LAYING IT ON THE LINE PREPARING FOR 2008 & 2009

On FOX News Sunday, February 25, 2007, the host asked Pennsylvania's Governor, Edward Rendell, if he would be interested in being the Vice-President nominee for 2008. Governor Rendell, a Democrat, stated to the host that he has not worked for anyone for over 30 years; he likes being his own boss. Those words are the most telling about the modern career politician.

On the horizon is the North America Union (NAU), a trade, monetary and governance system based on the European Union. We quickly realize that those in government like Rendell have absolutely no concept of a Republic and will sell us out for the almighty dollar. The onset of the NAU comes on the heels of full neglect of the borders, the U. S. Supreme Court Kelo v. New London decision, vaccines mandated by the Republican Texas Governor, the spraying of toxins in our skies for weather modification experiments, global warming hysteria, massive cover-ups of incompetence exercised during the 1990s, the Patriot Act, the Model Emergency Health Powers Act, the UN's Agenda 21, Codex and the WHO to name but a few sovereignty-killers.

Dr. Heidi Cullen of The Weather Channel is a big promoter of the Global Warming scare. She stated that there must be a "freedom of scientific expression. We (her and TWC) believe in the science of CO2 emissions." She also had the audacity to proclaim the issue is scientific and not political. In light of her proclamations and the winning of an Oscar by Al Gore for his dramatic theories on global warming, we now look forward to the days of limited, or more accurately put, restricted and controlled travel, except by those political elitists flying around in their fuel-burning jets with a very heavy CO2 footprint to spread the word about global warming and of course to attend their political fundraisers.

As Congress remained mute about using our national guard troops to fight a war in a foreign land, they quickly spewed anti-war rhetoric on Sunday talk shows and one the floors of Congress. They're not against the troops of course, they're just against spending money foolishly to fight terrorism when it would be better spent to battle global warming and inflict massive economic casualties upon the working members of society.

President Bush was quite poignant when he admitted the bottom-line is always the money. Money drove jobs overseas and money drives initiatives like inoculation programs, global warming, drunk driving laws, seat belt laws, helmet laws, abortion, euthanasia, human genome projects, social welfare and a wide variety of other social and economic programs. The taxpayers are responsible for funding all the programs one way or another, even the ones espoused by the United Nations.

Many political pundits, especially those in office, are promoting the idea of getting rid of term limits in Michigan. There are a variety of reasons to do so, among them is the interesting tidbit is that heads of our government agencies aren't intimidated by people who come and go from Lansing. This is yet one more statement that is very telling about the modern career politician. That also speaks volumes about those who we provide pay and benefits to by April 15th of each year. "Throw the bums out!" was a political statement of years gone by. It's time to renew that statement.

If you're a Christian voter in the United States you may have noticed that your basic principles have been referred to as the Christian-Wrong; belittling the Christian Right. What is most disturbing is that the term is most often used by Republicans to describe the conservative movement within the Party. So, if the Democrats don't believe in God and a large number of Republicans don't believe in Christian values, where do God-fearing citizens turn for representation?

There has been a dramatic escalation of third party talk since the communists have taken over the House and the Republicans had abandoned their base and become metro-sexual neo-cons by taking on liberal principles and ignoring the constitutional imbalances. We continue to swallow the rhetoric; hook, line and sinker. Every time a highly polished career politician works a room or speaks to an audience live or on-the-air, they know full well we are all political saps.

We've been down this road before, but we suggest that those of you who actually give a crap about the future of the U. S., spend some time researching the various political parties in America. A good starting link is on the right side just below this article. But, let it be understood, that when conservatives identify a quality third party to rally behind, they must do so in a collective and intentional manner. Please, just remember what Ross Perot did to us.

HOW TO RECALL ENEMY SYMPATHIZERS IN MICHIGAN

OFFICERS SUBJECT TO RECALL

All elective officers in the state, except judicial officers, are subject to recall by the voters of their respective districts. An officer who is being recalled may continue to perform the duties of his or her office until the result of the recall election is certified (168.951).

TIME OF FILING

A recall petition cannot be filed until the officer whose recall is sought has served at least six months in his or her current term of office. It may be necessary for the county clerk to check state and local statutes to determine the exact date when the officer's current term began.

A recall petition cannot be filed during the last six months of an officer's term of office (168.951).

SPONSOR OF RECALL WORDING

- Must be a registered voter in the same district as officeholder to be recalled.
- County Clerk issues a receipt for recall wording.

CLARITY REVIEW

County Election Commissioners are required to review the language of a recall petition before the petition is circulated.

Submission of Language

Sponsors of a recall effort submit language of their petition to the Board of Election Commissioners in the county where the officeholder resides (168.952(2)). The Board is comprised of the county clerk, county treasurer and chief judge of probate (168.23). Under normal circumstances, the language is submitted to the county clerk in a letter or on the proposed recall petition form. A separate submission must be made for each officer whose recall is sought. The county clerk accepting the petition language issues a receipt to the sponsor of the language, which shows the sponsor's name, address, phone number, and the date of the filing. The county clerk retains a copy of the receipt for the Board's records.

Scheduling Clarity Review

The Board is required to meet sometime between the 10th and 20th day after the filing of the recall language to conduct the clarity hearing.

When the required meeting is held, the function of the Board is TO DETERMINE WHETHER EACH REASON FOR THE RECALL STATED IN THE PETITION IS OR IS NOT OF SUFFICIENT CLARITY TO ENABLE THE OFFICER WHOSE RECALL IS SOUGHT AND THE ELECTORS TO IDENTIFY THE COURSE OF CONDUCT WHICH IS THE BASIS FOR THE RECALL. The officer whose recall is sought and the sponsors of the petition may appear at the meeting and present arguments on the clarity of the petition language (168.952(3)).

Clarity Determination

It is important to emphasize that only the clarity of the recall language is subject to review by the Board; the Board does not have the authority to rule on the reasons for the recall 168.952(3).

PREPARATION AND CIRCULATION OF RECALL PETITIONS

As soon as the sponsors of a recall effort have the clarity of their petition language approved by the appropriate Board of County Election Commissioners, they are free to circulate their petition.

The Petition Form

Recall petitions must conform to the specifications prescribed by the Secretary of State (168.952a).

A separate petition must be circulated for each officer who is being recalled (168.958a). Recall language printed on the recall petitions that are circulated must be the same language approved by the Board of County Election Commissioners (168.952(2)). Circulation of Recall Petitions

Recall petitions are circulated within the district represented by the officer whose recall is sought (168.954).

Circulators of recall petitions must be registered to vote in the electoral district of the official whose recall is sought (168.954).

Before a recall petition can be circulated, the circulator must complete the "heading" of each petition sheet by filling in the following:

1. the county and city or township where the sheet will be circulated, or
2. the village where the sheet will be circulated

The sheet may not be circulated outside of the jurisdiction listed in the sheet heading. (NOTE: recall petitions may not be circulated on a "countywide" basis.)

The circulator may not leave a recall petition unattended in a public place; all signatures must be signed in the presence of the circulator (168.957).

The circulator must complete and date the certificate on the bottom of the petition sheet after gathering the last signature he or she intends to collect on the sheet. Signatures on a sheet, which are dated after the date on the circulator's certificate, are not counted (168.958).

Signers of Recall Petitions

Signers of recall petitions must be registered to vote in the electoral district of the official whose recall is sought.

Each signer must list his or her signature, address, post office and the date of signing. If the recall petition is circulated within a city or school district that crosses county lines, each signer must be instructed to execute his or her signature on a petition sheet bearing the name of his or her county of residence in the heading (168.954).

All signatures must be signed in the presence of the circulator (168.957).

A signer is not permitted to sign for anyone else. For example: a wife may not sign for her husband (168.957).

Number of Signatures Needed; Signature "Ripeness"

The number of signatures needed to recall an officer is 25% of the votes cast in the officer's district for all candidates for the office of Governor at the last November general election. Upon written request, the county clerk is required to supply the minimum number of valid signatures needed to recall an officeholder. The figure must be calculated and delivered to the requester within 5 days after the county clerk's receipt of the request. (If the 5th day falls on a Saturday, Sunday or holiday, the county clerk has until the following business day to honor the request.) (168.955)

Signatures on a recall petition dated more than 90 days before the filing of the petition are invalid (168.961). Petition language is valid for a period of 180 days from the date of Board approval.

Editor's Note: Signed recall petitions should not be filed with the State until after the elected official has had 6 months in office. Staring the process and getting signatures in 90 days is the most difficult task.

THROW-AWAY SOCIETY MAY BE A TROJAN HORSE

One of the most disturbing trends in our unchecked transition into the 21st Century is that we have allowed ourselves to become; a throw-away society. The days of the TV repairman has gone the way of the buggy whip makers. Yesterday a TV repairman would show up at your house and fix the set with new tubes and some adjustments, or in the severe cases, cart the television off to his workshop for week. Today, if our TV goes bad, we throw it away and buy a new one.

The prices have disparities from the days gone by and among certain consumer goods, what once cost the equivalent of an entire pay check to purchase an item can now be calculated by an hourly rate.

Since most disposable big-ticket items are being made in foreign countries like China, what we buy and setup in our homes may be a Trojan Horse. Since no one digs through the guts of the televisions, VCRs, and other audio and video equipment, a government could easily place a deadly component in any or all items sold in the United States.

If the rouge government of a nation wanted to take over another country without compromising the infrastructure, they could place a short-term biohazard in a small box in all the items that requires power. A click to send a signal from a satellite could trigger the release of the biohazard into most of the homes around the globe.

Although the scenario is quite possible, it may not be likely since somewhere along the line the integrity of the biohazard box would sooner or later be compromised. The deaths of many workers in the factory or along the way to the retail store may, or may not, alert others to the plan. The mere contemplation of such an occurrence should give us pause when we buy items from foreign lands, in particular those items that go to raise and help support a standing army and extensive military offensive weapons research.

In the meantime, we are being fed with the notion that we need to move to a service-oriented society and the best jobs are being created right in our own government. Duh.

FOR WHOM DOES THE BELL TOLL?

The land-fills of the United States are now stuffed with products made in foreign lands, bought by American consumers and ultimately tossed out because their usefulness has been spent. As we absorb an enormous amount of broken and unfixable items into our landfills, we will eventually pay the big cost of contamination.

What strikes at the heart of the movement away from products made in the USA is that we have no control of the contents. Another fact is that we don't even control the contents of the packaging or how much is used.

As ship-loads of consumer goods filter into our ports every day, the government of the United States is now contemplating a super highway between Mexico City and Canada, with the United States responsible for being the host of the transcontinental atrocity.

Besides the overall loss of control over the contents of items being shipped to and sold in the US, we will now diffuse the rules and regulations used to protect the public from dangerous vehicle conditions and incompetent drivers.

Sovereignty is not merely a concept or an ideology, it is a critical component of the health, safety and welfare of a nation. The bell tolls for all those who enjoy the fundamental principles of liberty and unencumbered freedom. The death knell is sounds; yet few hear its tones and depth.

For whom does the bell toll? It tolls for all those who believe that the government is not the answer to all woes. It tolls for all those who know the government facilitates the disintegration of the family, values and traditions of society. It tolls for all free men.

WHERE ARE THE CLINTON PROPS?

Does anyone remember Socks the cat? How about the devoutly religious Bill Clinton walking with humility toting a Bible under is arm? We already know Buddy the dog committed suicide by jumping under the wheels of a car, but the rest of the Clinton props have just up and disappeared. Where are they? How can Hillary run a serious presidential campaign without the appropriate props?

AMERICA'S TEN WORST PRESIDENTS BY J. C. POWERS

U. S. News and World Report's newest rag, a special edition of some sorts, has outlined the top ten worst presidents in U. S. history. Not wanting to spend hard-earned money on the noticeably thin publication, I quickly flipped through the magazine to see who were the worst presidents in U. S. history, according to their perspective anyway.

I was quite amused by their selection of primarily Republican presidents, including Ulysses S. Grant. Strikingly absent were the absolute worse presidents, Lyndon Johnson, Jimmy Carter and Bill Clinton. Two didn't get reelected and the third was impeached.

I need to point out again the magazine's obvious thinness. As a one-time contender of Time and News Week, U. S. News and World Report had influenced a few societal transitions and transgressions like their opposition. But, like the big three television news casts that didn't adjust to the new trends which required balance, many of these leftists magazines are now experiencing the same demise.

The modern day communists, known as the neo-liberals, think that a nation built on a freedom of spirituality and capitalism is ready to become servants of the government.

The neo-liberals have taken over much of the media, including FOX News Sunday, and have competently infiltrated the Republican Party over the last decade. We are already well aware of their presence in our public education system. The results of poor education practices has led to two generations of intellectually handicapped citizens; the by-products of the public education system.

But, as an American society, we can be thankful that people can still learn after they graduate from high school and aren't always easily influenced by the leftists, unless they went to public school in Iowa of course.

HIS NAME IS SCOOTER

By now almost all of America has heard the name "Scooter". Lewis "Scooter" Libby has recently been convicted of obstructing justice, making false statements and perjury by a grand jury. He now awaits his sentencing.

The conviction was heralded by the liberals as great news; they finally brought down at least one member of the Bush White House. That is how liberals operate. They sight-in on their victim and plunge into a full campaign to destroy the individual, company or industry in the worse ways possible. These are people in leadership positions, many of whom hold law degrees from noteworthy institutions.

But wait a minute America, there was no crime committed. Mr. Libby did not out any covert agent. And, Richard Armitage had admitted to naming names already. So why was all of this time and money, our money, spent on tying up a grand jury to investigate Scooter?

Mr. Libby's affiliation with Vice President Dick Cheney and the overt hatred of the Veep and his former company, Halliburton, the libs had to reap some vengeance; a guy named Scooter was bound to lose a court battle. But what should be far more worrisome for the American public is that to being with there was no crime and 2nd, he lied to investigators.

Mr. Libby answered to one of the two counts of "making false statements to federal investigators." Evidently intent is no longer an element of a crime, but more importantly, at what point did it become a crime to lie to an "investigator", whether it was intentionally or unintentionally?

The impression is that our federal agents are no better than the Gestapo. The generalized terminology suggesting it is against the law to lie to a federal investigator may have eventual consequences. Perhaps the move by Haliburton's main offices to the Middle East is one example.

FRED THOMPSON CONSIDERS PRESIDENTIAL BID

Former Senator and current actor Fred Thompson is considering a run for the GOP presidential nomination. What we like is that he is pro-life, pro-2nd Amendment, wants the borders secured, supports the troops and the military commanders in Iraq and has been a key player in raising money for Scooter Libby's defense fund. These are all positives in our book.

We will have to wait and see where he stands on some key issues like the UN Agenda 21, the Super Highway, the North America Union and the proposed currency, the amero. Ron Paul as a possible veep may help throw the duo to the top of the ticket.

Perhaps there is some hope on the horizon and the red bloods of America won't have to climb on board a third party. We certainly don't need any type of repeat dealt America in the 1992 election when Ross Perot garnered a sizeable portion of the conservative vote.

It's more tolerable if there is a balance and a fraction of votes is taken by two opposite third party candidates. We have just under two years to go, so if the GOP fails us once again, we will all have to jump on the same third-party train, so-to-speak. Keep praying.

GORE'S GLOBAL WARMING GARBLE BY C. J. WILLIAMS

Former Vice President Al Gore, long a champion of environmentalism, recently won an Oscar for his documentary, "An Inconvenient Truth", which primarily is footage of Gore giving a power point presentation – a slide show – related to his take on the science of global warming.

For several years Gore has been traversing the country with his slide show, beating the drum for "sustainable development" and conservation of our natural resources. Now the traveling slide show has been immortalized in a Hollywood documentary.

Using the ramifications of global warming as a fear factor, Gore puts the major blame for global warming on mankind, not on forces of nature over which the common man has little control, though, in truth, people aren't the primary culprit; Mother Nature is, especially when she's being manipulated by research and developers wanting to test new weather modification technologies.

To mitigate global warming, Gore wants the Americans to downsize and conserve on energy, but it appears he doesn't want to practice what he preaches.

Gore and his wife divide their time living in two homes: a 10,000 sq-ft, 20-room, eight-bathroom mansion in Nashville, and a 4,000 sq-ft home in Arlington, Virginia. He also has a farm near Carthage, Tennessee. Apparently, in Gore's estimation downsizing applies only to peons, not people of his stature.

According to the Department of Energy, the average American household consumes 10,656-kilowatt hours (kWh) per year, but in 2006 Gore used nearly 221,000 kWh, more than 20 times the national average.

To put it more succinctly, the Tennessee Center for Policy Research states, "Gore's mansion, located in the posh Belle Meade area of Nashville, consumes more electricity every month than the average American household used in an entire year, according to the Nashville Electric Service. In his documentary, the former vice President calls on Americans to conserve energy by reducing electricity consumption at home...Last August alone, Gore burned through 22,619 kWh – guzzling more than twice the electricity in one month than an average American family uses in an entire year."

In response to that "inconvenient truth" Gore claims he uses "green power", but records indicate this wasn't so as of Dec. '06. He also claims he's installed solar panels and compact fluorescent bulbs in his homes and buys "carbon offsets" to mitigate his family's "carbon footprint".

Where does he buy these "carbon offsets"? He buys them through Generation Investment Management LLP, a firm he helped found in 2004 along with five other men, including three with ties to the scandal-ridden, wealth management firm, Goldman Sachs. Gore is chairman of Generation Investment Management LLP and is actually buying carbon offsets through his own investment company.

A "carbon offset" is an emission reduction credit from another organization's project that results in putting less carbon dioxide or other greenhouse gases in the atmosphere. For example, wind energy and solar power companies often sell these controversial offsets, which, in essence, presumably allow the buyer to be piggy about energy consumption provided he clears his conscience by tossing some money into the alternative energy racket.

As Kermit the Frog once sang so convincingly, "It's not easy being green". Perhaps it's even harder to pretend you are, particularly when you need to sweep your family's involvement with the likes of "influence peddler" Armand Hammer under the rug, as Gore seems to have conveniently done so peons don't hear about that inconvenient truth.

Armand Hammer, son of Julius Hammer who co-founded the Communist Party USA, was chairman of the Occidental Petroleum Corporation. He cultivated favorable relationships with politicians over several decades, but he was closest to Tennessean Al Gore, Sr., a U.S. senator from 1953 to 1971 who pleaded guilty in 1975 to providing hush money in the Watergate scandal.

After Gore, Sr. was defeated for reelection in 1970, Occidental Petroleum hired him at a salary of $500,000 a year to head up its subsidiary, Island Creek Coal Company, and gave him a seat on Occidental's board of directors.

In 1972 Occidental bought a zinc-rich farm in Carthage, Tennessee for $160,000 and a year later sold it to Gore Sr. for the same price, but the corporation also gave him an initial payment of $20,000 for mineral rights on the land. On the same day that he bought the farm, Gore Senior sold it to Gore Junior for $140,000 and from then until 1985 Occidental paid the former Vice President $20,000 a year for mining rights on the farmland.

Occidental never did mine the zinc on the Gore farm, but in 1985 Gore Junior began leasing his mineral rich land to Union Zinc after Occidental sold its competitor the mining rights. Those rights changed hands a couple of times, but it appears that Pasminco, an Australian company, did mine the land until 2003. At his death, Al Gore, Sr. left Occidental stock in his estate valued at hundreds of thousands of dollars, stock that was managed by his son.

Armand Hammer was as cozy with Gore Junior as he was with Gore Senior, and even after Hammer's death his corporation continued to funnel thousands upon thousands of dollars into Gore's campaigns and causes.

No doubt the influence peddling paid off for Occidental during the Clinton/Gore administration when, at a Dec. 19, 1994 "Reinventing Government" news conference with Pres. Clinton and V.P. Gore, Deputy Energy Secretary White announced the administration's intent to sell its 78% share of the Elk Hills Naval Petroleum Reserve; the other 22% was owned by Chevron.

The government had bought the reserve near Bakersfield, California in 1912 to ensure the Navy would have sufficient oil reserves, but it remained undeveloped until 1976 when Congress passed the Naval Petroleum Act to open Elk Hills and another reserve for production. From July 1976 until February 1998, Elk Hills alone generated a total of $17.1 billion in revenue for the U.S. Treasury, against total expenses of $3.3 billion.

Though it was a long, drawn out, three-year process between the announcement of intent to sell and the actual sale, on October 6, 1997 the Department of Energy announced that Occidental Petroleum Corporation was the high bidder for Elk Hills Reserve. Sale price: $3.65 billion dollars, double what some government officials expected to get, but also 50% less than what many others believed it was worth at the time.

The administrative cost of the sale, which tripled Occidental's U.S. oil reserves overnight, was in excess of $84 million, billed, of course, to the taxpayers, and although the Energy Dept. was required to determine likely environmental impacts of the sale, it hired a private company, ICF Kaiser International, to do the job instead. Gore's presidential campaign chairman, Tony Coelho, was a member of Kaiser's board of directors, but if the American people got screwed on this deal, we'll probably never know. The DOE refuses to disclose any information regarding the sale.

UNPLUG AND LIVE

There is a tendency to believe television offers a balanced saturation of information, but the reality is that there is a large amount of in-between time and a heap of intentional indoctrination going over the airwaves. It has become far more than entertainment.

Raising kids is tough enough, but trying to keep them entertained should not be in your job description. Skills, coordination and imagination are slowly dissipating in modern society. In fact, if all households raised their kids with only hardcopy books as substitute entertainment on rainy days and just let the kids be kids the rest of the time, we would have no fear for the generations to follow.

POLICE STATE NOT YET JUSTIFIED

The trends continue; schools and the students are targets of the mentally deficient. It is a sad statement about which direction our new society has gone, but the periodic rampages are not a justification to incorporate a police state into our public schools.

Officer Friendly and Drug Abuse Resistance Education (DARE) programs introduced local police officers into the classrooms all across America. The mystical, feared and once respected police officers had chipped away many of their advantages associated with the public's larger-than-life perception of their personas.

However, the placement of officers, most unarmed, in classrooms had an honorable intent. In most programs there was a very conscientious effort to separate the officer from their law enforcement function while on school campuses. They had structured programs that talked about responsibility, consequences, self-esteem and numerous other personal qualities associated with a good and responsible citizen.

However, the Crime Bill of 1994 helped change the dynamics of law enforcement and it began to disable the rights of citizens.

The transition from public education to home schooling indicates parents are trying to separate secularism from enlightened and conscientiousness education practices. Public schools, like their media counterpart, are in the business of indoctrination.

Along with the promotion that humans evolved from monkeys, are evil and the cause of global warming; they also promote the ideas of acceptance and inclusiveness. School books that promote homosexuality and embrace immoral practices as normal, have had diminutive effects on society. Along with the various television shows, the latest being a reality show where a woman has to determine whether the guy is married, straight or a homo., television thrives on hateful and demeaning programs.

Like most everything that comes from the bowels of a centralized government, there are always mandates. Most importantly, there are also direct accountability issues to the hierarchical mechanisms.

Community policing programs put officers out in the public. It was nothing new. In fact, during the old days, cops walked the beat and were always out in the public; that is until the hunk of iron known as a patrol car placed a wall between the public and the officers.

Community policing was nothing more than a mandatory idea requiring officers to get out of the car. School programs also placed law enforcement in the view of students. In all, the concepts helped promote the world of law enforcement and was great PR. However, there was a lot more going on behind the scenes.

As we became distracted with the new law enforcement vision, the Crime Bill also put controls and restraints on local and county law enforcement. Many of the State Police agencies became the proxy oversight groups and received unprecedented funding to help develop programs and provide training. The local departments became support agencies.

As the schools and media evolve and do all they can to take our God out of public view and destroy the ideologies of respect, humility, love, and charity, they encapsulate the new sets of values, which is essentially none. The Flower Children and Free Love kids of the 60s now expect their children to grow-up quicker and are often included in adult-level decision-making.

Parents and teachers are compelled to be a friend rather than an authority figure. The further contempt on a responsible citizenry was the elimination of quick and certain punishment for inappropriate and bad behavior. Drugs replace discipline and laws prohibit parents from parenting. As a result we have anti-affection rules in school, and wouldn't you know it; anti-bullying laws.

Along with the Crime Bills which benefited from lots of public support by promising to put 100,000 police officers on the streets of America were other legislative actions that compelled local and county law enforcement to become indebted to the benevolence of the federal government.

There is a recognized advantage of using local law enforcement to carry out the whims of the federal government. Local law enforcement officers have both a sense of community and ownership in the areas they work in and the public knows and usually trusts them as well. Contrarily, federal and state-level officers sent into local areas to enforce laws have no sense of community or ownership. They are also met with high levels of suspicion and distrust by certain elements of society. In Michigan there was a former practice of assigning State Troopers well away from their hometowns. The practice has subsided to some extent, but remains operational in times of necessity.

If we understand the need of maintaining a sense of community and ownership among our government and our employees, we can ultimately understand what is leading to the decay of our sovereignty. ~JCP

WHAT'S UP BY J. C. POWERS

The demise of the deer herds in the UP are the result of Quality Deer Management and other state programs. Ultimately, it was the hunter who filled doe permits and hit their limit in bucks for too many seasons that had the biggest impact on the deer population and the residual effects on the fraternity of gun-owners, outdoorsmen and hunters.

On the western end of the UP the DNR had transplanted nuisance wolves and hybrid wolf dogs in an attempt to repopulate the wolf population. It appears as if some of these nuisance wolves, which are primarily gray wolves, and the hybrid dogs were also sent to Isle Royale. The results of these transplant programs have been devastating on the UP's timber wolf, fox and coyote population. The latter predators travel alone most of the time and are frequently at the bottom of the food chain when they come in contact with the gray hybrid wolf packs.

Updated coverage of the mercury spill in the western UP and the investigation of the fire-bombing attempt on the campus of Michigan Tech by the Earth Liberation Front seems to have completely disappeared. There is also an unnerving quiet from the alleged terrorist groups known as The Nature Conservancy, Sierra Club and several other alliances. It appears these groups pop-up all of a sudden and then retreat to let things cool-down.

It was speculated that the mercury spill on the west end of the UP was thrown on the shoulder of the road as discarded evidence by an eco-terrorist group. Along with mercury found on the side of the road in California, the mercury is used in detonation switches. Environmentally friendly groups have also burned several Hummer SUVs at a California dealership to protest the pollution created by driving large SUVs. Of course the burning of SUVs does nothing to harm the environment.

Speaking of Michigan Tech, evidently they had eliminated their Mining Program. The university was established in the UP because of the prevalent natural resources and potential for excellent jobs. Once the number of students enrolled in the program dropped to around five students, MTU had to make a decision on its continuance.

However, the UP is about to experience a huge surge in exploration and mining, if the liberals and their Native American allies are unable to stop the operations. We here at the Yooper Scooper speculate that those in charge of Native American tribes won't long be allies since with increased wages comes increased gambling revenue.

The degradation of our independence by the leftists and transient elitists will have long-term effects on the UP population. As the remaining 14% of privately-owned property decreases, so too will our livelihood. So, let's just keep voting along the same party lines as Hollywood and Massachusetts, where rich people drive luxury imports, not a Michigan-made Lincoln or Cadillac. ~JCP
