SECRETARY'S NOTE for August 4, 2023

By Mary Sears

Dear Patriots,
Summer.

The days are hot, long, and busy but on certain days you can catch the scent of autumn in the air. Those slight hints that summer is not here forever, and the dark days of winter are itching to take their place on the eternal stage.

For now, the farm is buzzing with life and the bounty that needs to be harvested seems endless. This pace will stay steady until the first real depth of snow makes it difficult to do these fair-weather things.

No matter how big or small your plot of land is, utilize it to grow some food.

If you don't have any land, grow in pots, find someone to let you grow on their land or harvest from nature. In the UP we are surrounded by plenty. We have great swaths of land that has been placed in the hands of our government (That's a different discussion) in the form of parks, national, state, or local, that are brimming with wild berries, apples, mushrooms, and herbs.

By learning about what grows around you and what it is used for, you can harvest freely from these natural sites and produce home-made jams, jellies, medicines and more.

If you learn to hunt and fish, the area provides a plethora of protein in the form of deer, rabbits, birds, as well as fish.

With a little time and effort, your winter larder can be stocked with the bounty of the UP.

We are very blessed to live where we do. The winters are harsh, but the growth of the summer makes up for it with masses of foliage that can put the jungles of the amazon to shame.

In case you haven't been paying attention to the grocery stores, food seems to be in short supply. Between the spontaneous fires that have claimed countless food producing plants, animal lots, and storage areas to the wildfires, heat waves, massive floods and bitter cold that has decimated crops all over the world, food seems to have a giant bull's eye on it.

The latest report of rice crop failures have resulted in India closing their exports and unleashing panic buying in multiple countries. This can be added to the halting of wheat exports out of the Ukraine due to the war effort. Third world nations receive the bulk of this wheat and will be hardest hit with its suppression.

Corn, wheat, soy, rice, oil, all the staples of our modern diet have come under attack from natural or man-made disasters. The best thing that we can do to face off an uncertain food future is to grow our own, buy local and learn what grows around you that can be used for food and medicine.

The more independent we become the better off we will be.

Get to know your neighbors, barter, and trade for the things you need. Learn to can, preserve, and cook by using whole foods.

Your wallet will thank you and for an extra bonus, you will be healthier too.

See you next time,

In Liberty, m

Clueless: Censorship Hearing Starts With Democrats Trying to Censor Robert Kennedy

By Victoria Taft | July 20, 2023

What if you held a hearing on government censorship but no one could speak because they'd been censored? Humorless and clueless Democrats tried this stunt during a committee meeting on Capitol Hill on Thursday. It would have succeeded had Republicans not let it happen.

The Select Subcommittee on the Weaponization of the Federal Government hearing on government censorship suffered this inauspicious beginning when congressional Democrats and an outside group called for the censorship of one of the witnesses, Robert F. Kennedy, Jr.

My PJ Media colleague Ben Bartee reported that it began when Democrats sent a letter to the Committee demanding that Kennedy be silenced at the hearing on censorship. The letter was penned by a far-Left organization called the Congressional Integrity Project, a group that targets Republicans and is staffed by many former Obama officials and financed by the Leftist foundation Arabella Advisors.

Committee Democrats, led by Vice Chair Stacey Plaskett, a non-voting representative from the U.S. Virgin Islands and representing the party of Rep. Pramila Jayapal (D-Wash.) and the rest of the Jew-hating "squad," accused the Democrat presidential candidate of anti-Semitism. Kennedy was knocked for comments he made about the COVID-19 virus and its effect on Jewish and black people.

"There is an argument that it is ethnically targeted. COVID-19 attacks certain races disproportionately," Kennedy said. "COVID-19 is targeted to attack Caucasians and black people. The people who are most immune are Ashkenazi Jews and Chinese."

"We don't know whether it was deliberately targeted or not but there are papers out there that show the racial or ethnic differential and impact," Kennedy hedged.

There are studies showing how the virus affected ethnicities differently, but Democrats decided this was a racist statement. Kennedy was outraged at the letter and the attempt to censor him even as the hearing began.

The moment he started talking, the Democrats went into censorship mode by making motions to censor Kennedy, points of order, accusations, and finally a vote to table Rep. Debbie Wasserman-Schultz's (D-Fla.) motion to cancel Kennedy's "testimony and degradation" and put it behind closed doors so the poor American people would not be subjected to words spoken by Joe Biden's primary opponent.

It's hard to believe, but the @DNC is attempting to prevent @RobertKennedyJr from speaking at a hearing on censorship. pic.twitter.com/5Qo0IaHG5O

Dr. Simon Goddek (@goddeketal)

July 20, 2023

The attempt to censor a censorship hearing left Americans of all stripes sputtering with contempt, especially Rep. Thomas Massie (R-Ky.), who characterized the censorship attempt as "cognitive dissonance at its finest."

Ironically, Democrats began today's @Weaponization hearing on censorship by voting to censor Robert Kennedy Jr's testimony. Watch @robertkennedyjr's answer on my question about #malinformation. pic.twitter.com/KTq5V7UkwZ

Thomas Massie (@RepThomasMassie)

July 20, 2023

Kennedy held up the letter, which claimed he had "repeatedly and recently spread vile and dangerous antisemitic and anti-Asian conspiracy theories that tarnish his credibility as a witness and must not be legitimized," and indignantly said:

In my entire life and why I'm under oath. In my entire life, I have never uttered a phrase that is either racist or antisemitic. I have spent my entire life – fighting in my professional career – fighting for Israel.

[...] I am being censored here through targets, through smears, through misinterpretations of what I've said. through lies through association which is a tactic which we all thought had been discredited and dispensed with after the Army McCarthy hearings in the 1950s. But those same weapons are now being deployed against me, to silence me. I know many of the people who wrote this letter. I don't believe there's a single person who believes who signed this letter who believes I'm anti-semitic. I do not believe that. There is no evidence.

Former Congressman Dennis Kucinich, who is Kennedy's campaign manager, sat behind Kennedy.

The irony of Democrats trying to censor a witness and a fellow Democrat at a committee hearing on government censorship is all the evidence you need to show how true a problem it is. It's utterly stunning.

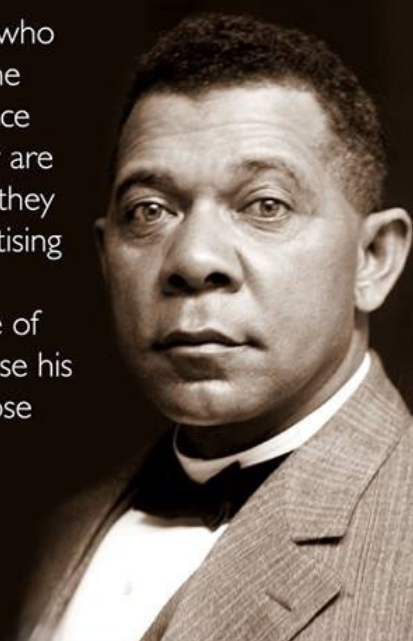

We tell you the truth at PJ Media. Arm yourself with information with our brand of opinion journalism, where satire, humor, and serious coverage collide. We don't need to tell you that the Democrats in all facets of government, including the White House, have attempted to kill conservative journalism through censorship on social media. Just read our coverage of the Twitter Files and recent court battles if you doubt it.

African American attorney J. L. Chestnut remembers George C. Wallace as "the most liberal judge that I had ever practiced law in front of" and as a Southern judge with moderate -- some even said liberal -- views of segregation and race relations. This is not the George Wallace that most Americans remember. He gained national notice as "the foremost person to preserve the Southern way of life," and as a hard-line segregationist who believed fiercely in states' rights. The following quotes, culled from speeches and interviews given over his four decades in the public eye, reflect the dramatic changes he underwent during his political career.

"There is another class of coloured people who make a business of keeping the troubles, the wrongs, and the hardships of the Negro race before the public. Having learned that they are able to make a living out of their troubles, they have grown into the settled habit of advertising their wrongs — partly because they want sympathy and partly because it pays. Some of these people do not want the Negro to lose his grievances, because they do not want to lose their jobs."

- Booker T. Washington (1865–1915)
Educator, author, orator, advisor to American presidents, former slave

I'm tired of liberals dividing this country up into little groups, setting them upon each other, breeding spite and envy, and then having the nerve to accuse conservatives of hatred.

The Preponderance—Kill the Innocent or Kill Their Innocence: Defying God

By Jim Hafeman

The popularity of killing babies, even after being born, is abhorrent. But, like all those not content with just civil unions and men peeing next to little girls, Nazis weren't at all happy with just getting a nod from voters to cull the human herd of black babies, they also demand to target the born children in their sick sexually deviant perversions by human trafficking and appeasing the growing number of pedophiles.

The left has begun suggesting that exercise is a rightwing act of racism, evidently to also target those living minority populations in another effort to have them die early.

The leftist neo-Nazis have gone so far into the abyss that Woodrow Wilson, their leftist Progressive icon and presenter of the first movie in the White House, Birth a Nation, would be very proud of the neo-liberals.

The Americas (US, Mexico and Canada; the Three Ameros) are in a major transition away from morality and concern for the citizens. The Beer Hall Putsch Movement of the 1920s resembles the fierce overthrow of institutions to give rise to leftists' doctrines.

In the May 1965 Issue of the Atlantic, Ernest Helperin wrote: Truth is, there are many factors working against the possibility of a dominant Communist influence in the affairs of Latin America. One is the emergence of a highly nationalistic middle class more disposed to exploiting Communist assistance than to adherence to Communist discipline. Another is the absence of revolutionary zeal among the urban working classes. Though the prospects in store for United States interests in Latin America may well be harsh, the chances of a Communist-dominated regime are slim indeed. There are many trends and incidents to substantiate this conclusion.

The simple interpretation is that control of the monetary exchange moved from those earning money to the government; workers identified as middle class disappeared as those in government prospered beyond their wildest dreams.

Latin America joined-in on the leftists' overthrows of both decency and a citizen-controlled government. Hugo Chávez and his successor Nicolás Maduro took control of Venezuelan government and put their harsh thumbs down on the citizenry.

The United States is undoubtedly reliving 1930s Germany's Kristallnacht since 2016, but instead of Israelites, the Nazis are truly hyperventilating while conservatives are targeted, especially MAGA conservatives.

While the neo-Nazis attempted to hide facts, promote anti-conspiracy theories, spy on the opposition and steal-away voters' votes in the 2016 Presidential Election. The mainstream-media took only one side when facts were ignored; the Democrats'.

The obvious disparities in the 2016 Election also gave rise to the lefts' hostilities toward citizens through Nazi COVID mandates, squelching protests by anyone not a leftist, and promoting the hateful killing of senior citizens.

SOUTHFIELD, Mich. (FOX 2) - Michigan Gov. Gretchen Whitmer has come under fire for a lot of decisions over the past four months as she's tried to navigate the state through a deadly pandemic. One of those is a policy that allowed nursing homes to house COVID-19 patients and she says the state was following the best advice at the time.

Unwillingness to engage with experts on extremely critical issues throughout COVID was no concern of the voters, reelecting the most incompetent and dishonest legislators and governors in 2022; but did they really win? Methinks thou dost protest too much!

As government and media receive guidance from non-elected officials on the left, who have no fear of retaliation for usurping their authority and unlimited power, it's the citizens who are directly in the line-of-fire.

Republicans have no sense of urgency to run interference on behalf of those voters whose votes were actually permitted to be counted, especially for those whose votes were subjugated by ballot fraud like those in easily manipulated black precincts.

The manipulation of information in order to sustain the lefts' control over government, economy, health, freedom, mobility, and education, the death of democracy itself is lying in wait for a cleansing rain followed by the natural antiseptic of sunlight.

The current unemployment rate is factually 7.2% as indicated in the US U6 data.

Those working in government jobs tally to over 22,710,000. Government has become the largest employer in the nation, with the US government being the largest employer, which overshadows private sector jobs.

Persons associated with government have become the least trustworthy of all citizens, particularly intelligence officials, energy, environment, and investigative agencies, NASA, school teachers and representative government unions, and, of course the most screw-you collection of high-paid ingrates in the in elected and unelected executive, legislative and judicial branches of government.

From the earliest days of the 21st Century when leftists' Democrats' cash-for-clunkers, ban on incandescent light bulbs, and U. S. economic downgrade, we've been thrown into the financial swamp of despair. But now, the Democrats want to not only ban incandescent light bulbs, but also refrigerators, water heaters, gas stoves and gas stations.

Public education creates the mental giants that willingly vote for these people.

Breitbart's Morris: Government Institutions Have 'Zero Credibility'

After Hunter Biden Laptop Story By Pam Key | 23 Jul 2023

Breitbart politics editor Emma-Jo Morris said on this week's broadcast of FNC's "Sunday Morning Futures" that our government institutions had zero credibility after the Hunter Biden laptop story's social media censorship.

Anchor Maria Bartiromo said, "You testified in front of this committee last week, walking through how the intelligence community censored you. That had to be incredibly tough for you."

Morris said, "Yeah, it was quite surreal, you know? This has been my life over the last three years, and sometimes I forget about how scandalous it is. It's just so scandalous. And then you get in front of a crowd that may be new to the story or may be new to you especially after such aspersions have been cast on me and my reporting, and you just tell the story exactly how it is and exactly how you know it to be true, and you do know it to be true."

The feedback from it has just been incredible. It's been incredible. People know what happened. The American people are very wise, and they know what happened. What I've been hearing from them has just been gratitude for finally saying what everybody has been thinking, which is we know what happened, and this is what it is."

She continued, "There was something that was really striking about the reaction to that testimony which was I think the reason why it went so viral and why people had such a strong reaction was this moment when I was reading that Politico headline of the former 51 intelligence officials say this is Russian disinformation, and I kind of burst out laughing because it's so ridiculous it's beyond parody, and we all know it."

There's this thing that we have to, I guess, pretend to take that claim seriously. But I think that the reason why people so resonated with that is because our institutions have zero credibility, like, zero credibility. And yet everybody in Washington and New York and in the establishment walks around pretending that these are serious people, and I just couldn't do that."

Editor's Note: Like me, Emma-Jo Morris found it quite humorous to refer to all the laptop censorship-advocate co-conspirators as "intelligence officials".

The role of citizens is critical. Apply with your county/parish clerk to be an election inspector and insist on working the full day in the absentee ballot office (sequestration).

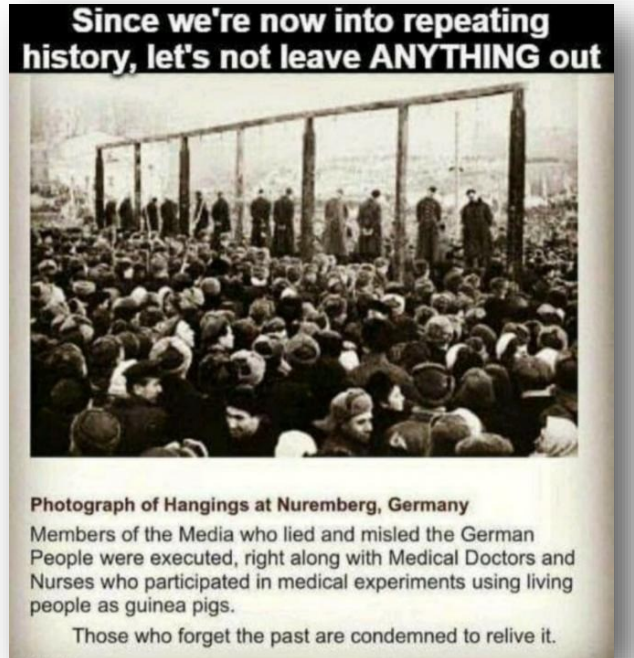

Ensure all received absentee ballots have a match with the absentee ballot requests. It is unlikely fascists states like Michigan would have a verifying watermark on their issued ballots by-then, so it's imperative to neuter the cheaters and traitors.

The objectives of impeaching Biden-Harris must be coordinated with the successful transition of the executive branch to the new executive officers; Trump-Noem (or Robinson).

The evidence is overwhelming regarding Biden and his sidekick Harris, who has also proven herself an Article 25 candidate.

To avert the continuation of a constitutional crisis, all offenses must be introduced to the House on January 1, 2025 and forwarded to the Senate that afternoon for prosecution. It is also imperative to strip Biden-Harris of all entitlements and prepare a docket for the new the Prosecuting Attorney Department.

The boundless revolution is upon the nation and the peaceful return to an honorable and trustworthy government cannot fail; failure will require the shedding blood of tyrants.

In Michigan, prepping the groundwork for stealing the 2024 election

By Monica Showalter | July 20, 2023

In some banana republic like maneuvers against dissidents ahead of election time, the State of Michigan has charged 16 Republican state electors with multiple felonies for allegedly attempting to "overturn" the results of the 2020 election.

Their crime? Reacting to the obvious fraud that happened right before their eyes in that hotly disputed election. But that's not how the Michigan attorney general playing her own version of Vyshinsky put it. According to J.J. Sefton at Ace of Spades:
In Michigan, two of the people who have the most to say about vote-counting are the governor and the attorney general. At the time it was Gretchen "Wretched" Whitmer and Dana Nessel. They're still there. And by all indications they are champing at the bit to deliver Michigan on a platter to the Democrat nominee.

This is highly strange stuff, given that this kind of prosecution for protesting the way an election was conducted has never been done, and what's worse, this kind of protest itself is nothing new, as Democrats have done it with alacrity, most notably in 2016. Sefton notes that Michigan had several instances of profoundly suspect activity in its electoral apparat in 2020, as seen in its illegal casting out of election observers from the counting, something even famous electoral fraudster Hugo Chávez didn't do, and blocking observation from windows by covering them up with cardboard pizza boxes. Anyone doing that obviously has something going on that he doesn't want electoral observers seeing. Sefton also notes suspect truck activity on video suggesting ballot fraud.

Anyone questioning that and the extraordinary circumstances seen in this Michigan election, and having the temerity to complain about it, now faces 29 years in prison. That's serious third-world, or even Soviet-style repression of free speech. What exactly are electors expected to do when they see widespread fraud? Based on Michigan Vyshinsky, they're supposed to bow down and assert what they know to be untrue, the way Stalin did to keep his sycophants in line.

And what's remarkable is that it's being done three years after their side "won" the 2020 election. You'd think they'd have more serious priorities, given that whatever the Republican electors did, it didn't matter as far as the results went.

But Sefton explained what the game was in that belated move on dissenters:

[Michigan attorney-general] Dana Nessel is a filthy criminal apparatchik wearing the moldering skin-suit of law and order, parading around and demanding respect. Three years later, this move serves three purposes: destroy decent people who are her political enemies and warn anyone else who dares defy her and ... lay the groundwork to steal the 2024 election for the Democrat nominee.

Hear that? Anyone questioning whatever it is the Democrats plan to do to steal the election in 2024 is now put on notice — question the election, and face economic ruin through legal bills if not long terms in prison.

This is not what free societies do. This is what tyrannies built on beds of lies do — first the lies, then the violence, with the violence supporting the lies, and the lies supporting the violence. That was how Alexander Solzhenitsyn once explained it, and suddenly we are seeing that happening in Michigan.

That tells us a lot about what they are up to as 2024 approaches. Anyone valuing an honest election must keep an extremely vigilant eye on Michigan and well before 2024.

Morning prayer, And the Lord smelled a sweet savour; and the Lord said in his heart, I will not again curse the ground any more for man's sake; for the imagination of man's heart is evil from his youth; neither will I again smite any more every thing living, as I have done. Genesis 8:21

Inspiration, we are all guilty of making a promise we couldn't keep! Our promises can be unrealistic or unattainable and we have no control over unseen obstacles that make it impossible to keep our end of the bargain. God is in control and all things happen according to His plan. He is the only one with the ability to always keep a promise. He is dependable, trustworthy, and reliable as He promises to love us and forgive us when we sin against Him.

Prayer: Dear God, thank you for loving us and promising to forgive us when we sin. In Jesus' Name, Amen.

The New Authoritarians: How Professors Are Now Calling for Biden to Simply Defy the Supreme Court

By Jonathan Turley | July 24, 2023

Below is my column in the Hill on the call of professors for President Joe Biden to simply defy the Supreme Court and decide for himself what is constitutional and what is not.

Here is the column:

“I shall resist any illegal federal court order.”

When “the Court’s interpretation of the Constitution is egregiously wrong,” the president should refuse to follow it.

Those two statements were made roughly 60 years apart. The first is from segregationist Alabama Gov. George Wallace (D). The second was made by two liberal professors this month.

In one of the most chilling developments in our history, the left has come to embrace the authoritarian language and logic of segregationists in calling for defiance and radical measures against the Supreme Court.

In a recent open letter, Harvard law professor Mark Tushnet and San Francisco State University political scientist Aaron Belkin called upon President Joe Biden to defy rulings of the Supreme Court that he considers “mistaken” in the name of “popular constitutionalism.” Thus, in light of the court’s bar on the use of race in college admissions, they argue that Biden should just continue to follow his own constitutional interpretation.

The use of the affirmative action case is ironic, since polls have consistently shown that the majority of the public does not support the use of race in college admissions. Indeed, even in the most liberal states, such as California, voters have repeatedly rejected affirmative action in college admissions. Polls further show that a majority support the Supreme Court’s recent decisions.

So despite referenda and polls showing majority support for barring race in admissions, academics are pushing to impose their own values, regardless of the views of the public or of the courts.

However, even if these measures were popular, it would not make them right. It is precisely what segregationists such as Sen. James Eastland (D-Miss.) argued, that “all the people of the South are in favor of segregation. And Supreme Court or no Supreme Court, we are going to maintain segregated schools.”

Tushnet and Belkin cite with approval Biden’s declaration that this is “not a normal Supreme Court.” Biden’s view of normalcy appears to be a court that agrees with his fluid view of constitutional law, by which he can forgive roughly a half of trillion dollars in loans or impose a national eviction moratorium without a vote of Congress.

Tushnet and Belkin know their audience. Biden has previously evinced little respect for the Constitution or the courts. Take the eviction case. In an earlier decision, a majority of justices had declared that Biden’s actions were unconstitutional, confirming what many of us had said for months.

Even after the majority declared it unconstitutional, Biden wanted to reissue the national moratorium. White House counsel and most scholars told him the move would be blatantly unconstitutional and defy the express ruling of the court. Instead, he consulted the only law professor willing to tell him what he wanted to hear and did it anyway. It was quickly again declared unconstitutional.

Other commentators and academics have gone from implied to open contempt for our constitutional norms.

Georgetown University Law School Professor Rosa Brooks was celebrated for her appearance on MSNBC’s “The ReidOut” after declaring that Americans are “slaves” to the U.S. Constitution and that the Constitution itself is now the problem for the country.

MSNBC commentator Elie Mystal called the U.S. Constitution “trash” and argued that we should simply just dump it.

Rep. Alexandria Ocasio-Cortez (D-N.Y.) has questioned the need for a Supreme Court.

In a New York Times column, “The Constitution Is Broken and Should Not Be Reclaimed,” law professors Ryan D. Doerfler of Harvard and Samuel Moyn of Yale called for the Constitution to be “radically altered” to “reclaim America from constitutionalism.”

So the danger is now “constitutionalism,” as opposed to what Tushnet and Belkin call “popular constitutionalism.”

Many have called for the court to be packed with liberal appointees to bring it back to what Biden views as “normal.” Some of these calls before Biden’s Supreme Court commission echoed the same views as Tushnet and Belkin. Indeed, they cite Harvard professor Nikolas Bowie, who rejected the notion that “the constitutional interpretation held by a majority of Supreme Court justices should be ‘superior’ to the interpretations held by majorities of the other branches.”

The Framers saw the Supreme Court as playing a counter-majoritarian role when it is necessary to protect individual rights and constitutional norms. The alternative is what the Framers viewed as a tyranny of the majority, where popularity rather than principle prevails. For that reason, the Court has often stood with the least popular in our society and, since Marbury v. Madison, has had the final word on what the Constitution means.

Justice Robert Jackson once observed that he and his colleagues “are not final because we are infallible, we are infallible because we are final.”

That finality has been essential to the stability of our system for generations. While presidents such as Andrew Jackson taunted the court for its inability to enforce its rulings without an army, it has never needed one. Respect for the court is in our DNA. No matter our disagreements with a given decision, Americans will not tolerate defiance of the institution and the rule of law. That is why, despite the support for court packing by many law professors (including Tushnet, Belkin and Bowie), the public remains staunchly opposed to it.

What is most striking about these professors is how they continue to claim they are defenders of democracy, yet seek to use unilateral executive authority to defy the courts and, in cases like the tuition forgiveness and affirmative action, the majority of the public. They remain the privileged elite of academia, declaring their values as transcending both constitutional and democratic processes.

The problem is indeed “constitutionalism,” and their view of “popular constitutionalism” is a euphemism for “popular justice.”

Tushnet and Belkin show the release that comes with rejecting constitutionalism. They declare that it is not enough merely to pack the court: “The threat that MAGA justices pose is so extreme that reforms that do not require congressional approval are needed at this time, and advocates and experts should encourage President Biden to take immediate action to limit the damage.”

In other words, they are calling for Biden to declare himself the final arbiter of what the Constitution means and to exercise unilateral executive power without congressional approval. He is to become a government unto himself.

No doubt a new variation of “popular constitutionalism” would then be crafted if a Republican were ever elected and proceeded to mete out an alternative view of justice.

This is what Tushnet has advocated in “taking the Constitution away from the courts.” Once the courts are removed from constitutionalism, however, we will be left where we began centuries ago: with the fleeting satisfaction of popular justice.

Biden admin confirms it's withholding key funds for schools with hunting courses, GOP call it 'shameful'

Biden administration says it is interpreting recently-passed law 'as written by Congress' to block funding

By Thomas Catenacci | Fox News | July 31, 2023

The Biden administration confirmed to Fox News Digital that it is withholding critical funds for elementary and secondary schools nationwide with hunting or archery programs in their curriculum.

The Department of Education explained in a statement that its funding decisions were based on the plain text interpretation of the Bipartisan Safer Communities Act (BSCA), which Congress passed and President Biden signed last year after a string of mass shootings. The agency's interpretation means funding for shooting sport activities earmarked under the Elementary and Secondary Education Act (ESEA) of 1965 will be blocked across the country.

"This prohibition applies to all ESEA funds," a Department of Education spokesperson told Fox News Digital. "The prohibition went into effect immediately on June 25, 2022 and applies to all existing and future awards under all ESEA programs, including [21st Century Community Learning Centers]. The Department is administering the bipartisan law as written by Congress."

Overall, the administration's decision to withhold funds for such programs may impact thousands of schools and millions of American students.

Fox News Digital reported last week that federal guidance highlighting the Education Department's funding decision and interpretation of the BSCA was circulated among hunting education groups earlier this year, sparking concerns about the future of hunting and archery programs in schools.

Tommy Floyd, the president of the National Archery in the Schools Program, told Fox News Digital his organization boasts 1.3 million students from nearly 9,000 schools across 49 states who are enrolled in archery courses. Some of those schools have already canceled plans to include archery or hunting education courses in their curriculum due to the federal guidance.

"It's a negative for children. As a former educator of 30-plus years, I was always trying to find a way to engage students," Floyd said in an interview last week. "In many communities, it's a shooting sport, and the skills from shooting sports, that help young people grow to be responsible adults. They also benefit from relationships with role models."

According to the International Hunter Education Association, hunter education courses train and certify more than 500,000 students annually. Such courses are a reason hunting related injury rates have declined for years while populations of deer, wild turkey, elk, geese and other species of game have increased exponentially for years.

In June 2022, the BSCA was passed with large majorities in the House and Senate before Biden signed it into law. The push to pass the bill — which broadly seeks to promote "safer, more inclusive and positive" school environments, according to the Education Department — came after mass shootings at a grocery market in Buffalo, New York, and a school in Uvalde, Texas.

The legislation included an amendment to an ESEA subsection listing prohibited uses for federal school funding. That amendment prohibits ESEA funds from helping provide any person with a dangerous weapon or to provide "training in the use of a dangerous weapon."

However, in a letter to Education Secretary Miguel Cardona earlier this month, Sens. John Cornyn, R-Texas, and Thom Tillis, R-N.C., expressed concern that the agency is misinterpreting the provision which they said was included in the BSCA last year to withhold education funds for programs training school resource officers, not to preclude funding for hunting and archery classes. School resource officer training was funded under a separate provision.

In addition, other GOP lawmakers have since blasted the Biden administration over its interpretation of the BSCA

"Hunting has been a tradition since the beginning of human history. The Biden admin's decision to push its elitist values on Tennesseans isn't going to fly," Rep. Mark Green, R-Tenn., who chairs the Homeland Security Committee, said in response to the Fox News Digital report last week. "This is shameful, but not at all surprising," Rep. Dan Bishop, R-N.C., added. "The Biden admin will take any opportunity to stomp on your constitutional rights — even down to teaching kids archery and hunting skills."

The ESEA is the primary source of federal aid for elementary and secondary education across the country, according to the Congressional Research Service. The BSCA earmarked an additional $1 billion for educational activities under the ESEA.

"The Biden administration is DEFUNDING school hunting and archery programs. Yes, you read that right — DEFUNDING them," Rep. Tom Tiffany, R-Wisc., tweeted Friday. "Wisconsin students should not be pawns in Joe Biden's misguided crusade against America's sportsmen."

"Enjoying the outdoors is a wonderful activity and interest in hunting, fishing, camping, and other such activities should be encouraged and cultivated from a young age," Rep. Doug LaMalfa, R-Calif., said. "Withholding authorized funding is ridiculous."

Hunting and pro-Second Amendment groups like Safari Club International, National Shooting Sports Foundation, International Order of T. Roosevelt and National Rifle Association also criticized the Education Department.

"This is a direct attack on our outdoor heritage and America's ability to educate the next generation of sportsmen," the International Order of T. Roosevelt tweeted.

CDC Discovers COVID-19 Among Other Diseases In Illegal Medical Lab

OGAN's Abril Elfi | Monday, July 31, 2023

An illegal medical laboratory that was filled with bioengineered mice containing viruses such as COVID-19, HIV and Malaria has been discovered in Fresno, California.

Following months of investigation, the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) and federal authorities have found hundreds of mice containing infectious diseases in a warehouse.

There had also been reports that medical waste and hazardous materials were discovered.

Local and federal authorities spent months investigating a warehouse in Fresno County, #California, that they suspect was home to an illegal, unlicensed laboratory for #covid research full of lab mice, medical waste and hazardous materials. #COVID19 pic.twitter.com/yuFPqtijZH — Kashmir Watch (@kashmirwatch06) July 29, 2023

On Thursday, Joe Prado, the Fresno County Public Health Department assistant director, released a statement regarding the situation.

"The Fresno County Public Health Department has been evaluating and assessing the activities of an unlicensed laboratory," he said. "The evaluation required coordination and collaboration with multiple federal and state agencies to determine and classify biological and chemical contents onsite, in addition to assessing jurisdictional authority under this unique situation."

On March 3rd, court documents stated that city investigators began searching the unlicensed lab company, known as Prestige BioTech, due to building violations. After a second search completed on March 16th, public health officials uncovered a room where they suspected the production of pregnancy tests as well as COVID-19 tests.

According to the documents, more than 800 biological chemicals such as blood, tissue and other bodily fluids were found. Additionally, nearly 1,000 lab mice were discovered on site and were detected with at least 20 potential infectious diseases including HIV, Hepatitis and Malaria.

The press reported that Wang Zhaolin, a representative of Prestige BioTech, claimed that the mice found had been "genetically engineered to catch and spread the COVID-19 virus."

Reportedly, the rodents were taken by authorities in April. Out of all the mice found, roughly 800 had been euthanized and 175 were found already dead.

As stated by court documents, Prestige BioTech failed to provide a license that allows any laboratory activity.

In July, Prado announced that all dangerous materials had been eliminated. An inquiry into the origins of the illicit medical lab and all lab operations is still ongoing.

Mystery Outbreak of a Deadly, Paralyzing Disease Has Experts Baffled

A national state of emergency has been declared in Peru as doctors battle an outbreak of a rare disease that can cause life-long paralysis or death.

More than 230 cases of Guillain-Barré syndrome have been reported in the South American country, with more than half the cases occurring in a brief five-week period from June to July.

Normally a rare disorder, GBS typically strikes only about 3,000 people per year in the US, according to Johns Hopkins Medicine.

Four people in Peru have reportedly died of the disease since the beginning of the year, and the still-unknown cause of the outbreak has health officials scrambling.

"I think the origins of this [outbreak] remain still not completely investigated," Dr. William Schaffner, an infectious disease specialist at Vanderbilt University Medical Center in Nashville, Tennessee, told Healthline.

What an Amazing Gift!

Rambling, from a Yooper farmer's perspective by James Niemela

What a beautifully busy time it's been on the farm! We're doing market 3 days a week, and soon will be opening up our farm stand near home, probably one day a week anyway.

We've been kept busy, with all kinds of garden work. Pruning and tying up tomatoes, cultivating, hilling spuds, planting more succession crops; in the last few days or so we've seeded in hundreds of kale in soil blocks, and more lettuce. The lettuce will mature for our late fall sales, and the kale will be ready for our winter sales.

For anyone wondering about the pruning tomatoes part, there are two different types of tomato plants...three really. Determinate, semi-determinate, and indeterminate. The determinate kind are bush tomatoes, they generally shouldn't be pruned. The semi-determinate type ramble a bit more, so can be pruned lightly if at all.

The indeterminate type are kind of like yours truly- they will ramble on and on, all over, unless kept in check. I try to keep myself in check, but it's hard sometimes. When my brain works, my mouth keeps going, or my fingers keep pecking away. It does, however, provide me an easy excuse, if something goes overly long, and folks wonder what took me so long- "They wouldn't stop listening to me!!" :)

Anyway, the indeterminate vines will grow longer and longer, and set many rambling sideshoots; so we try to keep a balance between fruit and vine. On the cherry type, I like to take the sideshoots off, up to the one just below the first blossom cluster, then let two vines develop, and continue taking side shoots off those two vines (and also try to keep up on tying them up to the support stakes as needed).

Often when they get quite tall, we get too busy to keep up on the pruning as much, but by that time the plant is well established so I'm not so concerned with pushing it; and of course, the season is getting later, with the inevitable cool weather, so at some point it becomes a case of diminishing returns. The key is airflow- thick foliage close to the ground, keeping things damp and hindering airflow, is a recipe for foliar diseases like Septoria Leaf Spot or blights.

It seems we always get some leaf diseases anyway, and no wonder. We're asking a tropical perennial plant to grow in a cool, short season like ours. It's a wonder we get any tomatoes. Since they were originally tropical perennials, they think it's summer forever; we know it's not long before winter comes knocking at the door, so we try to hasten the harvest.

By removing some of the foliage, the plant can direct more energy to the fruitmaking process. We've already eaten a few of the little Sungold tomatoes this season, and soon they should start appearing on our tables at market. The squash are vining out nicely now, with baby squash appearing- Amish Pie Squash, Acorn, Delicata, New England Pie Pumpkin, Long Island Cheese Pumpkin, North Georgia Candy Roaster squash, Butternut, and I think there's some spaghetti squash out there as well.

This morning I did some hand pollinating of New England Pie Pumpkin and Amish Pie squash; saving seed from them will ensure there's seed for next year, come what may abroad or at home. It also will help the plants get acclimated to our soil, microclimate, and management practices.

We generally save seed from a number of different types of plants each year, for seed to replant in coming seasons.

Over the years, we've learned how to save seed from lettuce, beets, carrots, tomatoes, peppers, peas, beans, squash, watermelons, bunching onions, kale, a couple herbs like dill and cilantro, radish, and probably some others I'm not recalling at the moment. Seeds are the spark of the farm....no seed, no food. So, I like to back myself up with the know-how of seed saving; while I do buy seed every year, if push came to shove, I wouldn't HAVE TO buy seed.

Hand pollinating the squash in a way so the bees don't cause crosses, is quite an easy process. You go out the evening before, and select the male and female blossoms you want to pollinate. Poke a stick or sturdy plant stem into the ground near them, so you can find them again. You generally want to select blossoms from different plants, and it helps if you use a bigger number of males to females to keep the genetic diversity varied, to prevent inbreeding collapse.

The female blossoms are easy to identify- they have a tiny pumpkin, zucchini, or whatever you're growing, at the base of the flower. You can tell which flowers are ready, and would open the next morning (if you didn't tape them shut), by the slight orange streaking on them.

You take a bit of tape and tape the end of the blossoms shut, so they don't open before you get there, and have some bee bring pollen from a different squash into the flower. In the morning, simply pick the male blossoms, bring them to the females, then gently tear off the end of the blossoms, tearing off the petals from the male until only the stamen is left, then roll it around and over the pistil of the female flower, to transfer some pollen. Then gently tape the female flower shut again, to prevent bees from going in and messing up your breeding process by bringing in other pollen. It sounds complicated, but actually it's easy as apple pie.

It's really amazing the diversity of plants God created. Some are naturally self-pollinating (tomatoes, lettuce, beans, peas, and some others), and don't need the action of bees. Others (corn, brassicas, squashes, beets, carrots, and many more) need cross-pollinating, or they won't set fruit. Some plants have both male and female flowers, others have either male or female flowers, but not both on the same plant.

To think that God simply spoke it all into existence, is amazing. What a mighty God! And the most amazing thing of all, is that He condescends to men of low estate, sent His Son to die for us, to save us from our sins!

Mankind who was created perfect in the image of God, but fell through disobedience in the Garden of Eden, and we as descendants of Adam and Eve, who inherited a fallen nature from our forefathers, can be reborn through repentance and faith in Jesus, and become the sons and daughters of the Most High God! What an amazing gift!

People don't trust the government because a billionaire child trafficking ring was exposed and we still don't have the names of who participated.

Wisdom - Chapter 4

¹⁶ The upright who dies condemns the godless who survive, and youth quickly perfected condemns the lengthy old age of the wicked. ¹⁷ These people see the end of the wise without understanding what the Lord has in store or why he has taken such a one to safety; ¹⁸ they look on and sneer, but the Lord will laugh at them. ¹⁹ Soon they will be corpses without honour, objects of horror among the dead for ever. For he will shatter them and fling them headlong and dumbfounded. He will shake them from their foundations; they will be utterly laid waste, a prey to grief, and their memory will perish. ²⁰ When the count of their sins has been drawn up, in terror they will come, and their crimes, confronting them, will accuse them.

"I consider the foundation of the Constitution as laid on this ground that 'all powers not delegated to the United States, by the Constitution, nor prohibited by it to the states, are reserved to the states or to the people.' To take a single step beyond the boundaries thus specially drawn around the powers of Congress, is to take possession of a boundless field of power, not longer susceptible of any definition." – Thomas Jefferson, Opinion on the Constitutionality of a National Bank, 1791

It seems it has been such a long time since our world tipped off its balance in 2020. So long since life was normal; since mayonnaise didn't cost $8.99 a jar. I don't know how the rest of you are, but I am a person that has a tendency to easily be submerged in the crazies of today. 2023. It's all encompassing. So much to do to keep the nose above water- So much that MUST be done.

Someone once commented, a little too breathily, to my little sis about how busy I was with my family. My baby sis cracked back matter-of-factly, "It's sink or swim!"

Ahh, the wisdom. We are all pretty much in that same boat.

"Sink or swim" quite accurately sums it up, whether speaking of keeping your family moving along in a semblance of order, or trying to keep our heads above water in this crazy time.

The other day I took my kids to town with me. We went grocery shopping and the little girls came in with me and used the little red carts in Festival Foods. It was so much fun- All giggling and ponytails!

Taking turns on who would put each selection in which cart; TSC for chicken feed. Pizza for supper at the park. It was so much fun and the kids loved it.

After all the dust had settled, and we were home again, my little girl was leaning on the door and looking at me, still sitting all mama-exhausted in the vehicle. A little starry eyed, she says, "Are you thinking of all the fun we had?"

😊 It made me stop and think.

They were really such simple things. So basic. But, how long has it been since we've done something just for fun? Other than the usual family picnics on holidays, etc.? It's hurry and rush and everything should have been done yesterday. So much to do, and no time to do it.

I know, at least for me, most of my life's rush is unavoidable. But, is it really impossible to once in a while just take the slow lane and smell the roses? If it puts a look like that on our kids faces, I think it's time well invested.

So, although constant vigilance is absolutely necessary in the keeping of a free America, it's a beautiful and great thing, also, to pause once in awhile and take the time to do the simple things that matter to the little people. Just 'cause we can. Then, back to the battle again!

HUSKIES FOR AMERICA NEWS

Dear Alumni and Friends,

As you know, our youth today have long been denied the classical educational components in the public education system, particularly in the areas of US government and history. This problem has been compounded by the isolation most were subjected to during Covid, resulting in the fact that many of the Michigan Tech Students have never had the opportunity to visit our Nation’s Capital and if they did, the focus may have been limited number of landmarks, many of which are not as educational as others.

I am in the process of planning an “Alternate Spring Break” for March of 2024. This trip would take a group of Michigan Tech students to Washington D.C. for a rich educational experience. We hope an added benefit will be that the trip will help recruit more students to participate in our conservative organizations.

Some of the sites we could visit could be as follows, depending on the student’s interest:

- The White House
- The Capitol
- The Pentagon
- Smithsonian National Museum of American History
- International Spy Museum
- National Archives
- African American Civil War Museum
- United States Holocaust Memorial Museum
- Lincoln Memorial
- Washington Monument
- Martin Luther King Memorial
- Korean War Memorial
- World War II Memorial
- Arlington National Cemetery
- Victims of Communism Museum
- Vietnam Veterans Memorial
- Arlington National Cemetery

Having led a similar trip before with middle school students, I am hoping we can spend a minimum of four days in Washington D.C., as my experience is that three days is not enough time. After visited the Holocaust Memorial Museum, I can attest that that alone is worth the trip. I have also heard great things about the Victims of Communism Museum, which is new.

I have already discussed the trip with the Young Americans for Freedom students, and they are very excited about possibility of going. Although I am still working on the budget, we are assuming the students can cover the cost of their own meals and hope to raise money to pay for the remainder of the trip. We are planning on having about twenty students participate. If you would be willing to help support this trip, please donate to Michigan Tech’s Liberty and Freedom Fund through Huskies for America and let Jarek Drelich at streamtrout@protonmail.com know that you would like the funding to go towards the Washington D.C. trip. Feel free to contact me at laartman@up.net or 906-370-5221 for more information about the trip or to provide input.

Thank you in advance for your support.

Respectfully,

Lynn A. Artman

Did You Know?

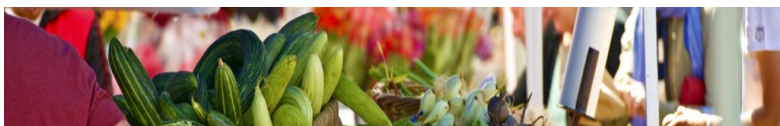

RABBITS EAT THEIR FECES.

After eating them, they will digest it again like normal food. Rabbits have two kinds of droppings, little black round ones and softer black ones known as cecotropes. The cecotrope droppings are the ones that they eat and they do this so they can re-absorb any undigested nutrients from their food. This process is normally done once a day.

Michigan
Technological University

There will be an organizational meeting of Michigan Tech alumni, faculty, staff and friends on Saturday, August 5, at 9 am at Victoria's Kitchen in Houghton. The purpose of this meeting is to form a group that focuses on issues related to Michigan Tech.

All of us are aware of the many changes that have occurred at MTU in the past several years. These changes have negatively affected the atmosphere at Tech and have degraded the education received at MTU. In general, a progressive anti-American agenda has infiltrated the campus. With few exceptions this is a nationwide problem.

Unfortunately, most conservative faculty have left or retired. Presently it appears that Prof. Jarek Drelich, PhD is the last faculty member standing as an active advocate for conservative values. He needs help and this group will be an important source of support. There are multiple ways that we can influence attitudes and policy at Tech. Most importantly we need to be organized.

Several avenues to be pursued include contacting motivated MTU alumni & friends who will be willing to support this group in person, financially and with time working on projects via social media and local media. I will discuss a national free speech organization of colleges and universities that we are joining. Tech will have its own alumni website.

It will be very important to support current campus groups under the Huskies for America student organization and local conservative groups especially the UP Patriots.

I hope to see many of you at Victoria's Kitchen on August 5th.

Alan, MTU Class of 77, Hancock HS Class of 71
