enough to only affect a narrow path, much like a solar eclipse, so chance are pretty good many people will survive.

We have that for which we voted?

If you're one of those citizens that have never been invited to a $10K per plate fundraiser, you're probably just an inconvenient societal peon. Your vote is also an inconvenience, which is why it had to be superseded with a vote in place of yours—you're too stupid to grasp the necessary political necessities regarding the political pecking-orders the need for long-range system modifications.

While the stupid people keep asking why Congress spent $2.5 trillion from the Social Security Trust Fund so far and replaced it with an IOU to the SSTF, instead of to those paying into it, Congress says they have to budget for paying the retirees. Ok, maybe we're stupid and would think it better to quit spending surplus funds sent into the SSTF, but hey, that's just us.

There's a significant manipulation on the political-side of the government coin, and Congress and the President are up to their keesters in the great practice of public deception. In fact, during those threatening days of shutting-down the government, the first threat was that seniors wouldn't get their Social Security checks.

With gasps of disbelief, we contacted our congressional servants, pardon, congressional rulers, to beg them to pass a budget.

Seriously, the lame ducks in Congress and the incompetent White House freaks can't figure out how to manage a budget? They can't seem to be able to figure out how keep us from spending way too much and owing both the private Federal Reserve Bank and Chinese more than we're capable of taking in, even if everyone in the nation were taxed at 100%, including those on the fourth generation of collecting welfare.

Our Moron-in-Chief is hell bent on sucking on the teats of successful persons, most of whom do get those invitations to the $10K per plate fundraisers, but also invest in businesses and hire people.

John Boehner and his fellow RINOs in Congress are caving (as of this writing) on taxing the upper 2%. Of course the Lead Freak promises cuts down the road—gee, doesn't that sound a lot like the promise made by the Freak to Bart Stupak to rid Obamacare of the funding of minority-targeted abortions? Well, yeah, but now Mr. Stupak is what is termed a "visiting fellow" at Harvard's Institute of Politics.

We have that for which we voted; or do we? In Michigan US Senator Debbie Stabenow, the dumbest human being to ever hold office, was reelected and many other US Senators were returned to their seats. Only those in the House of Representatives seemed to have emerged from the 2012 Election virtually unscathed.

It's very difficult to believe that a majority of US citizens are really that mentally impoverished, but not only does the 2012 Election results seem reflect that curious abomination, but repeatedly the man-on-the-street interviews with the populace seems to confirm that a significant portion of America's population are indeed idiots.

It reminds me of the story about a park ranger being stopped by a couple in a station wagon driving through Glacier National Park; the lady rolled down her window and asked the ranger, "What time do you let the animals out?" Of course the car had California plates.

We can't reason with those with self-interests foremost in their minds. So, now that we're stuck with the Freak for four more years, 1/3rd of the Senate and House members for two more years, what are we to do in the meantime?

While most of us support the notion that if the Freak isn't willing to budge, neither should Congress, there are a few ramifications to going over the purported "fiscal cliff", depending on the outcome of the 12-21-12 Mayan deal of course.

With Quantitative Easing 1-3, which are meant to rescue everyone except the citizens who need bailing-out and in-turn would bail-out those big type conglomerates, to which the citizens are in-debt, there is little hope that the middle class will ever have the financial security they thought they had before the Democrats took over both houses of congress in 2007. Yes, the richer are getting richer, thanks to Congress and the nation's lead Ligger (persons who do nothing habitually, often abusing the generosity of others—to associate with powerful people, especially in the entertainment world, in order to benefit materially from the association, e.g. in the form of invitations to parties).

The advice to see you through this cycle of ineptness; cash only. Only leave a small portion of your money in your savings account and only leave enough in your checking account to pay your bills—remember; Obama wants real-time access to your checking account, which will cause you to go in financial ruin because you can't pay your bills. Be proactive!

"I FIGURE IT'S EASIER TO FIND A WAR THAN A JOB THESE DAYS."

THIS SIDE UP BY J. C. POWERS

Our unions in Michigan abandoned their brothers and sisters working in the coal mines and other industries targeted by Obama. As the union leadership continues to bellow that those who are more interested in ensuring their union members have businesses and industries to work for by providing them with stable jobs.

Union leaders are far more interested in using union monies to help finance candidates who'll drop their pants for the environmentalists, trial lawyers, anti-gun, pro-abortion and gay Mexicans and Blacks, and yes, union bosses, than actually keeping the American dream alive.

Here in the Upper Peninsula, we are loaded with anti-gun faggots, this is particularly the case in Gogebic and Marquette counties. These groups have formed an alliance to protect the environment from mining, hunting, fishing, and recreational usage.

These individuals are very staunch abortion advocates and seem to have an innate hatred for children, including their own—they'd rather see kids fully indoctrinated with their communist ideologies than actually educated. Access for their kids to condoms, abortions, and morning-after pills are paramount.

Some of these people have engulfed the churches and driven out those who don't subscribed to their anti-God, anti-family, and anti-American beliefs. The devout faithful have left the Catholic Church, and other leftist denominations, for the fire and brimstone congregations, or they have simply elected to stay home rather than attend church.

The snake of Satan has bitten many people who were previously some of the most rugged individuals in the nation and who possessed unequaled work ethics—many southwestern business and industrial leaders who read a resumes of a person from the Upper Peninsula, at one time, would have hired them on the spot based on those reasons.

The term "Sisu", a Finnish term often used in the UP is loosely translated as possessing a strong will, rationality in the face of adversity and an unlimited ability toward perseverance. Sisu has been abandoned in favor of Sissyism; they'd prefer to surrender to the will of the government since many of the Finnish folk are no longer able or willing to fend for themselves. It doesn't apply to all Finns, but a huge majority of them are embracing the entrails of socialism and communism over their own self-determination and inherited independence.

While it's true we don't readily see Finnish and Italian homosexuals roaming around with butts hanging out of their leather chaps in either Marquette and Gogebic counties, the real men and women not living in the area are electing to hunt and fish elsewhere. The north's Sodom and Gomorrah counties are overrun with metro-sexual and homosexual tree-hugging environmentalists.

The promotion of the UN Agenda 21 and Michigan DNR's anti-survival agendas are being embraced by a large percentage of the UP. As an example, the DNR's antlerless deer seasons, which have gone on for years, have killed-off generations of white tail deer in the UP. Predatory fish have been planted in numerous inland lakes to kill-off consumable fish. Environmental groups, with the assistance of former Governor Granholm, have bought-up square miles of recreational lands in order to protect it from the people of the UP.

The great outdoors is gradually becoming off-limits to recreationists. Snowmobiles, ORVs, dirt bikes, and firearms are unwelcome in much of the UP these days; all thanks to our spandex-wearing transplants.

In due course, the citizens of the UP will finally learn what they have voluntarily surrendered just so they could continue bashing the right and vote for Democrats.

Seemingly, it doesn't quite dawn on union leaders that when the environmental agendas force the shut-down of forestry, mining, agriculture, commercial fishing, and most other industries that use the land and sea, those jobs will be lost, forever. The unions will be irrelevant in the United States because they elected their governmental officials to take over the responsibilities of unions and provide governmental protections from the mean owners and boards of directors.

It remains baffling that miners, loggers, and commercial fishermen would allow an overzealous group of elitists interfere with their livelihoods and effectively destroy their families. The leftists in both the Democrat and the Republican parties are now in charge of our future, which makes me more than a little bit worried; I'm downright terrified.

Yeah, it's pretty disheartening to see the citizens of the once great Upper Peninsula of Michigan give up their independence and allow their children to become rabid sociopaths, but I guess that's their chosen path. At least there's one positive to this whole agenda thing permeating the UP and the rest of America; those on the right won't have a problem taking food, water, and shelter from those with Obama yard signs.
